A YOUNG LADY'S INSANITY ATTRIBUTED TO OVERWORK

HER HOME IS IN WELLSVILLE

WOMAN GRANTED A DIVORCE

She Was Deserted Four Months After Her Marriage—Jury Commissioners Appointed — Assignment of Criminal Cases for Next Week.

Lisbon, May 21.—(Special.) — Miss Catherine Browning, of Wellsville, was brought into probate court last night and adjudged to be insane. She is 27 years old and has been in her present mental condition six months. Her physicians say her malady is due to overwork in the Wellsville postoffice, where she had been employed. Permission to admit her to the asylum at Massillon was obtained by Judge Boone by telephone and she was taken there this morning by her father and sister.

Miss Browning is the daughter of Samuel Browning, of Eleventh street, Wellsville. She has not been employed in the postoffice for two or three years. She is not violent, but appears to be suffering from melancholia.

Judges Ambler, McCarty and Hole, for this, the Eighteenth sub-division of the Ninth judicial district of Ohio, composed of Stark, Carroll and Columbiana counties, met and appointed A. N. Chamberlain, of East Palestine; C. F. Roose, of Homeworth; Frank L. Croxall, of East Liverpool, and H. A. Tolerton, of Salem, as jury commissioners. The appointment is for one year from May 27, 1901. They have been ordered to appear at the court house next Monday at 1 o'clock, to fill the jury wheel.

Warren A. Schifler, of New Waterford, and Miss Nettie Cuthbert, of Leeonia; Ralph R. Winger and Miss Dora A. Stier, both of Homeworth, were granted marriage licenses today.

The case of Nora O. Dubbs vs. O. H. Bates, executor of the estate of the late Christian K. Betz, was called for trial today and will last all day. The action is to recover $1,500 which is claimed to be due on a note given in Salem in 1895.

Mrs. Blanche Bartholomew, of Wellsville, was granted a divorce from John Bartholomew. They were married in Chester, W. Va., in 1897, and went to the home of Bartholomew's parents in Youngstown. After four weeks of married life the husband left and the wife was penniless. Since that time the wife has been working in Wellsville as a domestic. She was formerly Miss Blanche Gamble, of Wellsville.

The following assignment was made this morning for next week in court, when Judge Hole will occupy the bench:

Monday—Jesse E. Summers vs. J. A. McAllister.

SPORTS ARE UNEASY

Timid About Fighting Chickens on Line Island—Wheeling Men Investigating.

The announcement in the News Review of Saturday concerning the intention of Prosecutor Brookes to co-operate with the authorities of Hancock county, on the opposite side of the river, in an effort to stop cocking mains, prize fights and other so-called sports on Line island, has caused considerable apprehension. Not only is the local sporting fraternity becoming uneasy, but outside parties who have been accustomed to attending illegal contests which have been pulled off at the island, are very much concerned.

Jack West, a well known sporting man of Wheeling, arrived in the city last night for the purpose of ascertaining whether or not there was a possibility of the proposed cocking main on May 30 being headed off. West owns several chickens which he proposed to enter in the contests, and he doesn't care to bring the birds up here unless it is a certainty the main will take place.

While he was not assured there would be no interferance by the officers, it is understood he was so far convinced that no trouble was likely to result that he proposes to take the chances. Several other Wheeling sports will be present at the main. Wellsville will come in with a large share of the chickens, and Steubenville, Martin's Ferry, Alliance, Beaver Falls and Rochester propose to be represented. Unless the authorities put a dampener on the affair, it is predicted the main will be by all odds the greatest ever held on Line island.

Although it has not yet been definitely decided, it is whispered about in sporting circles that a prize fight is being arranged for, to take place on May 30. The location is not known. It is said a local colored man will try conclusions with an outside party.

ONCE MORE IN JAIL

RICHARD WALKER FAILED TO KEEP HIS PROMISE.

Arrested While in a Half Crazed Condition From Drink—Fined $10 And Costs.

Less than a week ago Richard Walker, with tears in his eyes and vowing he would mend his ways, was released from the city jail after his aged father-in-law had paid a fine which Mayor Davidson had imposed on the man for drunkenness. Last night Walker was again placed in a cell in a half crazed condition and reeling from the effects of liquor.

Officer Davidson arrested the man on Second street on the charge of drunkenness and immoral conduct. He was taken to jail in the patrol and held there until this morning when he was given a hearing.

Mayor Davidson read the charges to Walker, who at once pleaded guilty, but before sentence was imposed he made a pitiful plea for leniency. The mayor had no sympathy for the man, and while Walker stood at the bar of justice shivering from head to foot, his honor administered a most scathing rebuke and finished by imposing a fine of $10 and costs and committing the culprit to the workhouse.

Walker begged to be given his liberty and repeatedly promised he would leave drink alone if given just one more chance. The mayor, however, refused to listen to the man and he was led back to his cell. He will be taken to Canton Thursday, unless he succeeds in paying his fine.

BOYS ENJOY IT

Exercises for Juveniles at the Y. M. C. A. Interesting and Popular.

The meetings of the Boys' band at the Y. M. C. A. are increasing in interest. Sunday 63 were present. The secretary seems to have some very effective plans for reaching the little fellows. Last Friday he gave them a phonograph concert with candy on the side. Yesterday he announced that he would allow the privileges of the association for a limited time to his boys, as he calls them. He will issue 15 day tickets, good for all privileges, twenty at a time. This week numbers 1 to 20 will be given out. The junior hours are 4 to 6 p. m., Tuesday and Thursday, and 9 a. m., to 12 m., Saturday.

The boys will be under the secretary's care, as he will look after them personally. To say that the youngsters enjoy such things is to put it mildly.

Works to Be Greatly Changed.

Bellaire, May 21.—As a result of the visit of President Charles M. Schwab, of the United States company, to this city it is authoritatively announced that the Bellaire steel works of the National Steel company will be enlarged to twice or three times its present capacity. It is also given out that the Mingo Junction plant of the National will be another of the plants to be enlarged. Already improvements that are expected to cost $1,000,000 are well under way.

PLAYERS HAVE A KICK COMING

Members of Nowling's Orchestra Are Protesting Against Non-Union Music.

NOT GIVEN FAIR TREATMENT

Is the Claim They Are Making, And Mr. Nowling Gives Reasons for the Complaint—Appeal May Be Made to Labor Organizations.

The members of A. K. Nowling's orchestra have a grievance. They do not believe they are receiving proper consideration at the hands of the citizens of East Liverpool, and are not bashful in stating their reasons for finding fault. The cause of the trouble lies in their claim that the members of local dancing clubs and even labor organizations are not exercising proper discretion in the selection of orchestras to furnish music at the balls, parties, etc., which the held in the city.

It is said that within the past few weeks four non-union musical organizations have played for dances at the Rock Springs park and that all were hired by East Liverpool parties. Mr. Nowling's orchestra is composed of union men, and he considers it an act of injustice that his musicians are not given better support. In a conversation he said:

"I am not finding fault with the management of Rock Springs park when I say that I am displeased because non-union musicians play there. I do, however, believe it is out of place for dancing parties, the majority of which are made up of union men and women, to ignore a union orchestra and secure the services of non-union musicians. Even out-of-town talent has been employed by some of the local dancers, and this, I claim, is also unfair. I only ask for what I believe to be right, and nothing more."

The matter is being much discussed and it is likely Mr. Nowling will personally carry the case up before the different local labor organizations.

SCARED BY A BLAST

A WELLSVILLE TEAM PLUNGES OVER A BANK.

Both Animals Went Down Twenty Feet With a Wagon Load of Goods.

A team of horses belonging to Samuel O'Connor, of Wellsville, were injured in an accident which occurred at Shadyside, just west of the Jethro bridge, shortly before noon today.

The horses were hitched to a wagon on which was standing in front of Mrs. Wood's residence and which was being loaded with household goods belonging to the woman, who is moving to another dwelling. Just as the teamster was ready to drive off, a blast was fired at Golden's stone quarry, a short distance away, which gave the horses a terrible scare.

Both of them reared and plunged to the lower sile of the road, and a moment later the horses, wagon and contents were sent tumbling down over the steep embankment, 20 feet below. The driver jumped in time to save himself.

A party of men were summoned to the scene and immediately set to work in an effort to release the injured horses, which were pinioned underneath the heavy wagon. It was impossible to move the vehicle until another team was secured. Then a rope was fastened to the rear axle and the wagon dragged back.

The horses were cut and bruised in dozens of places, and it was thought at first they were fatally hurt. However, a close examination revealed that the injuries were not serious.

Mrs. Woods threatens to bring a suit for damages.

Dog Bit Him.

Clyde Mount was attacked by a dog last evening in the alley between Third and Fourth streets. He was bitten on the leg, but beat the brute off before it inflicted serious injury. The police are looking for the dog.

Selected from Thirty.

Steubenville, May 21.—Prof. Arthur Powell, superintendent of the Marion (O.) schools, was last night elected superintendent of schools here. There were 30 applicants. The salary is $2,000 a year.

PRINTERS' LIST IS MADE UP

After Almost Two Weeks of Faithful Work the Committees Have Agreed Upon a Uniform Scale Which Will Be Adopted.

As was predicted in the News Review of yesterday the last price was fixed and the final settlement arranged in the formation of the printers' scale at the meeting last night.

The session was a long one, lasting until 11 o'clock, and when it had ended the committees breathed a sigh of relief, as the task has been an arduous one, extending over two weeks.

The basis of settlement on the various articles coming under the scale is said to be satisfactory to both the men and manufacturers, although there were concessions made and some difficulty experienced in arriving at a final conclusion.

The president and secretary of the manufacturers' committee, Messrs. Owen and Carson, were given the task of compiling the scale, which is said to have been formed on an entirely different basis with reference to figuring than the method in vogue heretofore. It is said to be much more simple and is easily understood. The gentlemen will have completed the work by Friday evening, and at that time Messrs. Greene and Quell, of the printers' committee, will meet with them and check up the list and O. K. it.

On Saturday morning the list as formed by the conference will be laid before the national officials and the manufacturers' association for ratification. When this has been done the list will be ready to introduce in the various potteries under the jurisdiction of the Western association.

With this settlement the last of the pottery trades will have succeeded in accomplishing the task begun many months ago, viz.: The adoption of a scale of prices which will govern their respective line of work, with the positive assurance that no other employe performing the same labor will receive an amount less than that which is called for in the list just adopted.

A printer was responsible for the statement this morning that his trade might have been working under a uniform scale long ago had it not been for the indiscreet action of a member of the original wage committee. At that time it was declared an impossibility to form a list which would govern the trade in, a satisfactory manner, and no effort was made to enforce the one formed at that time. From the result of the conference just ended it would seem this theory was incorrect.

AT FINDLAY

THE CONDITIONS AS THEY NOW PREVAIL.

A Few Matters of Ancient History in Connection With the Potters There.

President Hughes' visit to the west has recalled a number of interesting incidents in connection with the employes of the pottery at Findlay.

Just now they are involved in a strike that will keep them busy for some time to come. There has never been a time that the employes received as high a rate of wages as prevail in other western manufacturing concerns and for this reason there has been trouble from time to time for many years. The kiln department has been the greatest sufferer as to wages, the employes of that branch receiving a very low rate.

There have been locals in Findlay almost ever since the potters' union has been in existence; in fact, No. 5 of that city was one of the first Brotherhood locals instituted. In February, 1890, a strike occurred there, and it was so long drawn out that the members of the organization who were loyal and could have accomplished a vast amount of good were compelled to seek employment elsewhere, and the charter was surrendered.

The result of this move was that the plant was manned with apprentices and incompetent non-union men, so that the class of work turned out by the concern was anything but satisfactory.

A union was organized not long before the late strike, but did not last through the time covered by the trouble, and was again surrendered. It has been customary for the employes to get mixed up in some difficulty and then become very much concerned in the organization of a local.

The present case was no exception, and a union could have been formed at that place a month ago, but would have done them no good, as they could not have enjoyed any of the benefits.

President Hughes states there will likely be a local there by the middle of July, but hardly before. He says the men are anxious to come in and will do so at the first opportunity.

The proprietor of the plant has also became weary of the non-union element and is very anxious to have the shop thoroughly organized, having come to the conclusion that in order to secure the best workmanship and cordial relations between himself and employes, this is a logical move.

Thirty New Members.

Local union No. 4, pressers, held a very largely attended meeting last evening, and about 30 new members were initiated. The organization is just now enjoying a degree of prosperity which is phenomenal.

Trustees Meeting.

PAPERS ARE SERVED

AND EX-ENGINEER GEORGE IS NOW SUED, FOR SURE.

Property Which the City Claims Was Attached, But Yet Remains in George's Possession.

Constable Powell attached the property last evening in the possession of ex-Eingineer George, which is claimed by the city and for which suit was begun Saturday in Justice McLane's court.

The property was immediately apprised by John Kerr and F. G. Croxall, who fixed a valuation on the same of $144.75. Before the material was removed by the constable, Attorney Brookes, representing Mr. George, filed a re-delivery bond and the ex-engineer is thus permitted to retain possession of the surveys, plans, etc., until the case has been settled. The plaintiff's bond has also been filed.

For trying the case June 3 has now been decided on, and a jury will settle the matter. Justice McLane will preside.

BEFORE GRAND JURY

Mrs. Matursh, the Assailant of Mrs. William Price, Will Likely Be Taken.

Attorney F. E. Grosshans, who represented Mrs. Lucille Matursh, the Italian woman who assaulted Mrs. William Price a few weeks ago, at the trial before Mayor Davidson, has given up hope of having his client tried on an insanity charge until after the sitting of the grand jury next June.

The husband of the Italian woman refuses to pay the lawyer's fees in her case, and hence if the grand jury returns an indictment against her, the state will have to furnish a lawyer, and Mr. Matursh will thus be relieved of the necessity of parting with his cash.

PARDON OPPOSED

In the Case of a Salem Young Man Now in Massillon Reformatory.

Columbus, May 21. — (Special.)— Homer Knowles, a young man of Salem, was sent last fall to the Massillon reformatory for an aggravated offense. A petition for his pardon was presented to the pardon board last April, but was not acted upon. The board is expected to take up and act upon his case next Thursday.

Prosecutor Brookes, a Salem minister, and another Salem citizen, have entered a protest, and favorable action by the board is scarcely looked for.

A HUGE FILTER TO BE BUILT ALONG WITH WATER SYSTEM

It May Be Some Time Before the Plan is Carried Out.

BUT IT IS BOUND TO COME

The Reservoir Now Under Way is a Mammoth affair, and Modern.

TO HOLD 12,000,000 GALLONS

The Department Has Not As Yet Made Any of the Arrangements, But the Matter Has Been Talked Over.

When the plans now contemplated by the water works department shall have been carried out, the system will be second to none in the country.

At present the facilities for serving patrons are first-class, being among the best in the Ohio valley, but those in charge are determined to make it as near perfection as it is possible to do. The only drawback to the plans as they have been arranged is the matter of finances. The expense of building the new reservoir now under way is being met from the regular income of the department, and when completed will represent an outlay of from $26,000 to $28,000.

The new reservoir is located immediately east of the old one and is to be connected thereto by a 24-inch pipe with a valve attached so that in case of necessity the old reservoir may be used by simply opening the valve. The new structure will be 23 feet deep and will hold in the neighborhood of 12,000,000 gallons.

The work under way will make the service, so far as the supply is concerned, almost inexhaustible, but there are yet other improvements in contemplation.

The money is not in sight just at present with which to bear the expense of the new addition, but those in charge of the department are confident it will come in the not far distant future.

The plan is to build a huge filter in connection with the reservoir, and furnish the water to the patrons from this source in its purity.

The filter will be located just east of the new reservoir and will be built so that the bottom of the purifier will be on a level with the top of the reservoir, or 23 feet above the surface of the same.

The inlet main will be changed from its place at the southeastern corner of the reservoir to a point at the upper end of the filter, so that the water must pass through a process of filtration before it reaches the reservoir.

Clerk Gipner was questioned with reference to the matter this morning and said:

"The department has not at the present time any plans under way, but just as soon as the condition of our funds will permit, I think the addition will be made; in fact, this has already been determined upon. The improvements now under way are being paid for out of the legitimate income of the department, and that is about all we can stand at this time, but I think it would not be out of place to say that the new feature will be added within the next few years."

ODD FELLOWS PICNIC

Acceptances Already Received Show That It Will Be a Big Affair.

The subordinate lodge of Odd Fellows, at their meeting last evening, initiated two new members, conferring upon them the second degree. Two applications for membership were received.

The canton will meet in regular session on Friday night, when several new members will be taken into the degree. Arrangements are being made to entertain the large crowd which is expected to attend the picnic to be given by the canton on June 5. A number of sister lodges have already been heard from, the last being that at Dennison. The lodge there has accepted the invitation and will attend in a body.

Although it has not yet been definitely decided, it is whispered about in sporting circles that a prize fight is being arranged for, to take place on May 30. The location is not known. It is said a local colored man will try conclusions with an outside party.

RICHARD WALKER FAILED TO KEEP HIS PROMISE.

Arrested While in a Half Crazed Condition From Drink—Fined $10 And Costs.

Less than a week ago Richard Walker, with tears in his eyes and vowing he would mend his ways, was released from the city jail after his aged father-in-law had paid a fine which Mayor Davidson had imposed on the man for drunkenness. Last night Walker was again placed in a cell in a half crazed condition and reeling from the effects of liquor.

PLAYERS HAVE A KICK COMING

Members of Nowling's Orchestra Are Protesting Against Non-Union Music.

NOT GIVEN FAIR TREATMENT

Is the Claim They Are Making, And Mr. Nowling Gives Reasons for the Complaint—Appeal May Be Made to Labor Organizations.

The members of A. K. Nowling's orchestra have a grievance. They do not believe they are receiving proper consideration at the hands of the citizens of East Liverpool, and are not bashful in stating their reasons for finding fault. The cause of the trouble lies in their claim that the members of local dancing clubs and even labor organizations are not exercising proper discretion in the selection of orchestras to furnish music at the balls, parties, etc., which the held in the city.

It is said that within the past few weeks four non-union musical organizations have played for dances at the Rock Springs park and that all were hired by East Liverpool parties. Mr. Nowling's orchestra is composed of union men, and he considers it an act of injustice that his musicians are not given better support. In a conversation he said:

"I am not finding fault with the management of Rock Springs park when I say that I am displeased because non-union musicians play there. I do, however, believe it is out of place for dancing parties, the majority of which are made up of union men and women, to ignore a union orchestra and secure the services of non-union musicians. Even out-of-town talent has been employed by some of the local dancers, and this, I claim, is also unfair. I only ask for what I believe to be right, and nothing more."

The matter is being much discussed and it is likely Mr. Nowling will personally carry the case up before the different local labor organizations.

PRINTERS' LIST IS MADE UP

After Almost Two Weeks of Faithful Work the Committees Have Agreed Upon a Uniform Scale Which Will Be Adopted.

As was predicted in the News Review of yesterday the last price was fixed and the final settlement arranged in the formation of the printers' scale at the meeting last night.

The session was a long one, lasting until 11 o'clock, and when it had ended the committees breathed a sigh of relief, as the task has been an arduous one, extending over two weeks.

The basis of settlement on the various articles coming under the scale is said to be satisfactory to both the men and manufacturers, although there were concessions made and some difficulty experienced in arriving at a final conclusion.

The president and secretary of the manufacturers' committee, Messrs. Owen and Carson, were given the task of compiling the scale, which is said to have been formed on an entirely different basis with reference to figuring than the method in vogue heretofore. It is said to be much more simple and is easily understood. The gentlemen will have completed the work by Friday evening, and at that time Messrs. Greene and Quell, of the printers' committee, will meet with them and check up the list and O. K. it.

On Saturday morning the list as formed by the conference will be laid before the national officials and the manufacturers' association for ratification. When this has been done the list will be ready to introduce in the various potteries under the jurisdiction of the Western association.

With this settlement the last of the pottery trades will have succeeded in accomplishing the task begun many months ago, viz.: The adoption of a scale of prices which will govern their respective line of work, with the positive assurance that no other employe performing the same labor will receive an amount less than that which is called for in the list just adopted.

A printer was responsible for the statement this morning that his trade might have been working under a uniform scale long ago had it not been for the indiscreet action of a member of the original wage committee. At that time it was declared an impossibility to form a list which would govern the trade in a satisfactory manner, and no effort was made to enforce the one formed at that time. From the result of the conference just ended it would seem this theory was incorrect.

AT FINDLAY

A Few Matters of Ancient History in Connection With the Potters There.

President Hughes' visit to the west has recalled a number of interesting incidents in connection with the employes of the pottery at Findlay.

Just now they are involved in a strike that will keep them busy for some time to come. There has never been a time that the employes received as high a rate of wages as prevail in other western manufacturing concerns and for this reason there has been trouble from time to time for many years. The kiln department has been the greatest sufferer as to wages, the employes of that branch receiving a very low rate.

There have been locals in Findlay almost ever since the potters' union has been in existence; in fact, No. 5 of that city was one of the first Brotherhood locals instituted. In February, 1890, a strike occurred there, and it was so long drawn out that the members of the organization who were loyal and could have accomplished a vast amount of good were compelled to seek employment elsewhere, and the charter was surrendered.

The result of this move was that the plant was manned with apprentices and incompetent non-union men, so that the class of work turned out by the concern was anything but satisfactory.

A union was organized not long before the late strike, but did not last through the time covered by the trouble, and was again surrendered. It has been customary for the employes to get mixed up in some difficulty and then become very much concerned in the organization of a local.

The present case was no exception, and a union could have been formed at that place a month ago, but would have done them no good, as they could not have enjoyed any of the benefits.

President Hughes states there will likely be a local there by the middle of July, but hardly before. He says the men are anxious to come in and will do so at the first opportunity.

The proprietor of the plant has also became weary of the non-union element and is very anxious to have the shop thoroughly organized, having come to the conclusion that in order to secure the best workmanship and cordial relations between himself and employes, this is a logical move.

Thirty New Members.

Local union No. 4, pressers, held a very largely attended meeting last evening, and about 30 new members were initiated. The organization is just now enjoying a degree of prosperity which is phenomenal.

Trustees Meeting.

PAPERS ARE SERVED

AND EX-ENGINEER GEORGE IS NOW SUED, FOR SURE.

Property Which the City Claims Was Attached, But Yet Remains in George's Possession.

Constable Powell attached the property last evening in the possession of ex-Eingineer George, which is claimed by the city and for which suit was begun Saturday in Justice McLane's court.

The property was immediately apprised by John Kerr and F. G. Croxall, who fixed a valuation on the same of $144.75. Before the material was removed by the constable, Attorney Brookes, representing Mr. George, filed a re-delivery bond and the ex-engineer is thus permitted to retain possession of the surveys, plans, etc., until the case has been settled. The plaintiff's bond has also been filed.

For trying the case June 3 has now been decided on, and a jury will settle the matter. Justice McLane will preside.

BEFORE GRAND JURY

Mrs. Matursh, the Assailant of Mrs. William Price, Will Likely Be Taken.

Attorney F. E. Grosshans, who represented Mrs. Lucille Matursh, the Italian woman who assaulted Mrs. William Price a few weeks ago, at the trial before Mayor Davidson, has given up hope of having his client tried on an insanity charge until after the sitting of the grand jury next June.

The husband of the Italian woman refuses to pay the lawyer's fees in her case, and hence if the grand jury returns an indictment against her, the state will have to furnish a lawyer, and Mr. Matursh will thus be relieved of the necessity of parting with his cash.

PARDON OPPOSED

In the Case of a Salem Young Man Now in Massillon Reformatory.

Columbus, May 21. — (Special.)—Homer Knowles, a young man of Salem, was sent last fall to the Massillon reformatory for an aggravated offense. A petition for his pardon was presented to the pardon board last April, but was not acted upon. The board is expected to take up and act upon his case next Thursday.

It May Be Some Time Before the Plan is Carried Out.

BUT IT IS BOUND TO COME

The Reservoir Now Under Way is a Mammoth affair, and Modern.

TO HOLD 12,000,000 GALLONS

The Department Has Not As Yet Made Any of the Arrangements, But the Matter Has Been Talked Over.

When the plans now contemplated by the water works department shall have been carried out, the system will be second to none in the country.

At present the facilities for serving patrons are first-class, being among the best in the Ohio valley, but those in charge are determined to make it as near perfection as it is possible to do. The only drawback to the plans as they have been arranged is the matter of finances. The expense of building the new reservoir now under way is being met from the regular income of the department, and when completed will represent an outlay of from $26,000 to $28,000.

The new reservoir is located immediately east of the old one and is to be connected thereto by a 24-inch pipe with a valve attached so that in case of necessity the old reservoir may be used by simply opening the valve. The new structure will be 23 feet deep and will hold in the neighborhood of 12,000,000 gallons.

The work under way will make the service, so far as the supply is concerned, almost inexhaustible, but there are yet other improvements in contemplation.

The money is not in sight just at present with which to bear the expense of the new addition, but those in charge of the department are confident it will come in the not far distant future.

The plan is to build a huge filter in connection with the reservoir, and furnish the water to the patrons from this source in its purity.

The filter will be located just east of the new reservoir and will be built so that the bottom of the purifier will be on a level with the top of the reservoir, or 23 feet above the surface of the same.

The inlet main will be changed from its place at the southeastern corner of the reservoir to a point at the upper end of the filter, so that the water must pass through a process of filtration before it reaches the reservoir.

Clerk Gipner was questioned with reference to the matter this morning and said:

"The department has not at the present time any plans under way, but just as soon as the condition of our funds will permit, I think the addition will be made; in fact, this has already been determined upon. The improvements now under way are being paid for out of the legitimate income of the department, and that is about all we can stand at this time, but I think it would not be out of place to say that the new feature will be added within the next few years."

ODD FELLOWS PICNIC

Acceptances Already Received Show That It Will Be a Big Affair.

The subordinate lodge of Odd Fellows, at their meeting last evening, initiated two new members, conferring upon them the second degree. Two applications for membership were received.

The canton will meet in regular session on Friday night, when several new members will be taken into the degree. Arrangements are being made to entertain the large crowd which is expected to attend the picnic to be given by the canton on June 5. A number of sister lodges have already been heard from, the last being that at Dennison. The lodge there has accepted the invitation and will attend in a body.

GLEANINGS OF A DAY

THE LOCAL POTTERIES

One of those English fault-finders has recently been with us—himself probably a potter—and visited some of the factories at Trenton, N. J. His idea of American-made wares, viewed in one of the largest pottery centers in this country, is not flattering to the Trenton manufacturers, and he tells his representative journal, upon his return home, that the ways of our potters are still very crude, and that the pottery ware turned out by them has "a thick and heavy air of the antique, such as might have passed for fine art in the days of the patriarch Abraham, but not since."

Verily, says the Glass and Pottery World, another Daniel came to judgment. We venture to remark that, deprived of any distinguishing trademark, a good many of the products of our potteries could be placed side by side of the English product and sold therefor without the purchaser being able to distinguish the difference between the two, even according him to be a good judge of pottery wares. When our pottery industries get fairly out of their swaddling clothes, and reach half or one-quarter the age of the English industries, they will attain as high a standard as most of the wares produced in England. They have already gained a considerable foothold in the English market, while our products of glassware are greatly admired in London, as well as in some of the large cities on the continent.

Judge James L. Price, of Lima, has been announced as a candidate for the Republican nomination for supreme judge, by the coming Republican state convention. Judge Price was born in New Hagerstown, Carroll county. O. He received a college education and studied law under General E. R. Eckley, at Carrollton, and afterwards began the practice of law in that town, being mayor of Carrollton and afterwards prosecuting attorney of the county. He removed to Van Wert and later to Lima, in 1882, where he has since resided.

The warehousemen and decorators of the Dresden pottery deny the report that was published Saturday that they wert defeated last Thursday by a score of 9 to 0 by the warehousemen and decorators of the Murphy plant, and say that they never knew they were to play a game on that day. The team is willing to meet the Murphy team any Saturday afternoon at any place, as it would like to have satisfaction and is confident of victory.

The Anti-Saloon League expects to hold Anti-Saloon meetings Sunday in East Liverpool and Wellsville on June 2. The list of speakers has not been named. A date for Lisbon will be arranged for in the near future. The league held services at Columbiana last Sunday. Funds for carrying on the work of the league are solicited at these meetings. Meetings will be held in the small towns and villages of the county on week days.

John S. Goodwin, of the Goodwin Pottery company, East Liverpool, was in the city last Monday en route to Buffalo, says China, Glass and Lamps, of Pittsburg. Mr. Goodwin says the craze for souvenirs reached high water mark at the exposition this year. "There are thousands of souvenirs on sale this year," said he, "and the best of it is that almost all of them are of American manufacture."

Articles of incorporation were filed in Trenton last week for the Buck Ceramic company, with a capital stock of $12,000. The incorporators are Edward H. Sweeney, Alfred A. Sweeney and Frederick C. Buck. The company is formed to manufacture tile and all kinds of pottery and earthenware.

At Urbana the Republican county committee passed resolutions favoring the abolition of the existing rule of a single term in office for the senator from the Eleventh district, declaring for two terms, commencing with Champaign county, and indorsing Senator E. S. Middleton for renomination in case the change is made.

The new addition being erected at the C. C. Thompson pottery will be completed this week. The second floor will be used as a turning shop, while the first will be used as a green house. The turners commenced their work today, but the green house is not yet finished.

Judge Cyrus Newby, of Highland county, was given the third nomination for common pleas judge by the Republicans of the second subdivision of the Fifth judicial circuit, composed of Fayette, Highland, Ross, Madison and Pickaway counties, at Washington C. H.

In a hotly contested ball game Saturday afternoon, at the ball grounds in Sebring, the Barnes colored nine of Pittsburg defeated the Sebring pottery team by a score of 16 to 3. The game was largely attended, and was exciting from start to finish.

The glost kiln hands at the Laughlin No. 2 plant have among their number a most unique character whom they designate as "Rip Van Winkle II." He takes a day off every week to sleep, so it is said, and this is his day off.

At a meeting of the district committee it was decided to hold the Republican senatorial convention for Trumbull and Mahoning counties June 20. Senator B. F. Wirt, of Youngstown, will be renominated by acclamation.

"Red" Allison, Charles Meyers, Theodore King, Dimar Wheatley and Henry King, all jiggermen at the Laughlin No. 2 plant, loafed yesterday afternoon on account of a shortage of help. Also several of the jiggers were broken.

Harry Jenkins, who was employed in the clay shops at the Vodrey pottery, has resigned his position and returned to his home on the Big Sandy in West Virginia.

Miss Mayme Zink resigned her position as dresser at the Dresden Saturday and yesterday accepted a similar one at the Taylor, Lee & Smith pottery in Chester.

Josh Chadwick yesterday commenced the work of making slop jars at the Burford pottery. It is a new shape and was recently secured by the plant.

Hiram Roth, who was formerly employed at the La Belle pottery in Wheeling, has accepted a position as glost kilnman at the Chetwynd plant.

John Wilkinson, jiggerman, and William Button, kilnhand, will represent the Steubenville Potters Union No. 30 at East Liverpool July 8.

Licking county's Democratic mass meeting endorsed Kilbourne for governor and John David Jones and Emmet Wickham for judges.

The work of erecting the new gas engine recently purchased for the Burford pottery was completed yesterday afternoon.

F. F. Debolt left yesterday afternoon for a week's trip through Pennsylvania in the interests of the French China company.

John Howard, who formerly worked at Arnold's store, has accepted a position in the clay shop at the Laughlin No. 2 plant.

Thomas Boyd, who is employed as batter-out for John Godwin at the Laughlin plant, is off duty on account of illness.

Ralph Howe, of California Hollow, has accepted a position as mold runner for William Brandt at the Vodrey pottery.

Frank Timmers, who is boss of the clay shops at the Klondike plant, went to Sebring yesterday on business.

The Burford Bros. last week placed a number of new ware bins in the warehouse of their property.

Charley Yoch, a potter of Wheeling, was looking for a position in one of the East End potteries yesterday.

A JOB OF GRADING

Begun By the Street Railway Company Below Neville Institute.

The street railway company has commenced the grading of the bank below Neville Institute. This strip, which is about 200 yards long, will require more excavating than will be necessary at any other place along the extension.

When this is completed the work will be pushed rapidly, as the largest part of the remaining portion of the track will require but little grading.

STONE CRUSHING

An Industry in Which John Forbes Proposes to Engage.

John Forbes and John Arnold went to Smith's Ferry this morning to purchase an engine which Mr. Forbes will use to operate a sand crusher. The machine will be put in operation on the Frank Riley farm, where, it is said, there is enough soft rock to keep a crusher going for half a century.

Bert Chambers, who has been attending the United Presbyterian Theological seminary at Allegheny, Pa., returned to his home in the East End last evening. He will remain here during vacation.

Dislocated a Finger.

EAST END AFFAIRS.

George Hunt is off duty on account of illness.

Samuel Dixon, of St. George street, is very ill, threatened with typhoid fever.

Mrs. William Brandt is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Eli Downard, at Sebring.

Harvey Hays is erecting a new residence on High street in the rear of the M. E. church.

Walter C. Supplee is in Lisbon, his suit against that town having been set for hearing today.

Mr. and Mrs. Moselle Ull, of Cabel county, W. Va., are visiting Mrs. David Garl, of Dixonville.

John Patterson, of Rochester, Pa., is visiting his nephew, William Spearhas, of Mulberry street.

William McClure, of Dixonville, has purchased a farm near Fredericktown and will remove to it soon.

A. M. Fisher is moving into the Chambers house near the M. E. church. He purchased this property recently.

Mrs. William Spearhas, who is ill with fever at Esther, Pa., is improving rapidly, but is still unable to be out.

Selvy Garl, of Dixonville, who has been ill with typhoid fever for some time, is able to be up but is not able to be out.

The Young People's society of the Second U. P. church have arranged to hold an elaborate social and festival at the church this evening.

Sweet Revenge.

"Naw; I ain't working any more, I've lost me job," said the diminutive office boy when he was asked about it. "But I got even, betcher life! I heard the old man telling a feller that I was no good and that he was going to fire me at the end of the week. He said the only thing I could do was to sit on a stool and balance a ruler on the end of my nose.

"Well, when I heard the old man say that he was going to fire me, I just laid low to get even. And I did, betcher life! There was a book agent what had been pestering the life out of the old man, and he was expecting her to call again, so he made a sneak and told me to tell her when she called that he had gone west for good and wasn't coming back.

"Well, just then his wife telephoned him that she was coming down to the office to see him about something, and he told me to tell her when she came to take a seat and wait for him.

"Well, I saw my chance to get even. So when the book agent came in I told her that the old man had left word for her to wait for him. Then when his wife blew in, I told her that the old man had gone west and left word for her that she needn't expect to see him again.

"Geerusalem! Maybe you think the sparks didn't fly then. I waited till the fireworks were over, then I wrote out me resignation, balanced the ruler on me nose for the last time and left."—Detroit Free Press.

ENGLAND'S FIRST SHIP.

Great Harry Was the Country's Premier Fighting Machine.

Of the first ship, properly speaking, of the British navy, known as the Great Harry, the following particulars are given in an old number of the Mechanic's Magazine, dated Oct. 25, 1823:

The Great Harry was built by King Henry VII at a cost of £14,000, and was burned at Woolwich, through accident, in 1553.

Though King Henry, as well as other princes, hired many ships, exclusive of those which the different seaports were obliged to furnish, he seems thus to have been the first king who thought of avoiding this inconvenience by raising such a force as might be at all times sufficient for the service of the state. Historians tell us that he caused his navy, which had been neglected in the preceding reign, to be put in a condition to protect the British coasts against all foreign invasions, and that in the midst of profound peace he always kept up a fleet ready to act.

In August, 1512, the Regent, a ship of 1,000 tons, which was at that time the largest vessel in the British navy, was burned, and to replace it the Great Harry, or, as it was also known, the Henry Grace de Dieu, was built in 1515.

The vessel, of about 1,000 tons burden, was manned by 349 soldiers, 301 marines and 50 gunners. She had four masts and portholes on both decks and in other parts.

Before the time of her construction the cannon were placed above deck and on the prow and poop. One Descharges, a French builder at Brest, is said to have invented portholes.

In a list of the British navy, as it stood on Jan. 5, 1548, the Great Harry is said to have carried 19 brass and 103 iron pieces of ordnance.

The name of the ship is supposed to have been changed in the reign of Edward VI to Edward, which, on Aug. 26, 1552, was reported to be still "in good case to serve," and was ordered "to be grounded and calked once a year to keep it tight."—Cassier's Magazine.

Clay's First Speech.

Henry Clay as a young man was extremely bashful, although he possessed uncommon brightness of intellect and fascinating address, without effort making the little he knew pass for much more. In the early part of his career he settled in Lexington, Va., where he found the society most congenial, though the clients seemed somewhat recalcitrant to the young lawyer. He joined a debating society at length, but for several meetings he remained a silent listener.

One evening, after a lengthy debate, the subject was being put to a vote, when Clay was heard to observe softly to a friend that the matter in question was by no means exhausted. He was at once asked to speak and after some hesitation rose to his feet. Finding himself thus unexpectedly confronted by an audience, he was covered with confusion and began, as he had frequently done in imaginary appeals to the court, "Gentlemen of the jury."

A titter that ran through the audience only served to heighten his embarrassment, and the obnoxious phrase fell from his lips again. Then he gathered himself together and launched into a peroration so brilliantly lucid and impassioned that it carried the house by storm and laid the cornerstone to his future greatness, his first case coming to him as a result of this speech, which some consider the finest he ever made.—Collier's Weekly.

John Bixby's son, Carl, dislocated a finger while at play on his way home from school yesterday evening. The member was replaced by a doctor, but is still badly swollen.

EAST END AFFAIRS.

George Hunt is off duty on account of illness.

Samuel Dixon, of St. George street, is very ill, threatened with typhoid fever.

Mrs. William Brandt is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Eli Downard, at Sebring.

Harvey Hays is erecting a new residence on High street in the rear of the M. E. church.

Mr. and Mrs. Moselle Ull, of Cabel county, W. Va., are visiting Mrs. David Garl, of Dixonville.

John Patterson, of Rochester, Pa., is visiting his nephew, William Spearhas, of Mulberry street.

William McClure, of Dixonville, has purchased a farm near Frederickstown and will remove to it soon.

A. M. Fisher is moving into the Chambers house near the M. E. church. He purchased this property recently.

Mrs. William Spearhas, who is ill with fever at Esther, Pa., is improving rapidly, but is still unable to be out.

Selvy Garl, of Dixonville, who has been ill with typhoid fever for some time, is able to be up but is not able to be out.

The Young People's society of the Second U. P. church have arranged to hold an elaborate social and festival at the church this evening.

Sweet Revenge.

"Naw; I ain't working any more, I've lost me job," said the diminutive office boy when he was asked about it. "But I got even, betcher life! I heard the old man telling a feller that I was no good and that he was going to fire me at the end of the week. He said the only thing I could do was to sit on a stool and balance a ruler on the end of my nose.

"Well, when I heard the old man say that he was going to fire me, I just laid low to get even. And I did, betcher life! There was a book agent what had been pestering the life out of the old man, and he was expecting her to call again, so he made a sneak and told me to tell her when she called that he had gone west for good and wasn't coming back.

"Well, just then his wife telephoned him that she was coming down to the office to see him about something, and he told me to tell her when she came to take a seat and wait for him.

"Well, I saw my chance to get even. So when the book agent came in I told her that the old man had left word for her to wait for him. Then when his wife blew in, I told her that the old man had gone west and left word for her that she needn't expect to see him again.

"Geerusalem! Maybe you think the sparks didn't fly then. I waited till the fireworks were over, then I wrote out me resignation, balanced the ruler on me nose for the last time and left."—Detroit Free Press.

ENGLAND'S FIRST SHIP.

Great Harry Was the Country's Premier Fighting Machine.

Of the first ship, properly speaking, of the British navy, known as the Great Harry, the following particulars are given in an old number of the Mechanic's Magazine, dated Oct. 25, 1823:

The Great Harry was built by King Henry VII at a cost of £14,000, and was burned at Woolwich, through accident, in 1553.

Though King Henry, as well as other princes, hired many ships, exclusive of those which the different seaports were obliged to furnish, he seems thus to have been the first king who thought of avoiding this inconvenience by raising such a force as might be at all times sufficient for the service of the state. Historians tell us that he caused his navy, which had been neglected in the preceding reign, to be put in a condition to protect the British coasts against all foreign invasions, and that in the midst of profound peace he always kept up a fleet ready to act.

In August, 1512, the Regent, a ship of 1,000 tons, which was at that time the largest vessel in the British navy, was burned, and to replace it the Great Harry, or, as it was also known, the Henry Grace de Dieu, was built in 1515.

The vessel, of about 1,000 tons burden, was manned by 349 soldiers, 301 marines and 50 gunners. She had four masts and portholes on both decks and in other parts.

Before the time of her construction the cannon were placed above deck and on the prow and poop. One Descharges, a French builder at Brest, is said to have invented portholes.

In a list of the British navy, as it stood on Jan. 5, 1548, the Great Harry is said to have carried 19 brass and 103 iron pieces of ordnance.

The name of the ship is supposed to have been changed in the reign of Edward VI to Edward, which, on Aug. 26, 1552, was reported to be still "in good case to serve," and was ordered "to be grounded and calked once a year to keep it tight."—Cassier's Magazine.

Clay's First Speech.

Henry Clay as a young man was extremely bashful, although he possessed uncommon brightness of intellect and fascinating address, without effort making the little he knew pass for much more. In the early part of his career he settled in Lexington, Va., where he found the society most congenial, though the clients seemed somewhat recalcitrant to the young lawyer. He joined a debating society at length, but for several meetings he remained a silent listener.

One evening, after a lengthy debate, the subject was being put to a vote, when Clay was heard to observe softly to a friend that the matter in question was by no means exhausted. He was at once asked to speak and after some hesitation rose to his feet. Finding himself thus unexpectedly confronted by an audience, he was covered with confusion and began, as he had frequently done in imaginary appeals to the court, "Gentlemen of the jury."

A titter that ran through the audience only served to heighten his embarrassment, and the obnoxious phrase fell from his lips again. Then he gathered himself together and launched into a peroration so brilliantly lucid and impassioned that it carried the house by storm and laid the cornerstone to his future greatness, his first case coming to him as a result of this speech, which some consider the finest he ever made.—Collier's Weekly.

MRS. M'KINLEY GAINS

Condition is Pronounced by Most Encouraging.

THE PRESIDENT WAS CHEERFUL

Arrangements Were to Go Direct to Washington and Not to Canton, as Had Been Unofficially Stated—The President Visited His Uncle.

San Francisco, May 21.—Secretary Cortelyou gave out the following statement about 9 o'clock last night:

"DRS. HIRSCHFELDER AND GIBBONS MET DR. RIXEY AT 8:30 P. M. THEY FIND THAT MRS. M'KINLEY'S IMPROVEMENT HAS CONTINUED THROUGHOUT THE DAY AND THAT HER CODITION TONIGHT IS EXCELLENT. DRS. HIRSCHFELDER, GIBBONS AND RIXEY WILL MEET DR. RIXEY AT 11:30 A. M. TOMORROW."

Mrs. McKinley passed a very good afternoon and the president was very cheerful over the improved condition. The above announcement was made at the Scott residence last night. While Mrs. McKinley did not leave her bed Monday, she passed considerable time propped up and rested well. While no definite date had been set for the president's departure the present arrangements were to go direct to Washington, and not to Canton, as has been unofficially stated.

In spite of the stormy weather Monday the president did not remain indoors. Carriages were summoned about 9 a. m. and the president drove to the residence of his uncle, Benjamin J. McKinley, on Bush street, where he spent about 10 minutes visiting with the family. He then drove to the home of his niece, Mrs. George Morse. His visit was wholly unexpected by Mrs. Morse, who had left the house some time previously to go to the Scott residence. The president returned directly to the Scott house for luncheon. Among the callers on the president Monday was Richard J. Barson, Jr., the young member of the army signal corps who has been appointed to West Point in recognition of his gallantry in saving the lives of several men in the Philippines. He called to thank the president for his appointment.

AUBURN-HAIRED WOMAN FOUND.

Stanley Confessed He Had Lied About Late Rev. Father Phillips.

New York, May 21.—Interest in the tragic death of Rev. Father Phillips, of Hazleton, which had by no means subsided, was made more acute by the bringing to the West Forty-eighth street police station of a woman with auburn hair, who answered the description of the woman whom the police have been looking for and who has been referred to as "Dr. Stanley's wife." She was closeted with Captain Donahue for over four hours and he then took her to lunch. After which the two went back to the station.

The police took extraordinary means to keep the identity of the woman secret. They even went to the extent of denying that she had anything to do with the case of Father Phillips. However, Assistant District Attorney Garvan, who has charge of the case for the district attorney's office, was sent for and talked with the mysterious woman for about an hour and a half. When he had finished the interview he said that the woman was the one Stanley had introduced as his wife and that she might be held as a witness in the case, but that he would not say so positively. He also said:

"I am satisfied that this woman has nothing to do with the case. I shall not give her name because she comes from a very respectable family. I want to shield her because I believe in my heart that she had nothing to do with the case whatever. I questioned her closely and am satisfied that she does not know anything about it."

The other day Stanley cleared Phillips of the charge he at first made, of women being in the room with them.

MANY FIRMS SIGNED.

Machinists' Demands Conceded to About 30,000 Men—Gompers Claimed He Was Pleased.

Washington, May 21.—President O'Connell, of the Machinists' union, said last night that up to 5 o'clock reports showed that 904 firms employing approximately 30,000 men, had signed the agreements for the nine-hour day or made satisfactory arrangements with the local organizations.

Cincinnati, May 21.—President Samuel Gompers, of the American Federation of Labor, gave out a statement regarding the great machinists' strike last night, saying in part:

"The results of the strike thus far are very gratifying to me and victory certainly awaits the strikers. A great number of employers throughout the country has already acceded to the nine-hour day, although not quite as many as I had anticipated. Still, the reports that have reached me are remarkable in their showing a unanimity of action between both union and non-union men, which presages ultimate victory."

UNCLE SAM'S NEW GUN.

Captain Crozier Has Invented a Wire Wound Affair of Great Utility.

Uncle Sam is fortunate in having in his army Captain William Crozier, for that gentleman is probably the leading "gun sharp" in the United States and one of the best in the world. Captain Crozier has just demonstrated his knowledge of heavy ordnance by perfecting a new type of the wire wound gun which presents several points of superiority over others of its kind.

Captain Crozier's new gun consists of a tube of the best forged steel, an envelope of wire wound over the rear portion of the tube abutting at the forward end against a series of rings, an envelope of wire wound upon the forward portion abutting at the front end against a ring and at the rear end against the other rings. Over the rear portion of the gun is placed a jacket with a very slight shrinkage which has a shoulder upon its inner surface near the forward end. A feature of the invention consists of the manner of so locking the parts of the gun that they cannot separate under the severe strain to which it is subjected.

A Cherokee Dish.

An article of food much used by the Cherokees is made from corn. The process is first to soak the corn in strong lye made from hickory ashes, just as white people in the country make hominy. This removes the hulls. The corn is then put into a large mortar made by hollowing out the end of a large log and is pounded by a huge pestle.

As the process of pounding goes on the crushed corn is removed from the mortar and riddled with a sieve made of cane and then fanned in the wind to remove the hulls. The "grit," as the course meal is called, is then replaced in the mortar and pounded into a fine meal. It is then boiled up with cayenne pepper and other ingredients. A small amount of lye is left in the meal, and it has a tendency to preserve it for a long time. However, if the stuff sours, it is regarded as a great delicacy. It is known as "con-a-hanna." The food is sometimes varied by the addition of nuts, which is considered especially fine. With the nuts it is called "ca-nutch."

In the olden times cakes were made of "con-a-hanna" by baking the substance in rudely constructed rock ovens or in hot ashes. These cakes would keep for a long time and, in connection with the wild game, provided nourishment for the Indians on their long hunts. Many of the older Cherokees still use the mortar and pestle to make the dish.—Kansas City Journal.

The Honorable Board.

Sam Rawson occasionally said a good thing, and one of these occasions chanced to be the town meeting. The people of Sam's village could not understand how the money appropriated for the roads had vanished with such poor results.

A stretch of road running past Sam's house was in notoriously poor condition, although Sam declared that he had paid liberally to have it put in good order, and there was general interest when Sam rose to make his statement before the selectmen.

"I'd just like to say one thing," he drawled, heedless of the fact that he had interrupted an indignant neighbor. "I don't want to make any fuss, but I'd just like to ask the honorable board of highwaymen"—

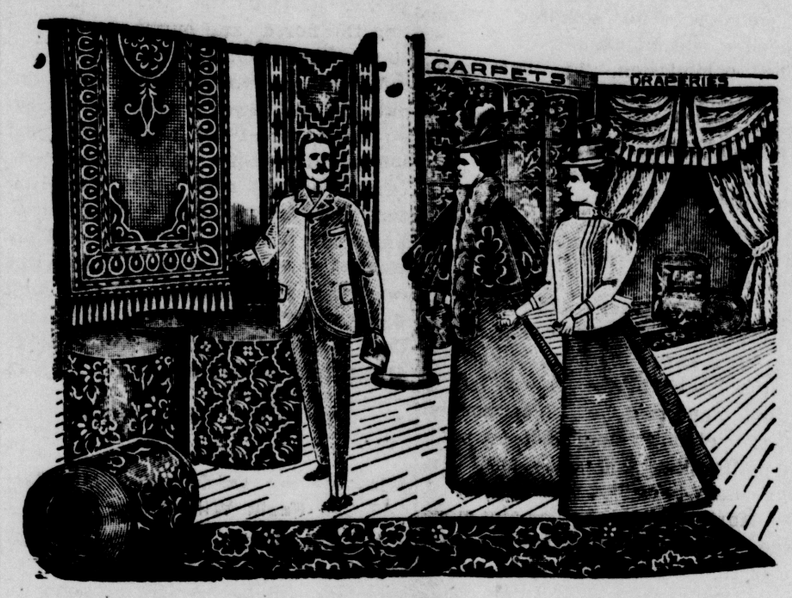

That was as far as he could get. A roar of laughter swept over the town meeting and showed its effects in the red faces of the "highwaymen."—Youth's Companion.

THE S. G. HARD CO.

A Cherokee Dish.

An article of food much used by the Cherokees is made from corn. The process is first to soak the corn in strong lye made from hickory ashes, just as white people in the country make hominy. This removes the hulls. The corn is then put into a large mortar made by hollowing out the end of a large log and is pounded by a huge pestle.

As the process of pounding goes on the crushed corn is removed from the mortar and riddled with a sieve made of cane and then fanned in the wind to remove the hulls. The "grit," as the course meal is called, is then replaced in the mortar and pounded into a fine meal. It is then boiled up with cayenne pepper and other ingredients. A small amount of lye is left in the meal, and it has a tendency to preserve it for a long time. However, if the stuff sours, it is regarded as a great delicacy. It is known as "con-a-hanna." The food is sometimes varied by the addition of nuts, which is considered especially fine. With the nuts it is called "ca-nutch."

In the olden times cakes were made of "con-a-hanna" by baking the substance in rudely constructed rock ovens or in hot ashes. These cakes would keep for a long time and, in connection with the wild game, provided nourishment for the Indians on their long hunts. Many of the older Cherokees still use the mortar and pestle to make the dish.—Kansas City Journal.

The Honorable Board.

Sam Rawson occasionally said a good thing, and one of these occasions chanced to be the town meeting. The people of Sam's village could not understand how the money appropriated for the roads had vanished with such poor results.

A stretch of road running past Sam's house was in notoriously poor condition, although Sam declared that he had paid liberally to have it put in good order, and there was general interest when Sam rose to make his statement before the selectmen.

"I'd just like to say one thing," he drawled, heedless of the fact that he had interrupted an indignant neighbor. "I don't want to make any fuss, but I'd just like to ask the honorable board of highwaymen"—

That was as far as he could get. A roar of laughter swept over the town meeting and showed its effects in the red faces of the "highwaymen."—Youth's Companion.

THE PROSPEROUS SOUTH.

The demand for a reorganization or regeneration of the Democratic party is loudest and strongest in the south, where, ever since there has been a Democratic party, the people have been unswerving in their fidelity to its principles, or what passed for principles. But there has been an industrial awakening in Dixie. The prosperity that has swept across the country has found a firm foothold there. New business methods have come in along with new capital and new men and political traditions are rudely trampled upon. The wisest Democrats in the south begin to see that, if their party is to continue supreme there, it must have a better foundation than mere antagonism to the party in power. The south is for sound money, expansion and progress; the Democracy of the north is for a Bryan dollar, contraction and retrogression. Hence the demand for political regeneration.

The way is easy, if the south will adopt it, as a larger and larger section seems disposed to do each year. Abandon a party that has outlived its usefulness and clings only to dead issues, and let the voters cast their fortunes with the party which has made possible the new south and unexampled prosperity throughout the nation. The Democratic party is past regeneration, and recognition of the fact has already broken political lines in the once solid south. The breach bids fair to widen greatly in the next four years.

ORDER IN THE PHILIPPINES.

General Fred D. Grant, who is connected with the administration in the Philippines, is now in this country on a visit. He brings most gratifying reports of peace and good will existing among the people in the new American possessions. In his own district, long known as the most lawless in the islands, General Grant says there is no longer a robber band in existence, a condition hitherto unknown in the whole history of the Filipino people. The general quotes a Spanish planter, with large estates upon which he had not dared to live for over five years. Now he is moving his family to the country in perfect safety and will cultivate twice as much land as ever before. Where it was formerly dangerous for a white man to travel, except he went armed and with an armed escort, gentlemen now ride about alone, on horseback, by day or night, without revolvers or attendants.

Anarchy and lawlessness have passed and peace and freedom now have a home in the Philippines. The country has local government, courts and schools and is building roads. The Filipinos and civilization have gained more in a brief period of American rule than in centuries of Spanish misrule. How thoughtful men can maintain that there is injustice or wrong in giving the islanders stable government and starting them on the road to progress, instead of turning them over to the prey of designing, half civilized scoundrels, like Aguinaldo and his associates, passes understanding.

The Pan-American exposition at Buffalo has been officially declared open. It is a great show, and not only the city on Lake Erie, but the whole country, has reason to be proud of it.

If Andrew Carnegie keeps on giving $5,000,000 and $10,000,000 at a time he may escape the fate which he says is in store for millionaires without philanthropic ideas. Andrew, it will be remembered, has declared that the man who dies rich dies disgraced.

The continued favorable reports from the bedside of Mrs. McKinley are cheering news, and the nation receives them with thankfulness and satisfaction.

There is a poet in Chicago who gets $1,000 a year. He does not get it out of his poetry, however, but from an office that he holds.

LUCKIEST MAN IN TOWN

Howard Marshall Loses His Watch But Gets It Back Again.

Howard, better known as "Shorty" Marshall, is now considered by his friends to be the luckiest man in town. Saturday afternoon he had his watch stolen from his pocket while talking with some friends at the corner of Second and Union streets. He did not miss the watch until he was one square away from the corner, and when they returned they asked him where his watch was. He replied that he had pawned it for a shoe-shine. After a short time he explained that he had lost it and was of the opinion that it had been taken by a party named Jesse, but he would not give the last name. The watch was turner over to an officer by the party who took it. He said it was done in a joke. The watch was returned to Marshall.

Stone Crusher Arrives—The stone crusher owned by the county was brought to the city yesterday from Lisbon and unloaded from the car this morning. It will be used to crush stone for the new reservoir, it having been decided to use crushed stone instead of gravel.

CONTRACTORS' BOND

Meeting of Commission Enlivened By Much Discussion—Proposed Sanitary Sewer Extension.

The sewer commission met yesterday afternoon, in a meeting adjourned from Saturday, to consider the bonds which Irwin Bros. offered on the storm water sewer. City Solicitor Wells declared the bond presented did not protect the city enough in case of damage suits. The specifications require a particular clause to indemnify the city in case of damage to property or health.

Mr. Irwin stated that the bond includes everything they specified in the contract. The solicitor recommended a special caluse.

The commission, by unanimous vote, insisted on Mr. Irwin's securing a bond which would make provision for all indemnity. Mr. Irwin said that he could obtain the bond if it were positively required.

A letter was then read from ex-City Engineer Riggs in regard to claims of Irwin Bros. for extra pay on deep cuts. Mr. Irwin says there was no plan presented when the contract was made for a sewer on Avondale street. Mr. Riggs said this sewer was in the original plans and he recommended that the claims should not be paid. The matter was laid aside until Mr. Riggs comes to accept the sewer.

Mr. Martin asked whether any more of the sanitary sewer could be built at this time. Mr. Bowers said there was no money, and so the line could not be built now. After a great deal of talk the matter was laid over.

FREIGHT CARS WRECKED

A Bad Smash in the Wellsville Yards This Morning.

The eastbound freight train on the river division was wrecked this morning at the lower end of the Wellsville yards. Two freight cars were entirely demolished and their contents scattered over the ground. No one was hurt.

The wreck was caused by the breaking of a flange on one of the car wheels.

VICIOUS DOG SLAUGHTERED

The Brute Had Bitten a Child of George Frederick—Wound is Quite Serious.

A child, daughter of George L. Frederick, of West Market street, was attacked a few days ago by a bulldog owned by Mrs. Hamill. The matter was reported to the police and an appeal made to have the dog killed. The officers referred the case to Mayor Davidson, who, in turn, requested that a physician examine the wound inflicted by the brute.

This morning Dr. Bailey reported that the child was bitten severely on the leg, and Officer Morris was instructed to kill the dog. The carcass was incinerated at the garbage furnace.

KILLED BY A TRAIN

Richard Crow Met a Shocking Death at Brilliant Saturday.

The terribly mutilated body of Richard Crow, of Brilliant, was fonud on the C. & P. tracks near the Brilloant depot at a late hour Saturday night. It is thought he sat down on the ties and fell asleep. Crow was 41 years of age and leaves a wife and two children.

The auction sale of lots at Grandview yesterday afternoon was well attended. Fourteen lots were sold, all bringing good prices. The sale will be continued on next Saturday, at which time it is expected even a larger batch will be disposed of.

BLOODY AND DRUNK.

A Smith's Ferry Couple in a Sad Predicament.

Steubenville, May 21.—Sheriff Porter and family were out driving yesterday and when a short distance from Mingo they found a man and woman lying by the roadside and a horse hitched to a buggy a short distance from them. On examination he found that they were both bloody and drunk. He gathered them up, took them to Mingo and turned them over to the marshal, who locked them up and the horse and buggy were taken to the livery stable.

When they were somewhat straightened up they were released and started down street for their horse and buggy with their arms lovingly entwined around each other, declaring that they would drink and eat, live, bleed and die for each other. They started down the river in the buggy rejoicing, with four quarts of "John Barleycorn" in the buggy. It is said they were from Smith's Ferry, their destination not known.

TO WED TOMORROW.

Miss Martha Daniels and Mr. Carl Faulk Will Marry.

Mr. Carl Faulk and Miss Martha Daniels, two popular young people of this city will be married at noon tomorrow by Rev. C. G. Jordan. They have a large number of friends in the city who wish them much happiness.

After a tour through the east they will return to this city where they will make their future home.

Fatally Shot Himself.

New Castle, Pa., May 21.—Alderman Benjamin S. Leslie, a leading Republican politician of this city, shot and fatally wounded himself last evening in an attempt at suicide. He is 40 years of age, a son of the late Hon. J. P. Leslie and belongs to one of the leading families of the city.

Found a Mare's Nest.

A brigadier general or major general is entitled to the keep of three horses at Uncle Sam's expense; a colonel, lieutenant colonel, major or captain to two only.

The forage allowance is often commuted by turning over the same to the quartermaster, and this practice once betrayed a suspicious new member of the house into a curious blunder. He announced that he had discovered that "officers of the army are selling the forage allowed to them, and one such case I am prepared to cite from the records of the war department, a case in which the oats and hay were transferred, doubtless for a consideration, to a person named Q. M. Corral."

There was an exchange of looks and winks among his astonished hearers, and then an old member kindly rose and said, "I presume, Mr. Speaker, that the memorandum referred to by my distinguished friend refers to a transfer of forage, in the ordinary course of business, to the quartermaster's corral."—Buffalo Commercial.

The Has Beens.

They met again in after years by chance at the door of a circus tent, the judge and the middle aged woman who had been Maud Muller.

"Great scott," muttered the judge to himself as he noted her sallow face, faded hair, stubby fingers with the marks of the washboard upon them and the group of slatternly children she was angrily trying to induce the ticket taker to pass in free, "what a lucky escape I had!"

"Merciful gracious," she mused inwardly, looking at his bald head, watery eyes, double chin and protuberant stomach, "and I once wanted to marry that man!"

They passed in, with their respective noses perceptibly elevated and were listening a few minutes later to the time honored jokes of the clown.—Chicago Tribune.

Breaking the News.

A Great Sporting News Journal.

The illustrated special sporting section of the Sunday Chicago Record-Herald thoroughly deserves the attention of everyone interested in sporting news. It is always beautifully illustrated and embraces four full pages covering with the thoroughness that satisfies to the utmost the whole realm of sports. Baseball news, racing news, bowling news, cycling news, pugilistic news, golf news, yachting news—all the sporting news—is given with the degree of fullness and interest to be expected of the newspaper which combines the very complete facilities of these two great metropolitan newspapers, The Chicago Record and the Chicago Times-Herald. The sporting page of the daily issue is also exceptionally popular—a self-evident fact to those who have noticed the general vogue of the Chicago Record-Herald among sportsmen.

Mount Marcy.

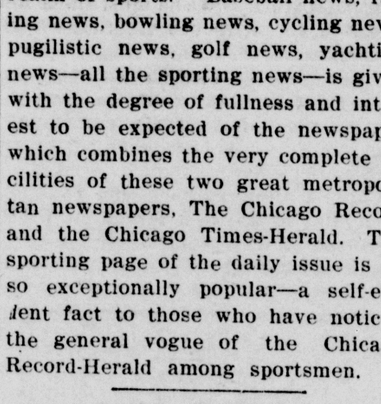

Mount Marcy, the highest mountain in the Adirondacks, is very uneasy, with volcanic tendency. This mountain is one of the curiosities of the Adirondack section, and it is said to be the first mountain in the world to have received the cooling breezes after the chaos period, and to this fact is attributed the continued salubrity of the air and general healthfulness of the Adirondack mountains.

Forever Dry.

There is a youngster in Girard college who combines the poetic instinct with a keen sense of humor. He is not a close student—in fact, he regards books as instruments of torture. One of the professors picked up a textbook belonging to him the other day and found on the fly leaf this bit of verse, which no doubt expressed the student's opinion of it:

Should there be another flood,
For refuge hither fly,
And should the whole world be submerged
This book would still be dry.

Mr. Irwin stated that the bond includes everything they specified in the contract. The solicitor recommended a special caluse.

The commission, by unanimous vote, insisted on Mr. Irwin's securing a bond which would make provision for all indemnity. Mr. Irwin said that he could obtain the bond if it were positively required.

A letter was then read from ex-City Engineer Riggs in regard to claims of Irwin Bros. for extra pay on deep cuts. Mr. Irwin says there was no plan presented when the contract was made for a sewer on Avondale street. Mr. Riggs said this sewer was in the original plans and he recommended that the claims should not be paid. The matter was laid aside until Mr. Riggs comes to accept the sewer.

Mr. Martin asked whether any more of the sanitary sewer could be built at this time. Mr. Bowers said there was no money, and so the line could not be built now. After a great deal of talk the matter was laid over.

FREIGHT CARS WRECKED

A Bad Smash in the Wellsville Yards This Morning.

The eastbound freight train on the river division was wrecked this morning at the lower end of the Wellsville yards. Two freight cars were entirely demolished and their contents scattered over the ground. No one was hurt.

The wreck was caused by the breaking of a flange on one of the car wheels.

Postmaster's Salary Raised.

The salary of the postmaster of this city has been increased from $1,900 to $2,000.

VICIOUS DOG SLAUGHTERED

The Brute Had Bitten a Child of George Frederick—Wound is Quite Serious.

A child, daughter of George L. Frederick, of West Market street, was attacked a few days ago by a bulldog owned by Mrs. Hamill. The matter was reported to the police and an appeal made to have the dog killed. The officers referred the case to Mayor Davidson, who, in turn, requested that a physician examine the wound inflicted by the brute.

This morning Dr. Bailey reported that the child was bitten severely on the leg, and Officer Morris was instructed to kill the dog. The carcass was incinerated at the garbage furnace.

KILLED BY A TRAIN

14 LOTS SOLD

At the Auction at Grandview Yesterday at Good Prices.

The auction sale of lots at Grandview yesterday afternoon was well attended. Fourteen lots were sold, all bringing good prices. The sale will be continued on next Saturday, at which time it is expected even a larger batch will be disposed of.

BLOODY AND DRUNK.

A Smith's Ferry Couple in a Sad Predicament.

Steubenville, May 21.—Sheriff Porter and family were out driving yesterday and when a short distance from Mingo they found a man and woman lying by the roadside and a horse hitched to a buggy a short distance from them. On examination he found that they were both bloody and drunk. He gathered them up, took them to Mingo and turned them over to the marshal, who locked them up and the horse and buggy were taken to the livery stable.

When they were somewhat straightened up they were released and started down street for their horse and buggy with their arms lovingly entwined around each other, declaring that they would drink and eat, live, bleed and die for each other. They started down the river in the buggy rejoicing, with four quarts of "John Barleycorn" in the buggy. It is said they were from Smith's Ferry, their destination not known.

TO WED TOMORROW.

Miss Martha Daniels and Mr. Carl Faulk Will Marry.

After a tour through the east they will return to this city where they will make their future home.

Fatally Shot Himself.

New Castle, Pa., May 21.—Alderman Benjamin S. Leslie, a leading Republican politician of this city, shot and fatally wounded himself last evening in an attempt at suicide. He is 40 years of age, a son of the late Hon. J. P. Leslie and belongs to one of the leading families of the city.

New Members to Initiate.

The grocery and butcher clerks' union will initiate six new candidates at their meeting tonight. A smoker and social will be held after the regular business is transacted.

Found a Mare's Nest.

A brigadier general or major general is entitled to the keep of three horses at Uncle Sam's expense; a colonel, lieutenant colonel, major or captain to two only.

The forage allowance is often commuted by turning over the same to the quartermaster, and this practice once betrayed a suspicious new member of the house into a curious blunder. He announced that he had discovered that "officers of the army are selling the forage allowed to them, and one such case I am prepared to cite from the records of the war department, a case in which the oats and hay were transferred, doubtless for a consideration, to a person named Q. M. Corral."

There was an exchange of looks and winks among his astonished hearers, and then an old member kindly rose and said, "I presume, Mr. Speaker, that the memorandum referred to by my distinguished friend refers to a transfer of forage, in the ordinary course of business, to the quartermaster's corral."—Buffalo Commercial.

The Has Beens.

They met again in after years by chance at the door of a circus tent, the judge and the middle aged woman who had been Maud Muller.

"Great scott," muttered the judge to himself as he noted her sallow face, faded hair, stubby fingers with the marks of the washboard upon them and the group of slatternly children she was angrily trying to induce the ticket taker to pass in free, "what a lucky escape I had!"

"Merciful gracious," she mused inwardly, looking at his bald head, watery eyes, double chin and protuberant stomach, "and I once wanted to marry that man!"

They passed in, with their respective noses perceptibly elevated and were listening a few minutes later to the time honored jokes of the clown.—Chicago Tribune.

Breaking the News.

Jackson—See here, Jimson, that confounded dog of yours kept up a continual howl under my window till 3 o'clock this morning!

Jimson (firmly)—It wasn't my dog, sir!

Jackson—I'm glad to hear that, old man, because I hated to ask you to bury the body. To whom did you sell him?—Brooklyn Life.

Evidence of Genius.

"My wife," said Mr. Snickers, "is a truly remarkable woman."

"We all know that," we said. "But do you wish to specify?"

"Yes, sir. She wrote and sold a story the other day, and she spent only once the money she expected to receive for it."—Harper's Bazar.

A Great Sporting News Journal.

The illustrated special sporting section of the Sunday Chicago Record-Herald thoroughly deserves the attention of everyone interested in sporting news. It is always beautifully illustrated and embraces four full pages covering with the thoroughness that satisfies to the utmost the whole realm of sports. Baseball news, racing news, bowling news, cycling news, pugilistic news, golf news, yachting news—all the sporting news—is given with the degree of fullness and interest to be expected of the newspaper which combines the very complete facilities of these two great metropolitan newspapers, The Chicago Record and the Chicago Times-Herald. The sporting page of the daily issue is also exceptionally popular—a self-evident fact to those who have noticed the general vogue of the Chicago Record-Herald among sportsmen.

Mount Marcy.

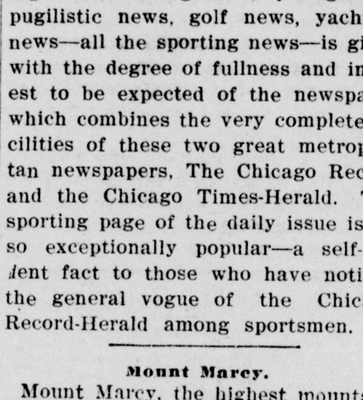

Mount Marcy, the highest mountain in the Adirondacks, is very uneasy, with volcanic tendency. This mountain is one of the curiosities of the Adirondack section, and it is said to be the first mountain in the world to have received the cooling breezes after the chaos period, and to this fact is attributed the continued salubrity of the air and general healthfulness of the Adirondack mountains.

Forever Dry.

There is a youngster in Girard college who combines the poetic instinct with a keen sense of humor. He is not a close student—in fact, he regards books as instruments of torture. One of the professors picked up a textbook belonging to him the other day and found on the fly leaf this bit of verse, which no doubt expressed the student's opinion of it:

Should there be another flood,
For refuge hither fly,
And should the whole world be submerged
This book would still be dry.

SOUTH SIDE

WITHOUT OFFICERS

THAT IS CHESTER'S FIX, THOUGH THEY WERE ELECTED.

Two Weeks Have Passed And No One Has Qualified—Much Dissatisfaction.

The people of Chester are alredy indulging in much vituperative language concerning their lately elected town officers. The election occurred two weeks ago today and yet not a single officer has qualified and the town is without a municipal government.

Just why this is the case the people claim they cannot understand. An attempt was made last evening to get the officers together, but the mayor failed to appear and the councilmen could not be installed. This was the third unsuccessful attempt to have the officers qualify. Now the people are talking of employing legal aid and making an attempt to force them to take the oath of office or resign. Some people even go so far as to say that the installation is purposely delayed, and unless something is done shortly it would seem that interesting developments may follow.

MINOR NEWS OF CHESTER.

Oscar Hobbs is visiting his mother at Fairview.

J. Howard Maxwell is in Pittsburg on business today.

Carl Evans has accepted a position with John J. Marshall at his news stand.

Ex-Sheriff Wilkinson, of New Cumberland, was in Chester looking up tax delinquents today.

J. D. Stewart has drawn up plans for a new residence, which he will erect on Carolina avenue.

O. A. Crael has let the contract for his new six-roomed residence on Indiana avenue to J. W. Johnson.

Charles Boles will leave for Connellsville tomorrow morning, where he will follow his trade as plumber. He had been employed in Chester for more than a year.

George A. Arner and wife and son left on the Queen City today for a short pleasure trip in western Pennsylvania. They will visit Pittsburg, Monessen, Butler and Franklin, Pa., and will not return for several days.

NEED OF PRACTICE

MADE APPARENT IN YESTERDAY'S BALL GAME.

A Different Sort of Exhibition Is Wanted—Base Ball News in General.

A little tme worst exhibition of base ball seen in these parts in many a day was witnessed on the Southside yesterday in the game between the Crockery City and Chester, all of which goes to prove conclusively that talking base ball, becoming enthused and playing the game as it should be played are widely different propositions. The Crockeries need practice and need it badly.

The Chester team, which is made up for the most part of players from East Liverpool, would have had little trouble in winning, had it not been for the errors which were piled up by that aggregation.

The management of the team had evidently not used good judgment in placing the players, as changes were made throughout the entire game. Wheatley pitched an excellent game and had he been given the support he deserved, would have won the game.

However, the Crockeries have a good team, and all they lack is the practice. There was a large crowd present and plenty of enthusiasm, which demonstrates the fact that there is sufficient interest in the national game here to support a good team. Following the score:

Crockeries .....0 3 2 0 1 6 0 2 1—15
Chester .. ....0 3 0 0 5 0 1 0 2—11

Hits—Crockeries, 12; Chester, 14. Errors—Crockeries, 2; Chester 11. Batteries—Crockeries, Barker and Gibson; Chester, Wheatley and Millward.

The East End Grays have arranged for a game with the West End Athletics a week from next Saturday. In the meantime the East Enders are doing hard practice and expect to come out victorious when the time arrives. The game will be played at Columbian park.

The junior nine of the East End Grays wish to challenge any team composed of players 17 years of age or under and will play at any time and for any amount or for the fun only.

Did You Ever Drown a Fly?

Whatever other fate might befall it, naturalists agree that the common house fly cannot be drowned and many experiments have been made in relation thereto.

Included in such tests was the immersion of a fly in a tumbler of clear cold water, with a piece of cardboard to fit the glass and floated so as to keep the insect beneath the surface.

So little did the fly trouble about such an obstacle that it kept near the bottom of the glass, and there for a quarter of an hour ran about as freely as in the fresh air, while it at times crawled across the underside of the pasteboard as on the ceiling of a room.

After being immersed for 20 minutes the fly's movements were less active, and at 25 minutes it turned over on its side, apparently dead. It hung suspended in the water just under the pasteboard, which kept it from rising to the surface, and there it remained for another 25 minutes.

It was then taken out and placed on a sheet of paper, looking to all appearance dead. Its next fate was to be buried by being covered with about half a teaspoonful of fine salt.

At the end of 15 minutes the saline was shaken off, the fly having thus been completely covered either by water or by salt for 65 minutes.

Immediately upon its release the insect trimmed its wings and legs actively for awhile and then flew away.—Pearson's Weekly.

Why Monarchs Were Insane.

Pathologists have often pointed out the fact that physical and mental enervation are apt to go hand in hand, and the intellectual degeneracy of etiquette monarchs may have a good deal to do with the Sybaritism of their palace life.

The plebeian functions which mediæval sovereigns were obliged to perform by proxy included the adjustment of their gala gloves. They had flunkies to remove their cravats and warm their nightshirts, unplait their pigtails and tuck up their bedclothes around their shoulders. In the morning courtiers competed for the honor of holding their washbasin. Peers of the realm waited on bended knees to buckle their shoes. If the inheritor of a legitimate throne lifted a spoon to break an egg, lynx eyed lackeys anticipated his needs with the agility of trained conjurers. Like his food, his information on current topics was served ready dressed and cooked, till he turned into a masticating machine and repeater of conventional twaddle.—Lippincott's.

Saved Each Other.

A short time ago a guard on one of the Northern expresses while at a big station in the midlands had been talking to the engine driver. Presently he stepped aside and gave his "Right away!" when a gentleman who was late sprang on to the footboard while the train was in motion and tried to obtain admission to one of the compartments.

As the carriage came along the guard seized him by the coat and pulled him off, remarking that he must think himself lucky, for he had practically saved his life.

As this conversation was going on the guard's van came by, and the guard, with that gracefulness acquired by constant practice, sailed majestically on to his van.

The gentleman, who had taken in the situation, thereupon seized him by the coat and pulled him off, saying as the train sped away:

"One good turn deserves another. You saved my life; I have saved yours. Now we are quits."—London Telegraph.

He Got Off.

The wife of a German farmhand in Ohio was taken sick and finally died, the husband, of course, leaving his work for several days in consequence. Two weeks later he appeared at the house of his employer and asked to be relieved from work for a couple of days, when the following conversation took place:

"I vould like to get off for apout two tays."

"I can't spare you unless it is absolutely necessary. You know you lost several days two weeks ago, and we are behind in the work. What is the necessity for your getting off?" inquired the farmer.

"Vell, I vas to be married."

"Why, Fritz, your wife died only two weeks ago, and now you are about to get married again? I do not understand that."

"Vell," replied the German, "I don't hold spite long."

The farmer dismissed the case without prejudice.

Pretty Far Off.

A summer resident in a New Hampshire village, a lady who, in Horace Walpole's phrase, "sits at the top of the world," was making her first friendly call of the season upon the family of an old widower.

Only the father was at home, one of the girls being absent on a visit to the other sister, who had been married during the past winter. Naturally the talk turned on the daughters.

"Yes," said the father; "Mary made out real well. But I don' know's I'll ever work Lizabeth off. There's a young man been comin here steady now for two year, an he's no further on yet, ma'am, than me an you."—Youth's Companion.

Etiquette In 1624.

Here is a curious extract from the court regulations of the Hofburg for the year 1624 on the etiquette to be observed by officers when invited to the royal table. The regulation begins by stating that officers usually behave under such circumstances "with great politeness and good breeding, like true and worthy cavaliers," but that the emperor thinks it necessary to issue the following directions for the use of inexperienced cadets:

"1. Officers should come to the palace handsomely dressed and not enter the room in a half drunken state.

"2. When they are at table, they should not rock about on their chairs nor sit back and stretch out their legs.

"3. They should not drink after each mouthful, as by so doing they will very soon get drunk, nor drink more than half a glass at a time, and before drinking they should wipe their lips and moustachios.

"4. They should not put their hands in the dishes nor throw bones under the table.

"5. They should not lick their fingers nor drink so brutally as to fall off their chairs."

Because She Loved Him So.

"You do not care for me!" he cried despairingly. "You do not believe in my love!"

"On the contrary," replied the up to date girl, "I am giving you the best possible evidence that I do."

"But you refuse to marry me," he said.

"And why?" was asked, with the air of one who thinks she has been deeply wronged. "It is because I believe you love me and I care enough for you not to make you miserable. Nothing could be more unselfish than my action. You are poor. You could not supply me with those luxuries that I crave, and the fact that you had to deny them to me would make you unhappy. The greater your love the more wretched you would be in such circumstances, and it is to save you from this unhappiness that I refuse you. I shall sacrifice myself by marrying some one with lots of money, but it will be for you—all for you."—Chicago Post.

Dodging Cannon Shot.

"Last Friday Lucy (Mrs. Knox) dined at General Washington's. Last Saturday, let it be remembered to the honor and skill of the British troops, they fired 104 cannon shot at our works at not a greater distance than half point blank shot—and did what? Why, scratched a man's face with the splinters of a rail fence. I have had the pleasure of dodging these heretofore engines of terror with great success, nor am I afraid they will hit me unless directed by the hand of Providence."—From "A Soldier of the Revolution," by Noah Brooks.

One Woman's Treasure.

I read in one of the "tit-bit" papers that "one good lady is said to treasure still the flounce of a dress" which the late Duke of Coburg "accidentally trod on and tore" when on a ceremonial visit to Lerwick, N. B., in 1882.. One thinks at once of Calverley's lines:

A clod—a piece of orange peel—
The end of a cigar—
When trod on by a princely heel,
How beautiful they are!

HARKEN YE

To the Voice of East Liverpool People.

If you will but listen to your friends and neighbors, they will tell you how the pains and aches of a bad back, the annoyance of urinary troubles, the nervousness, the restlessness which comes from kidney ills can be relieved and cured. Read what one East Liverpool citizen says:

Mrs. Mary Hewitt, of St. George street, says: "I read in the Pittsburg Press an account of some one who had been cured of kidney complaint in that city by using Doan's Kidney Pills. The fact of such an account being published of one living in almost the same place had a tendency to convince me that there must be some truth in it, and I determined to try them myself. Some years before this I had a severe attack of rheumatism; for three months I lay helpless and after that I had trouble with my kidneys. For a year I suffered severely. My back was so bad that it felt as if I had a boil where the kidneys are. I could not bend, lean back against a chair or reach up. I could not lie on my back, and about every move I made caused pain. I had taken numerous remedies, but none brought the desired relief. Well, Doan's Kidney Pills, procured at the W. & W. pharmacy, did what no other remedy was able to do. I took them regularly for a short time and found them all the Pittsburg paper stated them to be. I can heartily recommend them. After using them I was rid of backaches and other symptoms of kidney trouble."

Sold for 50 cents per box by all dealers. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States.

Too Many Risks.

They had come up from lower Maryland—man and wife—to have their tintypes taken by a traveling operator at the Marlboro fair. The husband thought it well to have a fair understanding of the matter beforehand, and so he entered the gallery on wheels and asked:

"How much fur two pictur's?"

"Fifty cents," was the reply.

"Will you take a prime coonskin in payment?"

"Yes."

"Will we look nateral?"

"You will."

"Kin I stand with a knife in my hand, as if ready to tackle a b'ar?"

"You can."

"Kin the ole woman hev her hands clasped and her eyes rolled up like some of them rich folks?"

"If she wants to."

"And yo'll take all the risks?"

"What risks do you mean?"

"Waal, I hain't purty nor proud, but the ole woman is, and yo'll hev to take a twist out of her nose and shorten up her chin a leetle, or she'll git right up arter seein the pictur' and light on yo' like a turkey on a 'tater bug. The last feller that was here only survived two days arter takin her pictur', and I thought it was only squar' to tell yo' 'bout it."

The artist declined to take the risks, and the man picked up his coonskin and went out, saying:

"Can't blame yo', stranger. Can't blame yo' a bit. Yo' don't want to be tore all to pieces and hev this wagin wrecked fur the sake of one coonskin. I'll git the ole woman seven yards of kalliker, and she'll hev to roll up her eyes at that and let the pictur' go."—Washington Post.

Coins and Conductors.

A new industry among street car conductors was revealed to a patient passenger on an up town Sixth avenue car the other day. The conductor, who was in a talkative mood, opened conversation by exhibiting a coin of a mintage which commands a premium and remarking that many such coins, which were carried as pocket pieces, came into the hands of himself and his fellow conductors in the course of a year, either from passengers who were temporarily oblivious more or less of their surroundings and their actions or from men who had gone broke and had to get up town.

From that he passed to the topic of bogus coins, ingenuously confessing that conductors who took bad quarters or half dollars by mistake and were too conscientious to try to work them off on passengers sold them at the car house to other conductors at a discount of 5 cents. The squeamish conductors, he explained, had rather lose 5 cents than to try to pass the coins or to lose the face value of the coins The other conductors, he said, were always ready to make the 5 cents and there were of course always passengers available to whom the coins might be given in change.—New York Sun.

Both at Rest.

"I suppose," said the stonecutter, "you'll want 'Requiescat in pace' at the bottom of your wife's monument?"

"No," replied the bereaved Mr. Peck; "make it 'Requiesco in pace.'"

"That means 'I rest in peace,' doesn't it?"

"Yes, and I want you to sign that 'Husband.'"—Catholic Standard and Times.

Adversity's Round Robin.

"This is a cold world. A man can't get a job unless he has a good suit of clothes."

"Well, that's logic."

A Well Dressed Pauper.

In all large cities there is a way of getting rid of undesirable persons by means of giving them a "pauper's pass" to some city to which they want to go.

It seems that a lawyer who is quite well known about town and who, like many other persons, is not averse to traveling on a free ticket had made several requests to a certain official for a pass to New York. He had been refused a number of times, but with a persistence worthy of a better cause he continued to bore his official friend. Finally he was supplied with the magic pasteboard, and without looking at it he went to the railroad station and paid for his seat in the parlor car.

When the conductor came along, the lawyer, who, by the way, is a man of rather imposing appearance, was reading a paper and with the nonchalance supposed to be second nature to those who never pay their carfare held out his pass, never even glancing at the conductor. That official took the pass, read it carefully, looked at the holder of it and then examined the pass again with considerable care. The lawyer, noticing that the conductor seemed to be giving the pass more than ordinary attention, stared at the official with a manner that indicated that he might at least be a director and asked with considerable warmth, "Anything the matter with that pass?"

The conductor looked at his questioner in a quizzical way and then said, "No; the pass is all right, but you are certainly the best dressed pauper I ever saw."—Boston Transcript.

How Moody Got Out of It.

Many were the interesting experiences belonging to the first Northfield conference called by D. L. Moody. One especially shows Mr. Moody himself in his varying phases. It was the conversation hour at noon, and about 100 men were sitting under the tent on Round Top

Mr. Moody, leaning sturdily against the tent pole, led the meeting. Suddenly there came from him the plump question, "Brethren, how many of you have so grown in grace that you can bear to have your faults told?"

Many hands went up. Quick as a flash, but neither sharply nor insultingly, Mr. Moody turned to a young minister and said:

"Brother, you have spoken 13 times in 12 days here and perhaps shut out 12 other good men from speaking."

It was true. The young man had been presuming and officious. He had held up his hand, but he could not bear to be chidden, and now he stoutly defended himself, only making matters worse. Then another minister broke forth and berated Mr. Moody for his bluntness. The latter blushed, but listened until the reproof was done. Then he suggestively covered his face and spoke through his fingers, "Brethren, I admit the fault my friend charges me with; but, brethren, I did not hold up my hand!"—Youth's Companion.

To Cure Insomnia.

An English physician of distinction gives these suggestions for cure of insomnia: In cases where the patient sleeps for an hour or two, then wakens with a start and cannot go to sleep again the physician recommends that a hot water compress be laid on the abdomen. When one cannot go to sleep on retiring and is unable to dismiss thoughts that have occupied the day, it is advised that the patient keep his feet in water as hot as he can bear comfortably for ten minutes before going to bed. He should then put on a pair of thin cotton hose wrung out of cold water and over those a pair of woolen ones. A more powerful remedy is a mustard sitz bath, with the proportion of a teacupful of mustard to a gallon of hot water. He should remain seated in the bath from 10 to 20 minutes. In many cases a reclining bath in tepid water is useful as a sedative.

The Funniest Story?

Sir Wilfrid Laurier once said that he considered the following the funniest story in the world. Do you agree with him?

A gentleman was once being taken over an idiot asylum. He asked an attendant how they knew when an idiot was considered to be sufficiently restored to sanity to be discharged.

"Oh," said the attendant, "it is easily managed. We take them into a yard where there are several troughs. We turn on the taps and then give the idiots buckets to bail out the water and empty the troughs. Many of them go on bailing away while the tap keeps running, but them that isn't idiots stops the tap."

Subsequent Reflection.

"Oh, what a beautiful water lily!"

No sooner had the maiden uttered these words than Archie Sixcap resolutely waded out after it.

He sank in mud up to his waist at once.

But he didn't get the lily.

It was still yards away from him and in deeper mud.

"Fools rush in," he muttered savagely to himself as he turned and began slopping his way back to shore, "where angels have too darned much sense to tread!"—Chicago Tribune.

In the Business.

"Children," said Aunt Mary, "you have a new little brother. He came this morning while you were asleep."

"Did he?" exclaimed the eldest. "Then I know who brought him."

"Who was it?" asked Aunt Mary.

"Why, the milkman, of course. I saw it on his cart, 'Families supplied daily.'"—London Tit-Bits.

In a Safe Place.

Among his trusted and efficient attaches in the office of the street railway headquarters is one Millikin. He also has a partnership interest in a north side grocery. After keeping cases on cars and their operators each day Mr. Millikin waits on customers at the grocery store. Saturday night is usually a busy one, and of course everything is done in a hurry. This probably accounts for a slight oversight of Mr. Millikin in filling an order for a little fat girl who came into the store as the kind hearted Millikin was about to close the doors.

"Mister Mil-li-kin, my mamma sent after a quarter's worth of mul-las-siz," said the child.

"All right, little girl. Let's have your bucket," said the genial clerk.

With this the little lady handed over a good sized tin bucket. Mr. Millikin disappeared among some barrels, and after considerable grinding he reappeared.

"There's a big measure, little girl. Do you think you can carry it?"

"Yes, sir," said the maiden as she started toward the door.

"Little girl, where's your money?" said Millikin as he followed up his customer.

"In the bucket, Mr. Mil-li-kin," naively replied the child.—Columbus Dispatch.

From Bad to Worse.

A gentleman was admiring his pigeons the other afternoon, when he heard a curious "thud" and saw one of his birds drop from a window sill to the ground.

Turning round, the gentleman was just in time to see a small boy in the lane drop a catapult and run.

After a short chase the culprit was caught.

"You young scoundrel!" ejaculated the angry owner of the pigeon. "What do you mean by coming and shooting my birds?"

"Please, sir, I didn't mean to do it," whined the captive. "I—I didn't shoot at the pigeon."

"Come, come," said the gentleman, "don't make matters worse. I saw the bird fall, and if you did not aim at it how came you to hit it?"

"Please, sir," blubbered the boy, "the pigeon got in the way. I—I was aiming at the winder."—London Tit-Bits.

Looking Without Seeing.

Perhaps you are an exception to the rule, but if you are not you have probably on many occasions, just after looking at your watch, been forced to acknowledge to a friend who asked you the time that you did not know what it was. Yet you undoubtedly took your timepiece out of your pocket, looked at its face and carefully replaced it in your pocket, showing a logical sequence of thought and a well defined object, which did not, however, result in leaving a sufficiently distinct impression on your mind to satisfy your friend's curiosity as to the hour of the day. The motion was not an involuntary one, like that of the boy who cannot too often admire his first chronometer, nor yet habitual, for few persons are merely in the habit of taking out their watches. One does so only for a specific purpose.

Now, how may this seeming contradiction be accounted for? Perhaps the reason is that not once in ten times does a man look at his watch to see what the actual time is, but rather to learn whether he still has time to accomplish some purpose. He may want to keep an appointment at a certain time or to be sure not to miss a boat or train. When he takes out his watch, therefore, he instinctively looks for the hands in the position called for by that particular moment, and when he sees that they have not yet reached that point he returns the watch to its resting place, with his mind relieved.

The actual position of the hands really plays no part at all in the operation, and so when the time is asked of him he is unable to reply. In other words, he accomplishes the paradoxical feat of intently looking at a thing without really seeing it.

SOUTH SIDE

WITHOUT OFFICERS

THAT IS CHESTER'S FIX, THOUGH THEY WERE ELECTED.

Two Weeks Have Passed And No One Has Qualified—Much Dissatisfaction.

The people of Chester are alredy indulging in much vituperative language concerning their lately elected town officers. The election occurred two weeks ago today and yet not a single officer has qualified and the town is without a municipal government.

Just why this is the case the people claim they cannot understand. An attempt was made last evening to get the officers together, but the mayor failed to appear and the councilmen could not be installed. This was the third unsuccessful attempt to have the officers qualify. Now the people are talking of employing legal aid and making an attempt to force them to take the oath of office or resign. Some people even go so far as to say that the installation is purposely delayed, and unless something is done shortly it would seem that interesting developments may follow.

MINOR NEWS OF CHESTER.

Oscar Hobbs is visiting his mother at Fairview.

J. Howard Maxwell is in Pittsburg on business today.

Carl Evans has accepted a position with John J. Marshall at his news stand.

Ex-Sheriff Wilkinson, of New Cumberland, was in Chester looking up tax delinquents today.

J. D. Stewart has drawn up plans for a new residence, which he will erect on Carolina avenue.

O. A. Crael has let the contract for his new six-roomed residence on Indiana avenue to J. W. Johnson.

Charles Boles will leave for Connellsville tomorrow morning, where he will follow his trade as plumber. He had been employed in Chester for more than a year.

George A. Arner and wife and son left on the Queen City today for a short pleasure trip in western Pennsylvania. They will visit Pittsburg, Monessen, Butler and Franklin, Pa., and will not return for several days.

NEED OF PRACTICE

MADE APPARENT IN YESTERDAY'S BALL GAME.

A Different Sort of Exhibition Is Wanted—Base Ball News in General.

A little tme worst exhibition of base ball seen in these parts in many a day was witnessed on the Southside yesterday in the game between the Crockery City and Chester, all of which goes to prove conclusively that talking base ball, becoming enthused and playing the game as it should be played are widely different propositions. The Crockeries need practice and need it badly.

The Chester team, which is made up for the most part of players from East Liverpool, would have had little trouble in winning, had it not been for the errors which were piled up by that aggregation.

The management of the team had evidently not used good judgment in placing the players, as changes were made throughout the entire game. Wheatley pitched an excellent game and had he been given the support he deserved, would have won the game.

However, the Crockeries have a good team, and all they lack is the practice. There was a large crowd present and plenty of enthusiasm, which demonstrates the fact that there is sufficient interest in the national game here to support a good team. Following the score:

Crockeries .....0 3 2 0 1 6 0 2 1—15
Chester .. ....0 3 0 0 5 0 1 0 2—11

Hits—Crockeries, 12; Chester, 14. Errors—Crockeries, 2; Chester 11. Batteries—Crockeries, Barker and Gibson; Chester, Wheatley and Millward.

The East End Grays have arranged for a game with the West End Athletics a week from next Saturday. In the meantime the East Enders are doing hard practice and expect to come out victorious when the time arrives. The game will be played at Columbian park.

The junior nine of the East End Grays wish to challenge any team composed of players 17 years of age or under and will play at any time and for any amount or for the fun only.

Did You Ever Drown a Fly?

Whatever other fate might befall it, naturalists agree that the common house fly cannot be drowned and many experiments have been made in relation thereto.

Included in such tests was the immersion of a fly in a tumbler of clear cold water, with a piece of cardboard to fit the glass and floated so as to keep the insect beneath the surface.

So little did the fly trouble about such an obstacle that it kept near the bottom of the glass, and there for a quarter of an hour ran about as freely as in the fresh air, while it at times crawled across the underside of the pasteboard as on the ceiling of a room.

After being immersed for 20 minutes the fly's movements were less active, and at 25 minutes it turned over on its side, apparently dead. It hung suspended in the water just under the pasteboard, which kept it from rising to the surface, and there it remained for another 25 minutes.

It was then taken out and placed on a sheet of paper, looking to all appearance dead. Its next fate was to be buried by being covered with about half a teaspoonful of fine salt.

At the end of 15 minutes the saline was shaken off, the fly having thus been completely covered either by water or by salt for 65 minutes.

Immediately upon its release the insect trimmed its wings and legs actively for awhile and then flew away.—Pearson's Weekly.

Why Monarchs Were Insane.

Pathologists have often pointed out the fact that physical and mental enervation are apt to go hand in hand, and the intellectual degeneracy of etiquette monarchs may have a good deal to do with the Sybaritism of their palace life.

The plebeian functions which mediæval sovereigns were obliged to perform by proxy included the adjustment of their gala gloves. They had flunkies to remove their cravats and warm their nightshirts, unplait their pigtails and tuck up their bedclothes around their shoulders. In the morning courtiers competed for the honor of holding their washbasin. Peers of the realm waited on bended knees to buckle their shoes. If the inheritor of a legitimate throne lifted a spoon to break an egg, lynx eyed lackeys anticipated his needs with the agility of trained conjurers. Like his food, his information on current topics was served ready dressed and cooked, till he turned into a masticating machine and repeater of conventional twaddle.—Lippincott's.

Saved Each Other.

A short time ago a guard on one of the Northern expresses while at a big station in the midlands had been talking to the engine driver. Presently he stepped aside and gave his "Right away!" when a gentleman who was late sprang on to the footboard while the train was in motion and tried to obtain admission to one of the compartments.

As the carriage came along the guard seized him by the coat and pulled him off, remarking that he must think himself lucky, for he had practically saved his life.

As this conversation was going on the guard's van came by, and the guard, with that gracefulness acquired by constant practice, sailed majestically on to his van.

The gentleman, who had taken in the situation, thereupon seized him by the coat and pulled him off, saying as the train sped away:

"One good turn deserves another. You saved my life; I have saved yours. Now we are quits."—London Telegraph.

He Got Off.

The wife of a German farmhand in Ohio was taken sick and finally died, the husband, of course, leaving his work for several days in consequence. Two weeks later he appeared at the house of his employer and asked to be relieved from work for a couple of days, when the following conversation took place:

"I vould like to get off for apout two tays."

"I can't spare you unless it is absolutely necessary. You know you lost several days two weeks ago, and we are behind in the work. What is the necessity for your getting off?" inquired the farmer.

"Vell, I vas to be married."

"Why, Fritz, your wife died only two weeks ago, and now you are about to get married again? I do not understand that."

"Vell," replied the German, "I don't hold spite long."

The farmer dismissed the case without prejudice.

Pretty Far Off.

Etiquette In 1624.

Here is a curious extract from the court regulations of the Hofburg for the year 1624 on the etiquette to be observed by officers when invited to the royal table. The regulation begins by stating that officers usually behave under such circumstances "with great politeness and good breeding, like true and worthy cavaliers," but that the emperor thinks it necessary to issue the following directions for the use of inexperienced cadets:

"1. Officers should come to the palace handsomely dressed and not enter the room in a half drunken state.

"2. When they are at table, they should not rock about on their chairs nor sit back and stretch out their legs.

"3. They should not drink after each mouthful, as by so doing they will very soon get drunk, nor drink more than half a glass at a time, and before drinking they should wipe their lips and moustachios.

"4. They should not put their hands in the dishes nor throw bones under the table.

"5. They should not lick their fingers nor drink so brutally as to fall off their chairs."

Because She Loved Him So.

"You do not care for me!" he cried despairingly. "You do not believe in my love!"

"On the contrary," replied the up to date girl, "I am giving you the best possible evidence that I do."

"But you refuse to marry me," he said.

"And why?" was asked, with the air of one who thinks she has been deeply wronged. "It is because I believe you love me and I care enough for you not to make you miserable. Nothing could be more unselfish than my action. You are poor. You could not supply me with those luxuries that I crave, and the fact that you had to deny them to me would make you unhappy. The greater your love the more wretched you would be in such circumstances, and it is to save you from this unhappiness that I refuse you. I shall sacrifice myself by marrying some one with lots of money, but it will be for you—all for you."—Chicago Post.

Dodging Cannon Shot.

"Last Friday Lucy (Mrs. Knox) dined at General Washington's. Last Saturday, let it be remembered to the honor and skill of the British troops, they fired 104 cannon shot at our works at not a greater distance than half point blank shot—and did what? Why, scratched a man's face with the splinters of a rail fence. I have had the pleasure of dodging these heretofore engines of terror with great success, nor am I afraid they will hit me unless directed by the hand of Providence."—From "A Soldier of the Revolution," by Noah Brooks.

One Woman's Treasure.

I read in one of the "tit-bit" papers that "one good lady is said to treasure still the flounce of a dress" which the late Duke of Coburg "accidentally trod on and tore" when on a ceremonial visit to Lerwick, N. B., in 1882.. One thinks at once of Calverley's lines:

A clod—a piece of orange peel—
The end of a cigar—
When trod on by a princely heel,
How beautiful they are!

HARKEN YE

To the Voice of East Liverpool People.

If you will but listen to your friends and neighbors, they will tell you how the pains and aches of a bad back, the annoyance of urinary troubles, the nervousness, the restlessness which comes from kidney ills can be relieved and cured. Read what one East Liverpool citizen says:

Mrs. Mary Hewitt, of St. George street, says: "I read in the Pittsburg Press an account of some one who had been cured of kidney complaint in that city by using Doan's Kidney Pills. The fact of such an account being published of one living in almost the same place had a tendency to convince me that there must be some truth in it, and I determined to try them myself. Some years before this I had a severe attack of rheumatism; for three months I lay helpless and after that I had trouble with my kidneys. For a year I suffered severely. My back was so bad that it felt as if I had a boil where the kidneys are. I could not bend, lean back against a chair or reach up. I could not lie on my back, and about every move I made caused pain. I had taken numerous remedies, but none brought the desired relief. Well, Doan's Kidney Pills, procured at the W. & W. pharmacy, did what no other remedy was able to do. I took them regularly for a short time and found them all the Pittsburg paper stated them to be. I can heartily recommend them. After using them I was rid of backaches and other symptoms of kidney trouble."

Too Many Risks.

They had come up from lower Maryland—man and wife—to have their tintypes taken by a traveling operator at the Marlboro fair. The husband thought it well to have a fair understanding of the matter beforehand, and so he entered the gallery on wheels and asked:

"How much fur two pictur's?"

"Fifty cents," was the reply.

"Will you take a prime coonskin in payment?"

"Yes."

"Will we look nateral?"

"You will."

"Kin I stand with a knife in my hand, as if ready to tackle a b'ar?"

"You can."

"Kin the ole woman hev her hands clasped and her eyes rolled up like some of them rich folks?"

"If she wants to."

"And yo'll take all the risks?"

"What risks do you mean?"

"Waal, I hain't purty nor proud, but the ole woman is, and yo'll hev to take a twist out of her nose and shorten up her chin a leetle, or she'll git right up arter seein the pictur' and light on yo' like a turkey on a 'tater bug. The last feller that was here only survived two days arter takin her pictur', and I thought it was only squar' to tell yo' 'bout it."

The artist declined to take the risks, and the man picked up his coonskin and went out, saying:

"Can't blame yo', stranger. Can't blame yo' a bit. Yo' don't want to be tore all to pieces and hev this wagin wrecked fur the sake of one coonskin. I'll git the ole woman seven yards of kalliker, and she'll hev to roll up her eyes at that and let the pictur' go."—Washington Post.

Coins and Conductors.

A new industry among street car conductors was revealed to a patient passenger on an up town Sixth avenue car the other day. The conductor, who was in a talkative mood, opened conversation by exhibiting a coin of a mintage which commands a premium and remarking that many such coins, which were carried as pocket pieces, came into the hands of himself and his fellow conductors in the course of a year, either from passengers who were temporarily oblivious more or less of their surroundings and their actions or from men who had gone broke and had to get up town.

From that he passed to the topic of bogus coins, ingenuously confessing that conductors who took bad quarters or half dollars by mistake and were too conscientious to try to work them off on passengers sold them at the car house to other conductors at a discount of 5 cents. The squeamish conductors, he explained, had rather lose 5 cents than to try to pass the coins or to lose the face value of the coins The other conductors, he said, were always ready to make the 5 cents and there were of course always passengers available to whom the coins might be given in change.—New York Sun.

Both at Rest.

"I suppose," said the stonecutter, "you'll want 'Requiescat in pace' at the bottom of your wife's monument?"

"No," replied the bereaved Mr. Peck; "make it 'Requiesco in pace.'"

"That means 'I rest in peace,' doesn't it?"

"Yes, and I want you to sign that 'Husband.'"—Catholic Standard and Times.

Adversity's Round Robin.

"This is a cold world. A man can't get a job unless he has a good suit of clothes."

"Well, that's logic."

A Well Dressed Pauper.

In all large cities there is a way of getting rid of undesirable persons by means of giving them a "pauper's pass" to some city to which they want to go.

It seems that a lawyer who is quite well known about town and who, like many other persons, is not averse to traveling on a free ticket had made several requests to a certain official for a pass to New York. He had been refused a number of times, but with a persistence worthy of a better cause he continued to bore his official friend. Finally he was supplied with the magic pasteboard, and without looking at it he went to the railroad station and paid for his seat in the parlor car.

When the conductor came along, the lawyer, who, by the way, is a man of rather imposing appearance, was reading a paper and with the nonchalance supposed to be second nature to those who never pay their carfare held out his pass, never even glancing at the conductor. That official took the pass, read it carefully, looked at the holder of it and then examined the pass again with considerable care. The lawyer, noticing that the conductor seemed to be giving the pass more than ordinary attention, stared at the official with a manner that indicated that he might at least be a director and asked with considerable warmth, "Anything the matter with that pass?"

The conductor looked at his questioner in a quizzical way and then said, "No; the pass is all right, but you are certainly the best dressed pauper I ever saw."—Boston Transcript.

How Moody Got Out of It.

Many were the interesting experiences belonging to the first Northfield conference called by D. L. Moody. One especially shows Mr. Moody himself in his varying phases. It was the conversation hour at noon, and about 100 men were sitting under the tent on Round Top

Mr. Moody, leaning sturdily against the tent pole, led the meeting. Suddenly there came from him the plump question, "Brethren, how many of you have so grown in grace that you can bear to have your faults told?"

Many hands went up. Quick as a flash, but neither sharply nor insultingly, Mr. Moody turned to a young minister and said:

"Brother, you have spoken 13 times in 12 days here and perhaps shut out 12 other good men from speaking."

It was true. The young man had been presuming and officious. He had held up his hand, but he could not bear to be chidden, and now he stoutly defended himself, only making matters worse. Then another minister broke forth and berated Mr. Moody for his bluntness. The latter blushed, but listened until the reproof was done. Then he suggestively covered his face and spoke through his fingers, "Brethren, I admit the fault my friend charges me with; but, brethren, I did not hold up my hand!"—Youth's Companion.

To Cure Insomnia.

An English physician of distinction gives these suggestions for cure of insomnia: In cases where the patient sleeps for an hour or two, then wakens with a start and cannot go to sleep again the physician recommends that a hot water compress be laid on the abdomen. When one cannot go to sleep on retiring and is unable to dismiss thoughts that have occupied the day, it is advised that the patient keep his feet in water as hot as he can bear comfortably for ten minutes before going to bed. He should then put on a pair of thin cotton hose wrung out of cold water and over those a pair of woolen ones. A more powerful remedy is a mustard sitz bath, with the proportion of a teacupful of mustard to a gallon of hot water. He should remain seated in the bath from 10 to 20 minutes. In many cases a reclining bath in tepid water is useful as a sedative.

The actual position of the hands really plays no part at all in the operation, and so when the time is asked of him he is unable to reply. In other words, he accomplishes the paradoxical feat of intently looking at a thing without really seeing it.

THE PROSPEROUS SOUTH.

The demand for a reorganization or regeneration of the Democratic party is loudest and strongest in the south, where, ever since there has been a Democratic party, the people have been unswerving in their fidelity to its principles, or what passed for principles. But there has been an industrial awakening in Dixie. The prosperity that has swept across the country has found a firm foothold there. New business methods have come in along with new capital and new men and political traditions are rudely trampled upon. The wisest Democrats in the south begin to see that, if their party is to continue supreme there, it must have a better foundation than mere antagonism to the party in power. The south is for sound money, expansion and progress; the Democracy of the north is for a Bryan dollar, contraction and retrogression. Hence the demand for political regeneration.

The way is easy, if the south will adopt it, as a larger and larger section seems disposed to do each year. Abandon a party that has outlived its usefulness and clings only to dead issues, and let the voters cast their fortunes with the party which has made possible the new south and unexampled prosperity throughout the nation. The Democratic party is past regeneration, and recognition of the fact has already broken political lines in the once solid south. The breach bids fair to widen greatly in the next four years.

ORDER IN THE PHILIPPINES.

General Fred D. Grant, who is connected with the administration in the Philippines, is now in this country on a visit. He brings most gratifying reports of peace and good will existing among the people in the new American possessions. In his own district, long known as the most lawless in the islands, General Grant says there is no longer a robber band in existence, a condition hitherto unknown in the whole history of the Filipino people. The general quotes a Spanish planter, with large estates upon which he had not dared to live for over five years. Now he is moving his family to the country in perfect safety and will cultivate twice as much land as ever before. Where it was formerly dangerous for a white man to travel, except he went armed and with an armed escort, gentlemen now ride about alone, on horseback, by day or night, without revolvers or attendants.

Anarchy and lawlessness have passed and peace and freedom now have a home in the Philippines. The country has local government, courts and schools and is building roads. The Filipinos and civilization have gained more in a brief period of American rule than in centuries of Spanish misrule. How thoughtful men can maintain that there is injustice or wrong in giving the islanders stable government and starting them on the road to progress, instead of turning them over to the prey of designing, half civilized scoundrels, like Aguinaldo and his associates, passes understanding.

The Pan-American exposition at Buffalo has been officially declared open. It is a great show, and not only the city on Lake Erie, but the whole country, has reason to be proud of it.

If Andrew Carnegie keeps on giving $5,000,000 and $10,000,000 at a time he may escape the fate which he says is in store for millionaires without philanthropic ideas. Andrew, it will be remembered, has declared that the man who dies rich dies disgraced.

The continued favorable reports from the bedside of Mrs. McKinley are cheering news, and the nation receives them with thankfulness and satisfaction.

There is a poet in Chicago who gets $1,000 a year. He does not get it out of his poetry, however, but from an office that he holds.

OBITUARY

William H. Herbert.

William H. Herbert died at the home of his sister, Mrs. E. S. Campbell, College street, yesterday afternoon at 5:30 o'clock, aged 36 years, from a complication of diseases. LUCKIEST MAN IN TOWN

Howard Marshall Loses His Watch But Gets It Back Again.

Howard, better known as "Shorty" Marshall, is now considered by his friends to be the luckiest man in town. Saturday afternoon he had his watch stolen from his pocket while talking with some friends at the corner of Second and Union streets. He did not miss the watch until he was one square away from the corner, and when they returned they asked him where his watch was. He replied that he had pawned it for a shoe-shine. After a short time he explained that he had lost it and was of the opinion that it had been taken by a party named Jesse, but he would not give the last name. The watch was turner over to an officer by the party who took it. He said it was done in a joke. The watch was returned to Marshall.

Stone Crusher Arrives—The stone crusher owned by the county was brought to the city yesterday from Lisbon and unloaded from the car this morning. It will be used to crush stone for the new reservoir, it having been decided to use crushed stone instead of gravel.

CONTRACTORS' BOND

Meeting of Commission Enlivened By Much Discussion—Proposed Sanitary Sewer Extension.

The sewer commission met yesterday afternoon, in a meeting adjourned from Saturday, to consider the bonds which Irwin Bros. offered on the storm water sewer. City Solicitor Wells declared the bond presented did not protect the city enough in case of damage suits. The specifications require a particular clause to indemnify the city in case of damage to property or health.

Mr. Irwin stated that the bond includes everything they specified in the contract. The solicitor recommended a special caluse.

The commission, by unanimous vote, insisted on Mr. Irwin's securing a bond which would make provision for all indemnity. Mr. Irwin said that he could obtain the bond if it were positively required.

A letter was then read from ex-City Engineer Riggs in regard to claims of Irwin Bros. for extra pay on deep cuts. Mr. Irwin says there was no plan presented when the contract was made for a sewer on Avondale street. Mr. Riggs said this sewer was in the original plans and he recommended that the claims should not be paid. The matter was laid aside until Mr. Riggs comes to accept the sewer.

Mr. Martin asked whether any more of the sanitary sewer could be built at this time. Mr. Bowers said there was no money, and so the line could not be built now. After a great deal of talk the matter was laid over.

FREIGHT CARS WRECKED

A Bad Smash in the Wellsville Yards This Morning.

The eastbound freight train on the river division was wrecked this morning at the lower end of the Wellsville yards. Two freight cars were entirely demolished and their contents scattered over the ground. No one was hurt.

The wreck was caused by the breaking of a flange on one of the car wheels.

Postmaster's Salary Raised.

The salary of the postmaster of this city has been increased from $1,900 to $2,000.

VICIOUS DOG SLAUGHTERED

The Brute Had Bitten a Child of George Frederick—Wound is Quite Serious.

A child, daughter of George L. Frederick, of West Market street, was attacked a few days ago by a bulldog owned by Mrs. Hamill. The matter was reported to the police and an appeal made to have the dog killed. The officers referred the case to Mayor Davidson, who, in turn, requested that a physician examine the wound inflicted by the brute.

This morning Dr. Bailey reported that the child was bitten severely on the leg, and Officer Morris was instructed to kill the dog. The carcass was incinerated at the garbage furnace.

KILLED BY A TRAIN

Richard Crow Met a Shocking Death at Brilliant Saturday.

The terribly mutilated body of Richard Crow, of Brilliant, was fonud on the C. & P. tracks near the Brilloant depot at a late hour Saturday night. It is thought he sat down on the ties and fell asleep. Crow was 41 years of age and leaves a wife and two children.

14 LOTS SOLD

At the Auction at Grandview Yesterday at Good Prices.

The auction sale of lots at Grandview yesterday afternoon was well attended. Fourteen lots were sold, all bringing good prices. The sale will be continued on next Saturday, at which time it is expected even a larger batch will be disposed of.

BLOODY AND DRUNK.

A Smith's Ferry Couple in a Sad Predicament.

Steubenville, May 21.—Sheriff Porter and family were out driving yesterday and when a short distance from Mingo they found a man and woman lying by the roadside and a horse hitched to a buggy a short distance from them. On examination he found that they were both bloody and drunk. He gathered them up, took them to Mingo and turned them over to the marshal, who locked them up and the horse and buggy were taken to the livery stable.

When they were somewhat straightened up they were released and started down street for their horse and buggy with their arms lovingly entwined around each other, declaring that they would drink and eat, live, bleed and die for each other. They started down the river in the buggy rejoicing, with four quarts of "John Barleycorn" in the buggy. It is said they were from Smith's Ferry, their destination not known.

TO WED TOMORROW.

Miss Martha Daniels and Mr. Carl Faulk Will Marry.

Mr. Carl Faulk and Miss Martha Daniels, two popular young people of this city will be married at noon tomorrow by Rev. C. G. Jordan. They have a large number of friends in the city who wish them much happiness.

After a tour through the east they will return to this city where they will make their future home.

Fatally Shot Himself.

New Castle, Pa., May 21.—Alderman Benjamin S. Leslie, a leading Republican politician of this city, shot and fatally wounded himself last evening in an attempt at suicide. He is 40 years of age, a son of the late Hon. J. P. Leslie and belongs to one of the leading families of the city.

New Members to Initiate.

The grocery and butcher clerks' union will initiate six new candidates at their meeting tonight. A smoker and social will be held after the regular business is transacted.

Found a Mare's Nest.

A brigadier general or major general is entitled to the keep of three horses at Uncle Sam's expense; a colonel, lieutenant colonel, major or captain to two only.

The forage allowance is often commuted by turning over the same to the quartermaster, and this practice once betrayed a suspicious new member of the house into a curious blunder. He announced that he had discovered that "officers of the army are selling the forage allowed to them, and one such case I am prepared to cite from the records of the war department, a case in which the oats and hay were transferred, doubtless for a consideration, to a person named Q. M. Corral."

There was an exchange of looks and winks among his astonished hearers, and then an old member kindly rose and said, "I presume, Mr. Speaker, that the memorandum referred to by my distinguished friend refers to a transfer of forage, in the ordinary course of business, to the quartermaster's corral."—Buffalo Commercial.

The Has Beens.

They met again in after years by chance at the door of a circus tent, the judge and the middle aged woman who had been Maud Muller.

"Great scott," muttered the judge to himself as he noted her sallow face, faded hair, stubby fingers with the marks of the washboard upon them and the group of slatternly children she was angrily trying to induce the ticket taker to pass in free, "what a lucky escape I had!"

"Merciful gracious," she mused inwardly, looking at his bald head, watery eyes, double chin and protuberant stomach, "and I once wanted to marry that man!"

They passed in, with their respective noses perceptibly elevated and were listening a few minutes later to the time honored jokes of the clown.—Chicago Tribune.

Breaking the News.

Jackson—See here, Jimson, that confounded dog of yours kept up a continual howl under my window till 3 o'clock this morning!

Jimson (firmly)—It wasn't my dog, sir!

Jackson—I'm glad to hear that, old man, because I hated to ask you to bury the body. To whom did you sell him?—Brooklyn Life.

Evidence of Genius.

"My wife," said Mr. Snickers, "is a truly remarkable woman."

"We all know that," we said. "But do you wish to specify?"

"Yes, sir. She wrote and sold a story the other day, and she spent only once the money she expected to receive for it."—Harper's Bazar.

A Great Sporting News Journal.

The illustrated special sporting section of the Sunday Chicago Record-Herald thoroughly deserves the attention of everyone interested in sporting news. It is always beautifully illustrated and embraces four full pages covering with the thoroughness that satisfies to the utmost the whole realm of sports. Baseball news, racing news, bowling news, cycling news, pugilistic news, golf news, yachting news—all the sporting news—is given with the degree of fullness and interest to be expected of the newspaper which combines the very complete facilities of these two great metropolitan newspapers, The Chicago Record and the Chicago Times-Herald. The sporting page of the daily issue is also exceptionally popular—a self-evident fact to those who have noticed the general vogue of the Chicago Record-Herald among sportsmen.

Mount Marcy.

Mount Marcy, the highest mountain in the Adirondacks, is very uneasy, with volcanic tendency. This mountain is one of the curiosities of the Adirondack section, and it is said to be the first mountain in the world to have received the cooling breezes after the chaos period, and to this fact is attributed the continued salubrity of the air and general healthfulness of the Adirondack mountains.

Forever Dry.

There is a youngster in Girard college who combines the poetic instinct with a keen sense of humor. He is not a close student—in fact, he regards books as instruments of torture. One of the professors picked up a textbook belonging to him the other day and found on the fly leaf this bit of verse, which no doubt expressed the student's opinion of it:

Should there be another flood,
For refuge hither fly,
And should the whole world be submerged
This book would still be dry.

The terribly mutilated body of Richard Crow, of Brilliant, was fonud on the C. & P. tracks near the Brilloant depot at a late hour Saturday night. It is thought he sat down on the ties and fell asleep. Crow was 41 years of age and leaves a wife and two children.

Going to Wellsville.

A number of young people of this city will go to Wellsville this evening to attend a musicale at the home of Miss Lida E. Andrews, Main street.

14 LOTS SOLD

At the Auction at Grandview Yesterday at Good Prices.

The auction sale of lots at Grandview yesterday afternoon was well attended. Fourteen lots were sold, all bringing good prices. The sale will be continued on next Saturday, at which time it is expected even a larger batch will be disposed of.

BLOODY AND DRUNK.

A Smith's Ferry Couple in a Sad Predicament.

Steubenville, May 21.—Sheriff Porter and family were out driving yesterday and when a short distance from Mingo they found a man and woman lying by the roadside and a horse hitched to a buggy a short distance from them. On examination he found that they were both bloody and drunk. He gathered them up, took them to Mingo and turned them over to the marshal, who locked them up and the horse and buggy were taken to the livery stable.

When they were somewhat straightened up they were released and started down street for their horse and buggy with their arms lovingly entwined around each other, declaring that they would drink and eat, live, bleed and die for each other. They started down the river in the buggy rejoicing, with four quarts of "John Barleycorn" in the buggy. It is said they were from Smith's Ferry, their destination not known.

TO WED TOMORROW.

Miss Martha Daniels and Mr. Carl Faulk Will Marry.

Mr. Carl Faulk and Miss Martha Daniels, two popular young people of this city will be married at noon tomorrow by Rev. C. G. Jordan. They have a large number of friends in the city who wish them much happiness.

After a tour through the east they will return to this city where they will make their future home.

Fatally Shot Himself.

New Castle, Pa., May 21.—Alderman Benjamin S. Leslie, a leading Republican politician of this city, shot and fatally wounded himself last evening in an attempt at suicide. He is 40 years of age, a son of the late Hon. J. P. Leslie and belongs to one of the leading families of the city.

New Members to Initiate.

The grocery and butcher clerks' union will initiate six new candidates at their meeting tonight. A smoker and social will be held after the regular business is transacted.

Found a Mare's Nest.

A brigadier general or major general is entitled to the keep of three horses at Uncle Sam's expense; a colonel, lieutenant colonel, major or captain to two only.

The forage allowance is often commuted by turning over the same to the quartermaster, and this practice once betrayed a suspicious new member of the house into a curious blunder. He announced that he had discovered that "officers of the army are selling the forage allowed to them, and one such case I am prepared to cite from the records of the war department, a case in which the oats and hay were transferred, doubtless for a consideration, to a person named Q. M. Corral."

There was an exchange of looks and winks among his astonished hearers, and then an old member kindly rose and said, "I presume, Mr. Speaker, that the memorandum referred to by my distinguished friend refers to a transfer of forage, in the ordinary course of business, to the quartermaster's corral."—Buffalo Commercial.

The Has Beens.

They met again in after years by chance at the door of a circus tent, the judge and the middle aged woman who had been Maud Muller.

"Great scott," muttered the judge to himself as he noted her sallow face, faded hair, stubby fingers with the marks of the washboard upon them and the group of slatternly children she was angrily trying to induce the ticket taker to pass in free, "what a lucky escape I had!"

"Merciful gracious," she mused inwardly, looking at his bald head, watery eyes, double chin and protuberant stomach, "and I once wanted to marry that man!"

They passed in, with their respective noses perceptibly elevated and were listening a few minutes later to the time honored jokes of the clown.—Chicago Tribune.

Breaking the News.

Jackson—See here, Jimson, that confounded dog of yours kept up a continual howl under my window till 3 o'clock this morning!

Jimson (firmly)—It wasn't my dog, sir!

Jackson—I'm glad to hear that, old man, because I hated to ask you to bury the body. To whom did you sell him?—Brooklyn Life.

Evidence of Genius.

"My wife," said Mr. Snickers, "is a truly remarkable woman."

"We all know that," we said. "But do you wish to specify?"

"Yes, sir. She wrote and sold a story the other day, and she spent only once the money she expected to receive for it."—Harper's Bazar.

A Great Sporting News Journal.

The illustrated special sporting section of the Sunday Chicago Record-Herald thoroughly deserves the attention of everyone interested in sporting news. It is always beautifully illustrated and embraces four full pages covering with the thoroughness that satisfies to the utmost the whole realm of sports. Baseball news, racing news, bowling news, cycling news, pugilistic news, golf news, yachting news—all the sporting news—is given with the degree of fullness and interest to be expected of the newspaper which combines the very complete facilities of these two great metropolitan newspapers, The Chicago Record and the Chicago Times-Herald. The sporting page of the daily issue is also exceptionally popular—a self-evident fact to those who have noticed the general vogue of the Chicago Record-Herald among sportsmen.

Mount Marcy.

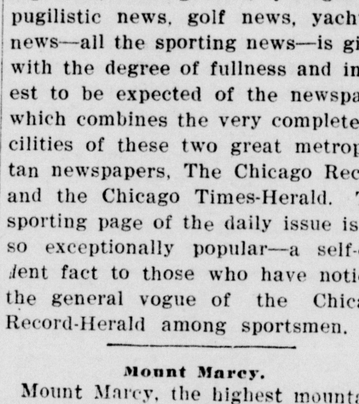

Mount Marcy, the highest mountain in the Adirondacks, is very uneasy, with volcanic tendency. This mountain is one of the curiosities of the Adirondack section, and it is said to be the first mountain in the world to have received the cooling breezes after the chaos period, and to this fact is attributed the continued salubrity of the air and general healthfulness of the Adirondack mountains.

Forever Dry.

There is a youngster in Girard college who combines the poetic instinct with a keen sense of humor. He is not a close student—in fact, he regards books as instruments of torture. One of the professors picked up a textbook belonging to him the other day and found on the fly leaf this bit of verse, which no doubt expressed the student's opinion of it:

Should there be another flood,
For refuge hither fly,
And should the whole world be submerged
This book would still be dry.

SOUTH SIDE

WITHOUT OFFICERS

THAT IS CHESTER'S FIX, THOUGH THEY WERE ELECTED.

Two Weeks Have Passed And No One Has Qualified—Much Dissatisfaction.

The people of Chester are alredy indulging in much vituperative language concerning their lately elected town officers. The election occurred two weeks ago today and yet not a single officer has qualified and the town is without a municipal government.

Just why this is the case the people claim they cannot understand. An attempt was made last evening to get the officers together, but the mayor failed to appear and the councilmen could not be installed. This was the third unsuccessful attempt to have the officers qualify. Now the people are talking of employing legal aid and making an attempt to force them to take the oath of office or resign. Some people even go so far as to say that the installation is purposely delayed, and unless something is done shortly it would seem that interesting developments may follow.

MINOR NEWS OF CHESTER.

Oscar Hobbs is visiting his mother at Fairview.

J. Howard Maxwell is in Pittsburg on business today.

Carl Evans has accepted a position with John J. Marshall at his news stand.

Ex-Sheriff Wilkinson, of New Cumberland, was in Chester looking up tax delinquents today.

J. D. Stewart has drawn up plans for a new residence, which he will erect on Carolina avenue.

O. A. Crael has let the contract for his new six-roomed residence on Indiana avenue to J. W. Johnson.

Charles Boles will leave for Connellsville tomorrow morning, where he will follow his trade as plumber. He had been employed in Chester for more than a year.

George A. Arner and wife and son left on the Queen City today for a short pleasure trip in western Pennsylvania. They will visit Pittsburg, Monessen, Butler and Franklin, Pa., and will not return for several days.

NEED OF PRACTICE

MADE APPARENT IN YESTERDAY'S BALL GAME.

A Different Sort of Exhibition Is Wanted—Base Ball News in General.

A little tme worst exhibition of base ball seen in these parts in many a day was witnessed on the Southside yesterday in the game between the Crockery City and Chester, all of which goes to prove conclusively that talking base ball, becoming enthused and playing the game as it should be played are widely different propositions. The Crockeries need practice and need it badly.

The Chester team, which is made up for the most part of players from East Liverpool, would have had little trouble in winning, had it not been for the errors which were piled up by that aggregation.

The management of the team had evidently not used good judgment in placing the players, as changes were made throughout the entire game. Wheatley pitched an excellent game and had he been given the support he deserved, would have won the game.

However, the Crockeries have a good team, and all they lack is the practice. There was a large crowd present and plenty of enthusiasm, which demonstrates the fact that there is sufficient interest in the national game here to support a good team. Following the score:

Chester .. ....0 3 0 0 5 0 1 0 2—11

Hits—Crockeries, 12; Chester, 14. Errors—Crockeries, 2; Chester 11. Batteries—Crockeries, Barker and Gibson; Chester, Wheatley and Millward.

The East End Grays have arranged for a game with the West End Athletics a week from next Saturday. In the meantime the East Enders are doing hard practice and expect to come out victorious when the time arrives. The game will be played at Columbian park.

The junior nine of the East End Grays wish to challenge any team composed of players 17 years of age or under and will play at any time and for any amount or for the fun only.

Did You Ever Drown a Fly?

Whatever other fate might befall it, naturalists agree that the common house fly cannot be drowned and many experiments have been made in relation thereto.

Included in such tests was the immersion of a fly in a tumbler of clear cold water, with a piece of cardboard to fit the glass and floated so as to keep the insect beneath the surface.

So little did the fly trouble about such an obstacle that it kept near the bottom of the glass, and there for a quarter of an hour ran about as freely as in the fresh air, while it at times crawled across the underside of the pasteboard as on the ceiling of a room.

After being immersed for 20 minutes the fly's movements were less active, and at 25 minutes it turned over on its side, apparently dead. It hung suspended in the water just under the pasteboard, which kept it from rising to the surface, and there it remained for another 25 minutes.

It was then taken out and placed on a sheet of paper, looking to all appearance dead. Its next fate was to be buried by being covered with about half a teaspoonful of fine salt.

At the end of 15 minutes the saline was shaken off, the fly having thus been completely covered either by water or by salt for 65 minutes.

Immediately upon its release the insect trimmed its wings and legs actively for awhile and then flew away.—Pearson's Weekly.

Why Monarchs Were Insane.

Pathologists have often pointed out the fact that physical and mental enervation are apt to go hand in hand, and the intellectual degeneracy of etiquette monarchs may have a good deal to do with the Sybaritism of their palace life.

The plebeian functions which mediæval sovereigns were obliged to perform by proxy included the adjustment of their gala gloves. They had flunkies to remove their cravats and warm their nightshirts, unplait their pigtails and tuck up their bedclothes around their shoulders. In the morning courtiers competed for the honor of holding their washbasin. Peers of the realm waited on bended knees to buckle their shoes. If the inheritor of a legitimate throne lifted a spoon to break an egg, lynx eyed lackeys anticipated his needs with the agility of trained conjurers. Like his food, his information on current topics was served ready dressed and cooked, till he turned into a masticating machine and repeater of conventional twaddle.—Lippincott's.

Saved Each Other.

A short time ago a guard on one of the Northern expresses while at a big station in the midlands had been talking to the engine driver. Presently he stepped aside and gave his "Right away!" when a gentleman who was late sprang on to the footboard while the train was in motion and tried to obtain admission to one of the compartments.

As the carriage came along the guard seized him by the coat and pulled him off, remarking that he must think himself lucky, for he had practically saved his life.

As this conversation was going on the guard's van came by, and the guard, with that gracefulness acquired by constant practice, sailed majestically on to his van.

The gentleman, who had taken in the situation, thereupon seized him by the coat and pulled him off, saying as the train sped away:

"One good turn deserves another. You saved my life; I have saved yours. Now we are quits."—London Telegraph.

He Got Off.

The wife of a German farmhand in Ohio was taken sick and finally died, the husband, of course, leaving his work for several days in consequence. Two weeks later he appeared at the house of his employer and asked to be relieved from work for a couple of days, when the following conversation took place:

"I vould like to get off for apout two tays."

"I can't spare you unless it is absolutely necessary. You know you lost several days two weeks ago, and we are behind in the work. What is the necessity for your getting off?" inquired the farmer.

"Vell, I vas to be married."

"Why, Fritz, your wife died only two weeks ago, and now you are about to get married again? I do not understand that."

"Vell," replied the German, "I don't hold spite long."

The farmer dismissed the case without prejudice.

Pretty Far Off.

A summer resident in a New Hampshire village, a lady who, in Horace Walpole's phrase, "sits at the top of the world," was making her first friendly call of the season upon the family of an old widower.

Only the father was at home, one of the girls being absent on a visit to the other sister, who had been married during the past winter. Naturally the talk turned on the daughters.

"Yes," said the father; "Mary made out real well. But I don' know's I'll ever work Lizabeth off. There's a young man been comin here steady now for two year, an he's no further on yet, ma'am, than me an you."—Youth's Companion.

Etiquette In 1624.

Here is a curious extract from the court regulations of the Hofburg for the year 1624 on the etiquette to be observed by officers when invited to the royal table. The regulation begins by stating that officers usually behave under such circumstances "with great politeness and good breeding, like true and worthy cavaliers," but that the emperor thinks it necessary to issue the following directions for the use of inexperienced cadets:

"1. Officers should come to the palace handsomely dressed and not enter the room in a half drunken state.

"2. When they are at table, they should not rock about on their chairs nor sit back and stretch out their legs.

"3. They should not drink after each mouthful, as by so doing they will very soon get drunk, nor drink more than half a glass at a time, and before drinking they should wipe their lips and moustachios.

"4. They should not put their hands in the dishes nor throw bones under the table.

"5. They should not lick their fingers nor drink so brutally as to fall off their chairs."

Because She Loved Him So.

"You do not care for me!" he cried despairingly. "You do not believe in my love!"

"On the contrary," replied the up to date girl, "I am giving you the best possible evidence that I do."

"But you refuse to marry me," he said.

"And why?" was asked, with the air of one who thinks she has been deeply wronged. "It is because I believe you love me and I care enough for you not to make you miserable. Nothing could be more unselfish than my action. You are poor. You could not supply me with those luxuries that I crave, and the fact that you had to deny them to me would make you unhappy. The greater your love the more wretched you would be in such circumstances, and it is to save you from this unhappiness that I refuse you. I shall sacrifice myself by marrying some one with lots of money, but it will be for you—all for you."—Chicago Post.

Dodging Cannon Shot.

"Last Friday Lucy (Mrs. Knox) dined at General Washington's. Last Saturday, let it be remembered to the honor and skill of the British troops, they fired 104 cannon shot at our works at not a greater distance than half point blank shot—and did what? Why, scratched a man's face with the splinters of a rail fence. I have had the pleasure of dodging these heretofore engines of terror with great success, nor am I afraid they will hit me unless directed by the hand of Providence."—From "A Soldier of the Revolution," by Noah Brooks.

One Woman's Treasure.

I read in one of the "tit-bit" papers that "one good lady is said to treasure still the flounce of a dress" which the late Duke of Coburg "accidentally trod on and tore" when on a ceremonial visit to Lerwick, N. B., in 1882.. One thinks at once of Calverley's lines:

A clod—a piece of orange peel—
The end of a cigar—
When trod on by a princely heel,
How beautiful they are!

HARKEN YE

To the Voice of East Liverpool People.

If you will but listen to your friends and neighbors, they will tell you how the pains and aches of a bad back, the annoyance of urinary troubles, the nervousness, the restlessness which comes from kidney ills can be relieved and cured. Read what one East Liverpool citizen says:

Mrs. Mary Hewitt, of St. George street, says: "I read in the Pittsburg Press an account of some one who had been cured of kidney complaint in that city by using Doan's Kidney Pills. The fact of such an account being published of one living in almost the same place had a tendency to convince me that there must be some truth in it, and I determined to try them myself. Some years before this I had a severe attack of rheumatism; for three months I lay helpless and after that I had trouble with my kidneys. For a year I suffered severely. My back was so bad that it felt as if I had a boil where the kidneys are. I could not bend, lean back against a chair or reach up. I could not lie on my back, and about every move I made caused pain. I had taken numerous remedies, but none brought the desired relief. Well, Doan's Kidney Pills, procured at the W. & W. pharmacy, did what no other remedy was able to do. I took them regularly for a short time and found them all the Pittsburg paper stated them to be. I can heartily recommend them. After using them I was rid of backaches and other symptoms of kidney trouble."

Sold for 50 cents per box by all dealers. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States.

Too Many Risks.

They had come up from lower Maryland—man and wife—to have their tintypes taken by a traveling operator at the Marlboro fair. The husband thought it well to have a fair understanding of the matter beforehand, and so he entered the gallery on wheels and asked:

"How much fur two pictur's?"

"Fifty cents," was the reply.

"Will you take a prime coonskin in payment?"

"Yes."

"Will we look nateral?"

"You will."

"Kin I stand with a knife in my hand, as if ready to tackle a b'ar?"

"You can."

"Kin the ole woman hev her hands clasped and her eyes rolled up like some of them rich folks?"

"If she wants to."

"And yo'll take all the risks?"

"What risks do you mean?"

"Waal, I hain't purty nor proud, but the ole woman is, and yo'll hev to take a twist out of her nose and shorten up her chin a leetle, or she'll git right up arter seein the pictur' and light on yo' like a turkey on a 'tater bug. The last feller that was here only survived two days arter takin her pictur', and I thought it was only squar' to tell yo' 'bout it."

The artist declined to take the risks, and the man picked up his coonskin and went out, saying:

"Can't blame yo', stranger. Can't blame yo' a bit. Yo' don't want to be tore all to pieces and hev this wagin wrecked fur the sake of one coonskin. I'll git the ole woman seven yards of kalliker, and she'll hev to roll up her eyes at that and let the pictur' go."—Washington Post.

Coins and Conductors.

A new industry among street car conductors was revealed to a patient passenger on an up town Sixth avenue car the other day. The conductor, who was in a talkative mood, opened conversation by exhibiting a coin of a mintage which commands a premium and remarking that many such coins, which were carried as pocket pieces, came into the hands of himself and his fellow conductors in the course of a year, either from passengers who were temporarily oblivious more or less of their surroundings and their actions or from men who had gone broke and had to get up town.

From that he passed to the topic of bogus coins, ingenuously confessing that conductors who took bad quarters or half dollars by mistake and were too conscientious to try to work them off on passengers sold them at the car house to other conductors at a discount of 5 cents. The squeamish conductors, he explained, had rather lose 5 cents than to try to pass the coins or to lose the face value of the coins The other conductors, he said, were always ready to make the 5 cents and there were of course always passengers available to whom the coins might be given in change.—New York Sun.

Both at Rest.

"I suppose," said the stonecutter, "you'll want 'Requiescat in pace' at the bottom of your wife's monument?"

"No," replied the bereaved Mr. Peck; "make it 'Requiesco in pace.'"

"That means 'I rest in peace,' doesn't it?"

"Yes, and I want you to sign that 'Husband.'"—Catholic Standard and Times.

Adversity's Round Robin.

"This is a cold world. A man can't get a job unless he has a good suit of clothes."

"Well, that's logic."

A Well Dressed Pauper.

In all large cities there is a way of getting rid of undesirable persons by means of giving them a "pauper's pass" to some city to which they want to go.

It seems that a lawyer who is quite well known about town and who, like many other persons, is not averse to traveling on a free ticket had made several requests to a certain official for a pass to New York. He had been refused a number of times, but with a persistence worthy of a better cause he continued to bore his official friend. Finally he was supplied with the magic pasteboard, and without looking at it he went to the railroad station and paid for his seat in the parlor car.

When the conductor came along, the lawyer, who, by the way, is a man of rather imposing appearance, was reading a paper and with the nonchalance supposed to be second nature to those who never pay their carfare held out his pass, never even glancing at the conductor. That official took the pass, read it carefully, looked at the holder of it and then examined the pass again with considerable care. The lawyer, noticing that the conductor seemed to be giving the pass more than ordinary attention, stared at the official with a manner that indicated that he might at least be a director and asked with considerable warmth, "Anything the matter with that pass?"

The conductor looked at his questioner in a quizzical way and then said, "No; the pass is all right, but you are certainly the best dressed pauper I ever saw."—Boston Transcript.

How Moody Got Out of It.

Many were the interesting experiences belonging to the first Northfield conference called by D. L. Moody. One especially shows Mr. Moody himself in his varying phases. It was the conversation hour at noon, and about 100 men were sitting under the tent on Round Top

Mr. Moody, leaning sturdily against the tent pole, led the meeting. Suddenly there came from him the plump question, "Brethren, how many of you have so grown in grace that you can bear to have your faults told?"

Many hands went up. Quick as a flash, but neither sharply nor insultingly, Mr. Moody turned to a young minister and said:

"Brother, you have spoken 13 times in 12 days here and perhaps shut out 12 other good men from speaking."

It was true. The young man had been presuming and officious. He had held up his hand, but he could not bear to be chidden, and now he stoutly defended himself, only making matters worse. Then another minister broke forth and berated Mr. Moody for his bluntness. The latter blushed, but listened until the reproof was done. Then he suggestively covered his face and spoke through his fingers, "Brethren, I admit the fault my friend charges me with; but, brethren, I did not hold up my hand!"—Youth's Companion.

To Cure Insomnia.

An English physician of distinction gives these suggestions for cure of insomnia: In cases where the patient sleeps for an hour or two, then wakens with a start and cannot go to sleep again the physician recommends that a hot water compress be laid on the abdomen. When one cannot go to sleep on retiring and is unable to dismiss thoughts that have occupied the day, it is advised that the patient keep his feet in water as hot as he can bear comfortably for ten minutes before going to bed. He should then put on a pair of thin cotton hose wrung out of cold water and over those a pair of woolen ones. A more powerful remedy is a mustard sitz bath, with the proportion of a teacupful of mustard to a gallon of hot water. He should remain seated in the bath from 10 to 20 minutes. In many cases a reclining bath in tepid water is useful as a sedative.

The Funniest Story?

Sir Wilfrid Laurier once said that he considered the following the funniest story in the world. Do you agree with him?

A gentleman was once being taken over an idiot asylum. He asked an attendant how they knew when an idiot was considered to be sufficiently restored to sanity to be discharged.

"Oh," said the attendant, "it is easily managed. We take them into a yard where there are several troughs. We turn on the taps and then give the idiots buckets to bail out the water and empty the troughs. Many of them go on bailing away while the tap keeps running, but them that isn't idiots stops the tap."

Subsequent Reflection.

"Oh, what a beautiful water lily!"

No sooner had the maiden uttered these words than Archie Sixcap resolutely waded out after it.

He sank in mud up to his waist at once.

But he didn't get the lily.

It was still yards away from him and in deeper mud.

"Fools rush in," he muttered savagely to himself as he turned and began slopping his way back to shore, "where angels have too darned much sense to tread!"—Chicago Tribune.

In the Business.

"Children," said Aunt Mary, "you have a new little brother. He came this morning while you were asleep."

"Did he?" exclaimed the eldest. "Then I know who brought him."

"Who was it?" asked Aunt Mary.

"Why, the milkman, of course. I saw it on his cart, 'Families supplied daily.'"—London Tit-Bits.

Her Reply.

The Husband (sourly)—You ought to know better how to use money.

The Wife (sweetly)—Perhaps I could learn if I had a little more to practice with.—Puck.

In a Safe Place.

Among his trusted and efficient attaches in the office of the street railway headquarters is one Millikin. He also has a partnership interest in a north side grocery. After keeping cases on cars and their operators each day Mr. Millikin waits on customers at the grocery store. Saturday night is usually a busy one, and of course everything is done in a hurry. This probably accounts for a slight oversight of Mr. Millikin in filling an order for a little fat girl who came into the store as the kind hearted Millikin was about to close the doors.

"Mister Mil-li-kin, my mamma sent after a quarter's worth of mul-las-siz," said the child.

"All right, little girl. Let's have your bucket," said the genial clerk.

With this the little lady handed over a good sized tin bucket. Mr. Millikin disappeared among some barrels, and after considerable grinding he reappeared.

"There's a big measure, little girl. Do you think you can carry it?"

"Yes, sir," said the maiden as she started toward the door.

"Little girl, where's your money?" said Millikin as he followed up his customer.

"In the bucket, Mr. Mil-li-kin," naively replied the child.—Columbus Dispatch.

From Bad to Worse.

A gentleman was admiring his pigeons the other afternoon, when he heard a curious "thud" and saw one of his birds drop from a window sill to the ground.

Turning round, the gentleman was just in time to see a small boy in the lane drop a catapult and run.

After a short chase the culprit was caught.

"You young scoundrel!" ejaculated the angry owner of the pigeon. "What do you mean by coming and shooting my birds?"

"Please, sir, I didn't mean to do it," whined the captive. "I—I didn't shoot at the pigeon."

"Come, come," said the gentleman, "don't make matters worse. I saw the bird fall, and if you did not aim at it how came you to hit it?"

"Please, sir," blubbered the boy, "the pigeon got in the way. I—I was aiming at the winder."—London Tit-Bits.

Looking Without Seeing.

Perhaps you are an exception to the rule, but if you are not you have probably on many occasions, just after looking at your watch, been forced to acknowledge to a friend who asked you the time that you did not know what it was. Yet you undoubtedly took your timepiece out of your pocket, looked at its face and carefully replaced it in your pocket, showing a logical sequence of thought and a well defined object, which did not, however, result in leaving a sufficiently distinct impression on your mind to satisfy your friend's curiosity as to the hour of the day. The motion was not an involuntary one, like that of the boy who cannot too often admire his first chronometer, nor yet habitual, for few persons are merely in the habit of taking out their watches. One does so only for a specific purpose.

Now, how may this seeming contradiction be accounted for? Perhaps the reason is that not once in ten times does a man look at his watch to see what the actual time is, but rather to learn whether he still has time to accomplish some purpose. He may want to keep an appointment at a certain time or to be sure not to miss a boat or train. When he takes out his watch, therefore, he instinctively looks for the hands in the position called for by that particular moment, and when he sees that they have not yet reached that point he returns the watch to its resting place, with his mind relieved.

The actual position of the hands really plays no part at all in the operation, and so when the time is asked of him he is unable to reply. In other words, he accomplishes the paradoxical feat of intently looking at a thing without really seeing it.

SOUTH SIDE

WITHOUT OFFICERS

THAT IS CHESTER'S FIX, THOUGH THEY WERE ELECTED.

Two Weeks Have Passed And No One Has Qualified—Much Dissatisfaction.

The people of Chester are alredy indulging in much vituperative language concerning their lately elected town officers. The election occurred two weeks ago today and yet not a single officer has qualified and the town is without a municipal government.

Just why this is the case the people claim they cannot understand. An attempt was made last evening to get the officers together, but the mayor failed to appear and the councilmen could not be installed. This was the third unsuccessful attempt to have the officers qualify. Now the people are talking of employing legal aid and making an attempt to force them to take the oath of office or resign. Some people even go so far as to say that the installation is purposely delayed, and unless something is done shortly it would seem that interesting developments may follow.

MINOR NEWS OF CHESTER.

Oscar Hobbs is visiting his mother at Fairview.

J. Howard Maxwell is in Pittsburg on business today.

Carl Evans has accepted a position with John J. Marshall at his news stand.

Ex-Sheriff Wilkinson, of New Cumberland, was in Chester looking up tax delinquents today.

J. D. Stewart has drawn up plans for a new residence, which he will erect on Carolina avenue.

O. A. Crael has let the contract for his new six-roomed residence on Indiana avenue to J. W. Johnson.

Charles Boles will leave for Connellsville tomorrow morning, where he will follow his trade as plumber. He had been employed in Chester for more than a year.

George A. Arner and wife and son left on the Queen City today for a short pleasure trip in western Pennsylvania. They will visit Pittsburg, Monessen, Butler and Franklin, Pa., and will not return for several days.

NEED OF PRACTICE

MADE APPARENT IN YESTERDAY'S BALL GAME.

A Different Sort of Exhibition Is Wanted—Base Ball News in General.

A little tme worst exhibition of base ball seen in these parts in many a day was witnessed on the Southside yesterday in the game between the Crockery City and Chester, all of which goes to prove conclusively that talking base ball, becoming enthused and playing the game as it should be played are widely different propositions. The Crockeries need practice and need it badly.

The Chester team, which is made up for the most part of players from East Liverpool, would have had little trouble in winning, had it not been for the errors which were piled up by that aggregation.

The management of the team had evidently not used good judgment in placing the players, as changes were made throughout the entire game. Wheatley pitched an excellent game and had he been given the support he deserved, would have won the game.

However, the Crockeries have a good team, and all they lack is the practice. There was a large crowd present and plenty of enthusiasm, which demonstrates the fact that there is sufficient interest in the national game here to support a good team. Following the score:

Chester .. ....0 3 0 0 5 0 1 0 2—11

Hits—Crockeries, 12; Chester, 14. Errors—Crockeries, 2; Chester 11. Batteries—Crockeries, Barker and Gibson; Chester, Wheatley and Millward.

The East End Grays have arranged for a game with the West End Athletics a week from next Saturday. In the meantime the East Enders are doing hard practice and expect to come out victorious when the time arrives. The game will be played at Columbian park.

The junior nine of the East End Grays wish to challenge any team composed of players 17 years of age or under and will play at any time and for any amount or for the fun only.

Did You Ever Drown a Fly?

Whatever other fate might befall it, naturalists agree that the common house fly cannot be drowned and many experiments have been made in relation thereto.

Included in such tests was the immersion of a fly in a tumbler of clear cold water, with a piece of cardboard to fit the glass and floated so as to keep the insect beneath the surface.

So little did the fly trouble about such an obstacle that it kept near the bottom of the glass, and there for a quarter of an hour ran about as freely as in the fresh air, while it at times crawled across the underside of the pasteboard as on the ceiling of a room.

After being immersed for 20 minutes the fly's movements were less active, and at 25 minutes it turned over on its side, apparently dead. It hung suspended in the water just under the pasteboard, which kept it from rising to the surface, and there it remained for another 25 minutes.

It was then taken out and placed on a sheet of paper, looking to all appearance dead. Its next fate was to be buried by being covered with about half a teaspoonful of fine salt.

At the end of 15 minutes the saline was shaken off, the fly having thus been completely covered either by water or by salt for 65 minutes.

Immediately upon its release the insect trimmed its wings and legs actively for awhile and then flew away.—Pearson's Weekly.

Why Monarchs Were Insane.

Pathologists have often pointed out the fact that physical and mental enervation are apt to go hand in hand, and the intellectual degeneracy of etiquette monarchs may have a good deal to do with the Sybaritism of their palace life.

The plebeian functions which mediæval sovereigns were obliged to perform by proxy included the adjustment of their gala gloves. They had flunkies to remove their cravats and warm their nightshirts, unplait their pigtails and tuck up their bedclothes around their shoulders. In the morning courtiers competed for the honor of holding their washbasin. Peers of the realm waited on bended knees to buckle their shoes. If the inheritor of a legitimate throne lifted a spoon to break an egg, lynx eyed lackeys anticipated his needs with the agility of trained conjurers. Like his food, his information on current topics was served ready dressed and cooked, till he turned into a masticating machine and repeater of conventional twaddle.—Lippincott's.

Saved Each Other.

A short time ago a guard on one of the Northern expresses while at a big station in the midlands had been talking to the engine driver. Presently he stepped aside and gave his "Right away!" when a gentleman who was late sprang on to the footboard while the train was in motion and tried to obtain admission to one of the compartments.

As the carriage came along the guard seized him by the coat and pulled him off, remarking that he must think himself lucky, for he had practically saved his life.

As this conversation was going on the guard's van came by, and the guard, with that gracefulness acquired by constant practice, sailed majestically on to his van.

The gentleman, who had taken in the situation, thereupon seized him by the coat and pulled him off, saying as the train sped away:

"One good turn deserves another. You saved my life; I have saved yours. Now we are quits."—London Telegraph.

He Got Off.

The wife of a German farmhand in Ohio was taken sick and finally died, the husband, of course, leaving his work for several days in consequence. Two weeks later he appeared at the house of his employer and asked to be relieved from work for a couple of days, when the following conversation took place:

"I vould like to get off for apout two tays."

"I can't spare you unless it is absolutely necessary. You know you lost several days two weeks ago, and we are behind in the work. What is the necessity for your getting off?" inquired the farmer.

"Vell, I vas to be married."

"Why, Fritz, your wife died only two weeks ago, and now you are about to get married again? I do not understand that."

"Vell," replied the German, "I don't hold spite long."

The farmer dismissed the case without prejudice.

Pretty Far Off.

A summer resident in a New Hampshire village, a lady who, in Horace Walpole's phrase, "sits at the top of the world," was making her first friendly call of the season upon the family of an old widower.

Only the father was at home, one of the girls being absent on a visit to the other sister, who had been married during the past winter. Naturally the talk turned on the daughters.

"Yes," said the father; "Mary made out real well. But I don' know's I'll ever work Lizabeth off. There's a young man been comin here steady now for two year, an he's no further on yet, ma'am, than me an you."—Youth's Companion.

Etiquette In 1624.

Here is a curious extract from the court regulations of the Hofburg for the year 1624 on the etiquette to be observed by officers when invited to the royal table. The regulation begins by stating that officers usually behave under such circumstances "with great politeness and good breeding, like true and worthy cavaliers," but that the emperor thinks it necessary to issue the following directions for the use of inexperienced cadets:

"1. Officers should come to the palace handsomely dressed and not enter the room in a half drunken state.

"2. When they are at table, they should not rock about on their chairs nor sit back and stretch out their legs.

"3. They should not drink after each mouthful, as by so doing they will very soon get drunk, nor drink more than half a glass at a time, and before drinking they should wipe their lips and moustachios.

"4. They should not put their hands in the dishes nor throw bones under the table.

"5. They should not lick their fingers nor drink so brutally as to fall off their chairs."

Because She Loved Him So.

"You do not care for me!" he cried despairingly. "You do not believe in my love!"

"On the contrary," replied the up to date girl, "I am giving you the best possible evidence that I do."

"But you refuse to marry me," he said.

"And why?" was asked, with the air of one who thinks she has been deeply wronged. "It is because I believe you love me and I care enough for you not to make you miserable. Nothing could be more unselfish than my action. You are poor. You could not supply me with those luxuries that I crave, and the fact that you had to deny them to me would make you unhappy. The greater your love the more wretched you would be in such circumstances, and it is to save you from this unhappiness that I refuse you. I shall sacrifice myself by marrying some one with lots of money, but it will be for you—all for you."—Chicago Post.

Dodging Cannon Shot.

"Last Friday Lucy (Mrs. Knox) dined at General Washington's. Last Saturday, let it be remembered to the honor and skill of the British troops, they fired 104 cannon shot at our works at not a greater distance than half point blank shot—and did what? Why, scratched a man's face with the splinters of a rail fence. I have had the pleasure of dodging these heretofore engines of terror with great success, nor am I afraid they will hit me unless directed by the hand of Providence."—From "A Soldier of the Revolution," by Noah Brooks.

One Woman's Treasure.

I read in one of the "tit-bit" papers that "one good lady is said to treasure still the flounce of a dress" which the late Duke of Coburg "accidentally trod on and tore" when on a ceremonial visit to Lerwick, N. B., in 1882.. One thinks at once of Calverley's lines:

A clod—a piece of orange peel—
The end of a cigar—
When trod on by a princely heel,
How beautiful they are!

HARKEN YE

To the Voice of East Liverpool People.

If you will but listen to your friends and neighbors, they will tell you how the pains and aches of a bad back, the annoyance of urinary troubles, the nervousness, the restlessness which comes from kidney ills can be relieved and cured. Read what one East Liverpool citizen says:

Mrs. Mary Hewitt, of St. George street, says: "I read in the Pittsburg Press an account of some one who had been cured of kidney complaint in that city by using Doan's Kidney Pills. The fact of such an account being published of one living in almost the same place had a tendency to convince me that there must be some truth in it, and I determined to try them myself. Some years before this I had a severe attack of rheumatism; for three months I lay helpless and after that I had trouble with my kidneys. For a year I suffered severely. My back was so bad that it felt as if I had a boil where the kidneys are. I could not bend, lean back against a chair or reach up. I could not lie on my back, and about every move I made caused pain. I had taken numerous remedies, but none brought the desired relief. Well, Doan's Kidney Pills, procured at the W. & W. pharmacy, did what no other remedy was able to do. I took them regularly for a short time and found them all the Pittsburg paper stated them to be. I can heartily recommend them. After using them I was rid of backaches and other symptoms of kidney trouble."

Too Many Risks.

They had come up from lower Maryland—man and wife—to have their tintypes taken by a traveling operator at the Marlboro fair. The husband thought it well to have a fair understanding of the matter beforehand, and so he entered the gallery on wheels and asked:

"How much fur two pictur's?"

"Fifty cents," was the reply.

"Will you take a prime coonskin in payment?"

"Yes."

"Will we look nateral?"

"You will."

"Kin I stand with a knife in my hand, as if ready to tackle a b'ar?"

"You can."

"Kin the ole woman hev her hands clasped and her eyes rolled up like some of them rich folks?"

"If she wants to."

"And yo'll take all the risks?"

"What risks do you mean?"

"Waal, I hain't purty nor proud, but the ole woman is, and yo'll hev to take a twist out of her nose and shorten up her chin a leetle, or she'll git right up arter seein the pictur' and light on yo' like a turkey on a 'tater bug. The last feller that was here only survived two days arter takin her pictur', and I thought it was only squar' to tell yo' 'bout it."

The artist declined to take the risks, and the man picked up his coonskin and went out, saying:

"Can't blame yo', stranger. Can't blame yo' a bit. Yo' don't want to be tore all to pieces and hev this wagin wrecked fur the sake of one coonskin. I'll git the ole woman seven yards of kalliker, and she'll hev to roll up her eyes at that and let the pictur' go."—Washington Post.

Coins and Conductors.

A new industry among street car conductors was revealed to a patient passenger on an up town Sixth avenue car the other day. The conductor, who was in a talkative mood, opened conversation by exhibiting a coin of a mintage which commands a premium and remarking that many such coins, which were carried as pocket pieces, came into the hands of himself and his fellow conductors in the course of a year, either from passengers who were temporarily oblivious more or less of their surroundings and their actions or from men who had gone broke and had to get up town.

From that he passed to the topic of bogus coins, ingenuously confessing that conductors who took bad quarters or half dollars by mistake and were too conscientious to try to work them off on passengers sold them at the car house to other conductors at a discount of 5 cents. The squeamish conductors, he explained, had rather lose 5 cents than to try to pass the coins or to lose the face value of the coins The other conductors, he said, were always ready to make the 5 cents and there were of course always passengers available to whom the coins might be given in change.—New York Sun.

Both at Rest.

"I suppose," said the stonecutter, "you'll want 'Requiescat in pace' at the bottom of your wife's monument?"

"No," replied the bereaved Mr. Peck; "make it 'Requiesco in pace.'"

"That means 'I rest in peace,' doesn't it?"

"Yes, and I want you to sign that 'Husband.'"—Catholic Standard and Times.

Adversity's Round Robin.

"This is a cold world. A man can't get a job unless he has a good suit of clothes."

"Well, that's logic."

A Well Dressed Pauper.

In all large cities there is a way of getting rid of undesirable persons by means of giving them a "pauper's pass" to some city to which they want to go.

It seems that a lawyer who is quite well known about town and who, like many other persons, is not averse to traveling on a free ticket had made several requests to a certain official for a pass to New York. He had been refused a number of times, but with a persistence worthy of a better cause he continued to bore his official friend. Finally he was supplied with the magic pasteboard, and without looking at it he went to the railroad station and paid for his seat in the parlor car.

When the conductor came along, the lawyer, who, by the way, is a man of rather imposing appearance, was reading a paper and with the nonchalance supposed to be second nature to those who never pay their carfare held out his pass, never even glancing at the conductor. That official took the pass, read it carefully, looked at the holder of it and then examined the pass again with considerable care. The lawyer, noticing that the conductor seemed to be giving the pass more than ordinary attention, stared at the official with a manner that indicated that he might at least be a director and asked with considerable warmth, "Anything the matter with that pass?"

The conductor looked at his questioner in a quizzical way and then said, "No; the pass is all right, but you are certainly the best dressed pauper I ever saw."—Boston Transcript.

How Moody Got Out of It.

Many were the interesting experiences belonging to the first Northfield conference called by D. L. Moody. One especially shows Mr. Moody himself in his varying phases. It was the conversation hour at noon, and about 100 men were sitting under the tent on Round Top

Mr. Moody, leaning sturdily against the tent pole, led the meeting. Suddenly there came from him the plump question, "Brethren, how many of you have so grown in grace that you can bear to have your faults told?"

Many hands went up. Quick as a flash, but neither sharply nor insultingly, Mr. Moody turned to a young minister and said:

"Brother, you have spoken 13 times in 12 days here and perhaps shut out 12 other good men from speaking."

It was true. The young man had been presuming and officious. He had held up his hand, but he could not bear to be chidden, and now he stoutly defended himself, only making matters worse. Then another minister broke forth and berated Mr. Moody for his bluntness. The latter blushed, but listened until the reproof was done. Then he suggestively covered his face and spoke through his fingers, "Brethren, I admit the fault my friend charges me with; but, brethren, I did not hold up my hand!"—Youth's Companion.

To Cure Insomnia.

An English physician of distinction gives these suggestions for cure of insomnia: In cases where the patient sleeps for an hour or two, then wakens with a start and cannot go to sleep again the physician recommends that a hot water compress be laid on the abdomen. When one cannot go to sleep on retiring and is unable to dismiss thoughts that have occupied the day, it is advised that the patient keep his feet in water as hot as he can bear comfortably for ten minutes before going to bed. He should then put on a pair of thin cotton hose wrung out of cold water and over those a pair of woolen ones. A more powerful remedy is a mustard sitz bath, with the proportion of a teacupful of mustard to a gallon of hot water. He should remain seated in the bath from 10 to 20 minutes. In many cases a reclining bath in tepid water is useful as a sedative.

The Funniest Story?

Sir Wilfrid Laurier once said that he considered the following the funniest story in the world. Do you agree with him?

A gentleman was once being taken over an idiot asylum. He asked an attendant how they knew when an idiot was considered to be sufficiently restored to sanity to be discharged.

"Oh," said the attendant, "it is easily managed. We take them into a yard where there are several troughs. We turn on the taps and then give the idiots buckets to bail out the water and empty the troughs. Many of them go on bailing away while the tap keeps running, but them that isn't idiots stops the tap."

Subsequent Reflection.

"Oh, what a beautiful water lily!"

No sooner had the maiden uttered these words than Archie Sixcap resolutely waded out after it.

He sank in mud up to his waist at once.

But he didn't get the lily.

It was still yards away from him and in deeper mud.

"Fools rush in," he muttered savagely to himself as he turned and began slopping his way back to shore, "where angels have too darned much sense to tread!"—Chicago Tribune.

In the Business.

"Children," said Aunt Mary, "you have a new little brother. He came this morning while you were asleep."

"Did he?" exclaimed the eldest. "Then I know who brought him."

"Who was it?" asked Aunt Mary.

"Why, the milkman, of course. I saw it on his cart, 'Families supplied daily.'"—London Tit-Bits.

Her Reply.

The Husband (sourly)—You ought to know better how to use money.

The Wife (sweetly)—Perhaps I could learn if I had a little more to practice with.—Puck.

IN A BLAZE OF GLORY

PRAYER BY BISHOP FOWLER

Speeches by Vice President Roosevelt, Senator Lodge and Others, Also Other Exercises—Parade Preceded. Electrical Display Last Night.

Buffiao, N. Y., May 21.—In the presence of a vast concourse of people with ceremonial both conventional and novel, the Pan-American exposition was dedicated formally. The day was fair and last night the industrious, energetic men who planned this great enterprise rejoiced in flattering success. The day began with a parade, in which there were men from nearly every country in the world, and ended with an aerial bombardment from flying bombs and a brilliant electrical illumination.

There occurred a parade and other exercises. Bishop Fowler prayed and speeches were made by Vice President Roosevelt, Senator Lodge and others.

Marched From City Hall.

The procession formed at the city hall and marched by way of the main thoroughfares to the exposition grounds. It was an interesting spectacle and thousands of people lined the route. As the procession formed there was a reception of distinguished visitors, foreign representatives, state commissioners, officers and officials at the city hall. Vice President Roosevelt was the guest of honor, and when he reached the hall the parade was started with a volley of aerial bombs. About 2,000 troops, who got their time from four bands, led the way, and after them were about a hundred carriages with the officials and guests. Behind them came the concessionaries from the Midway. Western Indians mingled with the children of the tropics, the Orient and the Mediterranean and gave the procession its truest touch of color. They were in native costume, had a score of artistic floats and 15 bands furnished them music. The entry of the procession to the exposition grounds about noon was a magnificent spectacle. The crowd in the grounds at the time numbered about 40,000 and the greater part of it was massed in the esplanade. Dozens of great wave kites, carrying streamers, floated high in the air. The troops were halted in the fore court and then formed in double columns across the bridge of triumph. The officials and guests left their carriages, marched through the lines of troops and then continued on in a roped enclosure to the esplanade beyond.

President Milburne, of the exposition, and Vice President Roosevelt led the way and the crowd cheered them as they advanced. About a hundred yards from the Temple of Music they halted, and at the other end of the esplanade several thousand carrier pigeons were suddenly released. Confused at first by their own numbers, they circled low in wild flight and then gradually soared upward on graceful wing. High up, where they got their bearings, they parted and took flight to every quarter of the compass. Below the crowd looked on in silent admiration. The vice president and party then filed on into the Temple of Music, and the parade, reforming, marched on through the grounds. The formal dedicatory seremonies in the presence of a crowd limited only by the size of the hall wer impressive. There were strong words for closer union among the American republics, and the remarks of Vice President Roosevelt on that point and the congratulatory telegrams from the presidents of the American republics excited the greatest enthusiasm.

American Republics Represented.

All of the American republics were represented at the dedication and their military attaches and commissioners were given conspicuous places in the group of special guests. Friendly expressions came by cable from national neighbors. The exercises began about 12:45 o'clock with the rendition of Handel's Alleluio by the Seventy-first Regiment band.

The venerable Bishop Charles H. Fowler led in prayer before an audience stilled and bowed.

President Milburn read a series of congratulatory telegrams and their reading provoked cheer upon cheer.

Mayor Conrad Diehl was then introduced and spoke.

Robert Cameron Rogers recited a poem.

The Orphius society gave a magnificent rendering of Sturm's Salve Libertas and Vice President Roosevelt was introduced. He was vigorously cheered and made several attempts to speak before he found quieted auditors. He then made a speech.

Emilio de Gogorza sang the prologue from I Pagliacci and Senator Lodge was presented. He, too, was very cordially welcomed and spoke.

When he had finished Frederic Almy read a poem.

Lieutenant Governor Timothy Woodruff then spoke.

After the lieutenant governor had concluded the chorus, audience and band united in America. The benediction was by Bishop William D. Walker. The closing musical number was an inspiring march, rendered by the Seventy-first Regiment band.

Display of Day Fireworks.

At the conclusion of the exercises in the Temple of Music there was a grand display of day fireworks on the esplanade and about the court of fountains. There was first a salute of 125 aerial guns fired from steel mortars. At the same time 27 12-foot gas balloons, each lettered with the name of one of the Pan-American countries and carrying below the flag of its country, were released. Forty-five aerial rockets were fired, one for each state in the union. There was also a magnificen display of Japanese daylight works, Oriental kite displays, daylight bomb cloud shells, seting free American and Pan-American flags with souvenirs of dedication day, and finally a grand salute of 500 large gun-cotton rockets.

The Midway was the place where the set program ended, and the beauties of the esplanade, tower, court and mall were no match for its charms in popular affection. The barkers proclaimed its wonders in strident tones. An unusual number of concessions are included in the midway and many of them gixe extensive and attractive performances.

The feature last night was the electrical show. Many of those who came during the day dined at the grounds and joined in the night crowd. The electrical tower was a dazzling column of light and the play of the lights on fountains below produced some beautiful effects.

A WOMAN CONFESSED

Ayres Killed In Struggle Over Revolver, Said Mrs. Bonine—Made Insulting Threate.

Washington, May 21.—The mystery attending the killing of James Seymour Ayres, a census office clerk, in the Kenmore hotel, early last Wednesday morning, and which, because of the peculiar circumstances surrounding it, aroused Washington more than any tragedy in several years, was solved by a voluntary confession from Mrs. Lulu I. Bonine, a married woman and a guest at the house, that she had fired the three shots which ended Ayres' life. Mrs. Bonine's husband is a drummer for the wholesale drug house of Dewitt & Co., of Chicago.

At the commencement of the affair, she said that Ayres had come to her room in the Kenmore hotel about 2 o'clock Wednesday morning and upon the pretense of being ill had gained admission to her room. He complained of feeling as if he was going to have a chill and asked her to give him some preventive. She had a futile search for medicine which she had in her rooms, and he had then referred to some differences which they had had in the past and had asked her to come to his room, where they might quietly talk the matter over and come to an amicable understanding. She had agreed to go to the room as he had requested and he left her room, preceding her to his own. When Ayres called at her room he was entirely dressed, but when she entered his room, as per agreement, she found him standing behind the door, undressed, except as to his undershirt, and with a revolver in his hand. He then told her that he had enticed her to the room for his own purposes and that if she did not submit to his wishes he would kill her. Mrs. Bonine says that she immediately grasped the revolver, and in the struggle which ensued it was discharged three different times, striking him at each discharge, the last shot proving fatal. She says that the cries for help which Miss Minas heard were all from her, as were also the sobbing which Miss Minas described.

Mrs. Bonine says that after the shooting she passed through the window of Ayres' room on to and down the fire escape ladder, and entering the parlor window of the second floor passed through the parlor and back up the stairway of the hotel to her own room on the fourth floor. She then washed her hands, undressed and retired.

1,000 FILIPINOS RELEASED.

MacArthur Celebrated the Surrenders of Mascardo and Lacuna.

Manila, May 21.—General MacArthur celebrated the surrenders of the insurgent Generals Mascardo and Lacuna by releasing 1,000 Filipino prisoners.

General Moxica, the insurgent chief on the island of Leyte, surrendered, with 20 men, the remnant of his command.

The president of the island of Lubang, which lies northwest of the island of Mindoro, was arrested and brought to Cavite, charged with being an accomplice of the insurgents.

General Trias started on his visit to the insurgent leader Ballarmino, who is operating in the province of Albay, in Southern Luzon. Trias will try to induce Bellarmino to surrender.

Congressman Hall leaves Manila today for Zamboanga. He expressed himself as pleased with conditions here.

SOME STOCKS RESISTED

Strength Shown In Certain Ones, Despite General Tendency the Other Way.

New York, May 21.—The late upward movement of stocks last week failed to continue Monday, although there was some resistance at times in the way of strength for individual stocks.

The market opened irregular and then yielded all around to the realizing, but recovered quite strongly in response to a movement in the coalers. There was some strength also among the southwesterns, apparently on the score of published reports of a projected new steamship line from a Mexican port to the Orient. The obvious fact that the struggle for control of the transportation of future trade products to the Orient lies at the root of most of the movements working out in the transcontinental railroad territory gives any suggestion in this line an influence. The movement in the coalers was apparently speculative. The strength in St. Paul was not explained by any news, but the buying was called good. The stock yielded, however, in the late weakness and closed at a net loss. The weakness of Union Pacific was an effective factor in unsettling the market.

Allegations of a further issue of convertible bonds to finance the purchases of Northern Pacific stock were the prime factor in the stock's weakness. It closed at par 7½ points below Saturday's close, and at the lowest of the day. Other notable weak stocks were Atchison, which lost 4½; Consolidated Gas, as much; Sugar, 3½; Manhattan, 3⅛; Rock Island and Metropolitan Street Railway, 3; Louisville, 2¾; Amalgamated Copper, 2½, and a large number of stocks from 1 to 2. A number of the minor industrials showed notable strength, although their best prices were reduced by the late weakness. Among them were the International Paper stocks, American Linseed stocks, United States Rubber stocks; National Lead stocks and the rubber goods stocks. In American Linseed preferred and United States Rubber preferred the gains reached about 5 points. There was large buying of Burlington for cash, which was apparently connected with the fact of the proposition for the Burlington deal being conditioned upon the deposit of at least two-thirds of the capital stock on or before May 20. The beginning of the machinists' strike and fears of a spread of labor troubles was the depressing influence and the advance in sterling exchange rates with the decline of sterling at Paris, indicating further shipments of gold from here, as well as the heavy receipts of the treasury, which are unsurpassed for May, discouraged the borrowing of money for speculative purposes.

The bond market generally was dull and irregular, with some yielding in the late trading in sympathy with stocks. Total sales, par value, $3,330,000.

United States bonds were all unchanged on the last call.

TRAIN BROKE IN TWO

Train No. 93, "Conway drag," yesterday afternoon pulled a drawhead from one of the cars a short distance this side of the East End and left 16 cars standing on the main track.

The trainmen did not notice the break in the train until they reached Wellsville and No. 303, due at the station at 3:50 o'clock, was delayed one hour. The train was compelled to run through the side track, as the engine belonging to the cars did not arrive until 5:50 o'clock to clear the track. No. 360, due at 4:06, was also delayed for some time by the accident.

IN A BLAZE OF GLORY

Buffalo, N. Y., May 21.—In the presence of a vast concourse of people with ceremonial both conventional and novel, the Pan-American exposition was dedicated formally. The day was fair and last night the industrious, energetic men who planned this great enterprise rejoiced in flattering success. The day began with a parade, in which there were men from nearly every country in the world, and ended with an aerial bombardment from flying bombs and a brilliant electrical illumination.

There occurred a parade and other exercises. Bishop Fowler prayed and speeches were made by Vice President Roosevelt, Senator Lodge and others.

Marched From City Hall.

The procession formed at the city hall and marched by way of the main thoroughfares to the exposition grounds. It was an interesting spectacle and thousands of people lined the route. As the procession formed there was a reception of distinguished visitors, foreign representatives, state commissioners, officers and officials at the city hall. Vice President Roosevelt was the guest of honor, and when he reached the hall the parade was started with a volley of aerial bombs. About 2,000 troops, who got their time from four bands, led the way, and after them were about a hundred carriages with the officials and guests. Behind them came the concessionaries from the Midway. Western Indians mingled with the children of the tropics, the Orient and the Mediterranean and gave the procession its truest touch of color. They were in native costume, had a score of artistic floats and 15 bands furnished them music. The entry of the procession to the exposition grounds about noon was a magnificent spectacle. The crowd in the grounds at the time numbered about 40,000 and the greater part of it was massed in the esplanade. Dozens of great wave kites, carrying streamers, floated high in the air. The troops were halted in the fore court and then formed in double columns across the bridge of triumph. The officials and guests left their carriages, marched through the lines of troops and then continued on in a roped enclosure to the esplanade beyond.

President Milburne, of the exposition, and Vice President Roosevelt led the way and the crowd cheered them as they advanced. About a hundred yards from the Temple of Music they halted, and at the other end of the esplanade several thousand carrier pigeons were suddenly released. Confused at first by their own numbers, they circled low in wild flight and then gradually soared upward on graceful wing. High up, where they got their bearings, they parted and took flight to every quarter of the compass. Below the crowd looked on in silent admiration. The vice president and party then filed on into the Temple of Music, and the parade, reforming, marched on through the grounds. The formal dedicatory seremonies in the presence of a crowd limited only by the size of the hall wer impressive. There were strong words for closer union among the American republics, and the remarks of Vice President Roosevelt on that point and the congratulatory telegrams from the presidents of the American republics excited the greatest enthusiasm.

American Republics Represented.

All of the American republics were represented at the dedication and their military attaches and commissioners were given conspicuous places in the group of special guests. Friendly expressions came by cable from national neighbors. The exercises began about 12:45 o'clock with the rendition of Handel's Alleluio by the Seventy-first Regiment band.

The venerable Bishop Charles H. Fowler led in prayer before an audience stilled and bowed.

President Milburn read a series of congratulatory telegrams and their reading provoked cheer upon cheer.

Mayor Conrad Diehl was then introduced and spoke.

Robert Cameron Rogers recited a poem.

The Orphius society gave a magnificent rendering of Sturm's Salve Libertas and Vice President Roosevelt was introduced. He was vigorously cheered and made several attempts to speak before he found quieted auditors. He then made a speech.

Emilio de Gogorza sang the prologue from I Pagliacci and Senator Lodge was presented. He, too, was very cordially welcomed and spoke.

When he had finished Frederic Almy read a poem.

Lieutenant Governor Timothy Woodruff then spoke.

After the lieutenant governor had concluded the chorus, audience and band united in America. The benefiction was by Bishop William D. Walker. The closing musical number was an inspiring march, rendered by the Seventy-first Regiment band.

Display of Day Fireworks.

At the conclusion of the exercises in the Temple of Music there was a grand display of day fireworks on the esplanade and about the court of fountains. There was first a salute of 125 aerial guns fired from steel mortars. At the same time 27 12-foot gas balloons, each lettered with the name of one of the Pan-American countries and carrying below the flag of its country, were released. Forty-five aerial rockets were fired, one for each state in the union. There was also a magnificen display of Japanese daylight works, Oriental kite displays, daylight bomb cloud shells, seting free American and Pan-American flags with souvenirs of dedication day, and finally a grand salute of 500 large gun-cotton rockets.

The Midway was the place where the set program ended, and the beauties of the esplanade, tower, court and mall were no match for its charms in popular affection. The barkers proclaimed its wonders in strident tones. An unusual number of concessions are included in the midway and many of them gixe extensive and attractive performances.

The feature last night was the electrical show. Many of those who came during the day dined at the grounds and joined in the night crowd. The electrical tower was a dazzling column of light and the play of the lights on fountains below produced some beautiful effects.

A WOMAN CONFESSED

Ayres Killed In Struggle Over Revolver, Said Mrs. Bonine—Made Insulting Threate.

Washington, May 21.—The mystery attending the killing of James Seymour Ayres, a census office clerk, in the Kenmore hotel, early last Wednesday morning, and which, because of the peculiar circumstances surrounding it, aroused Washington more than any tragedy in several years, was solved by a voluntary confession from Mrs. Lulu I. Bonine, a married woman and a guest at the house, that she had fired the three shots which ended Ayres' life. Mrs. Bonine's husband is a drummer for the wholesale drug house of Dewitt & Co., of Chicago.

At the commencement of the affair, she said that Ayres had come to her room in the Kenmore hotel about 2 o'clock Wednesday morning and upon the pretense of being ill had gained admission to her room. He complained of feeling as if he was going to have a chill and asked her to give him some preventive. She had a futile search for medicine which she had in her rooms, and he had then referred to some differences which they had had in the past and had asked her to come to his room, where they might quietly talk the matter over and come to an amicable understanding. She had agreed to go to the room as he had requested and he left her room, preceding her to his own. When Ayres called at her room he was entirely dressed, but when she entered his room, as per agreement, she found him standing behind the door, undressed, except as to his undershirt, and with a revolver in his hand. He then told her that he had enticed her to the room for his own purposes and that if she did not submit to his wishes he would kill her. Mrs. Bonine says that she immediately grasped the revolver, and in the struggle which ensued it was discharged three different times, striking him at each discharge, the last shot proving fatal. She says that the cries for help which Miss Minas heard were all from her, as were also the sobbing which Miss Minas described.

Mrs. Bonine says that after the shooting she passed through the window of Ayres' room on to and down the fire escape ladder, and entering the parlor window of the second floor passed through the parlor and back up the stairway of the hotel to her own room on the fourth floor. She then washed her hands, undressed and retired.

1,000 FILIPINOS RELEASED.

MacArthur Celebrated the Surrenders of Mascardo and Lacuna.

Manila, May 21.—General MacArthur celebrated the surrenders of the insurgent Generals Mascardo and Lacuna by releasing 1,000 Filipino prisoners.

General Moxica, the insurgent chief on the island of Leyte, surrendered, with 20 men, the remnant of his command.

The president of the island of Lubang, which lies northwest of the island of Mindoro, was arrested and brought to Cavite, charged with being an accomplice of the insurgents.

General Trias started on his visit to the insurgent leader Ballarmino, who is operating in the province of Albay, in Southern Luzon. Trias will try to induce Bellarmino to surrender.

Congressman Hall leaves Manila today for Zamboanga. He expressed himself as pleased with conditions here.

SOME STOCKS RESISTED

Strength Shown In Certain Ones, Despite General Tendency the Other Way.

New York, May 21.—The late upward movement of stocks last week failed to continue Monday, although there was some resistance at times in the way of strength for individual stocks.

The market opened irregular and then yielded all around to the realizing, but recovered quite strongly in response to a movement in the coalers. There was some strength also among the southwesterns, apparently on the score of published reports of a projected new steamship line from a Mexican port to the Orient. The obvious fact that the struggle for control of the transportation of future trade products to the Orient lies at the root of most of the movements working out in the transcontinental railroad territory gives any suggestion in this line an influence. The movement in the coalers was apparently speculative. The strength in St. Paul was not explained by any news, but the buying was called good. The stock yielded, however, in the late weakness and closed at a net loss. The weakness of Union Pacific was an effective factor in unsettling the market.

Allegations of a further issue of convertible bonds to finance the purchases of Northern Pacific stock were the prime factor in the stock's weakness. It closed at par 7½ points below Saturday's close, and at the lowest of the day. Other notable weak stocks were Atchison, which lost 4½; Consolidated Gas, as much; Sugar, 3½; Manhattan, 3⅛; Rock Island and Metropolitan Street Railway, 3; Louisville, 2¾; Amalgamated Copper, 2½, and a large number of stocks from 1 to 2. A number of the minor industrials showed notable strength, although their best prices were reduced by the late weakness. Among them were the International Paper stocks, American Linseed stocks, United States Rubber stocks; National Lead stocks and the rubber goods stocks. In American Linseed preferred and United States Rubber preferred the gains reached about 5 points. There was large buying of Burlington for cash, which was apparently connected with the fact of the proposition for the Burlington deal being conditioned upon the deposit of at least two-thirds of the capital stock on or before May 20. The beginning of the machinists' strike and fears of a spread of labor troubles was the depressing influence and the advance in sterling exchange rates with the decline of sterling at Paris, indicating further shipments of gold from here, as well as the heavy receipts of the treasury, which are unsurpassed for May, discouraged the borrowing of money for speculative purposes.

The bond market generally was dull and irregular, with some yielding in the late trading in sympathy with stocks. Total sales, par value, $3,330,000.

Train No. 93, "Conway drag," yesterday afternoon pulled a drawhead from one of the cars a short distance this side of the East End and left 16 cars standing on the main track.

The trainmen did not notice the break in the train until they reached Wellsville and No. 303, due at the station at 3:50 o'clock, was delayed one hour. The train was compelled to run through the side track, as the engine belonging to the cars did not arrive until 5:50 o'clock to clear the track. No. 360, due at 4:06, was also delayed for some time by the accident.

MILLIONS FOR SCOTS

Andrew Carnegie's Great Gift For Higher Education.

THE AGGREGATE $10,000,000

Given to Certain Universities to Provide Free Education For Scottish Men and Women—Comments Made by Scotch and English Papers.

London, May 21.—Andrew Carnegie has given £2,000,000 to establish free education in four Scotch universities, Edinburgh, Glasgow, Aberdeen and Standrews. He stipulates that the beneficiaries be his "Scottish fellow countrymen" only, no English, Irish, Colonials or foreigners. The fund will apply to medical as well as to commercial education, and will be placed in the hands of trustees, who will pay the expenses of Scottish students benefited under the scheme.

A meeting was held in London to consider Mr. Carnegie's gift. Among those present were Lord Elgin, Thomas Shaw, M. P., Mr. A. J. Balfour, Sir Henry Campbell Bannerman, Mr. John Morley, Mr. James Bryce and others. The matter was discussed at length, but no conclusion was arrived at as to the best method of administering the gift

Mr. Carnegit desires that all Scotch men and Scotch women shall enter the universities on an equal footing, hence the money is not given to the students to pay their fees, but to the universities themselves. The system is made perpetually free and will probably be under government auspices.

Acording to the educational authorities the administration of Mr. Carnegie's gift presents considerable difficulties, and for this reason the Scotch papers for the present are rather looking the gift horse in the mouth, while the English press is inclined to cavil at the method of Mr. Carnegie's munificence.

The leading Scotch paper, the Edinburgh Scotsman, says editorially that Mr. Carnegie's offer is "disconcerting from its very munificence," and proceeds to show that the gift might disorganize the whole educational system. It points out that the fees which students pay are only a small part of the cost of educating them, the remainder being supplied by endowments, and that if Mr. Carnegie's project were to bring an increase of students the uniersities would be compelled to appeal to the public for further funds. Then, if university education is free, the country will soon be asked, the Scotsman contends, to make secondary education free also. In conclusion it asserts that acceptance of the offer demands the most careful consideration, although it is an offer which Scotland cannot afford to decline without the best of good reasons."

The London papers reflect these difficulties, while expressing admiration and gratitude "It is obvious" says The Times, "that this splendid gift cannot leave Scotch education as it was before Cambridge has not been lucky enough to be associated by birth or otherwise with a transatlantic millionaire, but nobody south of the Tweed will envy the Scotch universities, if we can only be sure that Mr Carnegie's generous donation will be well applied and administered in the best interests of education. Splendid as the promised gift may appear, it ought not to be allowed to pauperize the whole system of university education in Scotland, where the sturdy spirit of independence has been among the moral and intellectual characteristics of the nation."

The Daily Chronicle says:

"It requires great judgment to give away largs sums both wisely and well. It would be better to employ the money in freeing the universities from debt, completing the schemes of their faculties and endowing them for research."

ADJOURNMENT PROPOSAL.

Creasy Offered Resolution For June 14 In Pennsylvania House.

Harrisburg, May 21.—By a vote of 83 to 46 the house last night laid on the table a concurrent resolution recalling from the governor for amendment the senate bill relative to minority representation in the supreior court. The resolution was offered by Mr. Haag, of Schuylkill, and was generally supported by the Democrats.

The Creasy resolution fixing June 1 for final adjournment was referred to the rules committee by a vote of 73 to 56.

Mr. Creasy offered a resolution subsequently fixing June 14 to adjourn and gave notice that he would call it up today.

The senate held a brief session Monday afternoon and then adjourned until tonight. The order of business Monday was the consideration of bills on first reading. There were only four bills on the first reading calendar, all of which were read and advanced to second reading.

CURED BY THE LORD.

Crippled Boy Enabled to Walk—Pilgrims Hopefully Flock to a Brooklyn Church.

New York, May 21.—Cripples flocked to the Church of Our Lady of Lourdes in Brooklyn. They had heard how a poor little crippled boy had been miraculously enabled to walk again.

The afflicted filled the big grotto back of the pulpit, kneeling before the Virgin and praying that they might be healed. Their haggard, drawn faces shone with the first gleam of hope many of them had known for years.

Esther Cleveland Ill.

Princeton, N. J., May 21.—Esther Cleveland, the 9-year-old daughter of the former president, is suffering from diphtheria. The physician in attendance says the child is not in a dangerous condition and he expects no serious developments in the case. Mr. Cleveland, who has been on a fishing trip to Middle Bass island, near Toledo, O., is expected here today.

MAY CALL MINTON

Committee From East Liberty Church Heard the Moderator Preach at Philadelphia.

Philadelphia, May 21.—Rev. Dr. Henry C. Minton, moderator of the general assembly of the Presbyterian church, will probably be called to fill the pulpit of the East Liberty Presbyterian church, of Pittsburg. Rev. Dr. J. P. E. Kumler, the last pastor of the church, retired on April 1 on account of his advanced age, and a committee of 15 prominent members of the church has since been seeking some one to succeed him.

Three members of the committee were in Philadelphia Sunday for the purpose of hearing Rev. Dr. Minton preach at Calvary Presbyterian church in the morning. The committeemen were Judge W. P. Potter, of the supreme court; Dr. Thomas D. Davis and Thomas C. Lazear, a prominent lawyer.

Their duty is simply to report to the congregation on Rev. Dr. Minton's eligibility for the pastorate. All expressed themselves as pleased with Rev. Dr. Minton's ability, but would not express an opinion as to the likelihood of his being chosen. It was said that the committee would also hear several Philadelphia pastors and make a comprehensive report to the congregation.

Rev. Dr. Minton's election as moderator, it is said, is not responsible for the desire of the members of East Liberty church to secure him as their pastor. For some time the congregation has had Rev. Dr. Minton in view, but as he has not recently been in this part of the country no opportunity had heretofore presented itself to the committee to hear him.

The members of the committee were not to hold a conference with Rev. Dr. Minton and no action was to be taken in the case until a report was made to the congregation.

PITCAIRN HONORED.

APPOINTED VICE MODERATOR OF PRESBYTERIAN ASSEMBLY.

Opening of Buffalo Exposition and Publication of Sunday Newspapers Condemned.

Philadelphia, May 21.—Routine matters occupied the attention of the commissioners to the Presbyterian general assembly during the greater portion of Monday's sessions. The annual reports of the eight church boards were submitted to the assembly, and three of them, ministerial relief, education and freedmen, with the reports of their standing committees, were disposed of. The others may be taken up today and tomorrow, when it is expected the desk will be clear for the discussion of the revison of the committee's report, which is the special order for Thursday.

During the afternoon Moderator Minton announced the appointment of Robert Pitcairn, of Pittsburg, as vice moderator. Rev. Dr. Minton also appointed a committee of five to complete the details of the Peoria overture, the new plan of electing standing committees. A resolution was adopted deprecating the action of the directors of the Pan-American exposition in opening the gates on Sunday and earnestly urging the closing of the exposition on that day.

The special committee on Sabbath observance protested against the publication of Sunday newspapers and all use of the Lord's day for business purposes and commercial interests.

The report of the special committee on judicial commissions came up for consideration, but debate was interrupted by adjournment.

SERVICES FOR MRS. GAGE

Conducted by Rev. Dr. Hillis—Further Services and Interment to Be Held at Chicago.

Washington, May 21.—Funeral services over the remains of Mrs. Lyman J. Gage were held Monday at the secretary's residence on Massachusetts avenue, Rev. Dr. N. D. Hillis, of Plymouth church, Brooklyn, conducting the services, which were exceedingly simple. Rev. Dr. Hillis read passages from the Scripture and then "Rock of Ages" was sung, after which there was prayer and a sermon by the minister.

In the course of his remarks Rev. Dr. Hillis paid a beautiful tribute to the life and character of Mrs. Gage, whom he had known and respected for many years. The services were closed with a hymn, folowed by the benediction. Among those present were Senator and Mrs. Cullom, Attorney General Knox, ex-Postmaster General Gary, wife and daughter, Mrs. Garret A. Hobart and son, the British ambassador, the German ambassador, minister and other members of the diplomatic corps, together with a number of officials of the treasury department.

About 10 o'clock the body, reposing in a black broadcloth covered casket, was placed on the Pennsylvania limited train for transportation to Chicago. Secretary Gage, his daughter, Mrs. Pierce, and Mrs. Gage's sister, Mrs. Hendee, of Yonkers, N. Y., accompanied the remains. Rev. Dr. Hillis also went with the party. Rev. Dr. Hillis made a hurried trip from Rumford Falls, Me., in order to perform the service.

The funeral party were to reach Chicago about 9 o'clock this morning and the remains were to be transferred to the Northwestern road and taken to Evanston, Ills., where the body was to be placed in a vault in Rose Hill cemetery and interred Wednesday with final services at the grave, conducted by Rev. Dr. Hillis.

The floral offerings were numerous and beautiful, among them being a wreath of pink orchids sent by the president.

ACCOMMODATIONS FOR VISITORS IN BUFFALO.

Hundreds of Hotels, Boarding and Rooming Houses, Besides Many Private Homes, on the List.

So much has been said and written about the ability of the city of Buffalo to care for the crowds which will attend the Pan-American Exposition this summer that a few facts and figures will be appreciated by the general public.

In the first place, there are listed more than 200 hotels, which will give accommodation to 30,000 people; there are 650 boarding and rooming houses, affording accommodation for 18,500, while 7,000 owners of houses, most of whom never before hung out their latchstring for a consideration, have signified their intention of opening their houses for the accommodation of visitors to Buffalo this summer. These 7,000 homes will accommodate at least 100,000 visitors.

The Exposition Company has arranged to furnish tent accommodation on the Exposition grounds for 250 uniformed men. There are also two companies arranging tent systems which will afford additional accommodation outside of the grounds for 1,500 or so.

In addition to all this, there are a large number of buildings throughout the city now being remodeled and converted into hotels, the plans of which are not far enough along to afford an accurate description or to estimate accommodation at the present time. It is safe to estimate the present capacity of the city of Buffalo to accommodate 150,000 strangers. To this may be added accommodations for at least 50,000 in the surrounding towns, such as Tonawanda, La Salle, Niagara Falls, Lockport, Williamsville, Gardenville, Depew and Lancaster, all within a short trolley ride of the city.

Rates in hotels range from $1 per day upward. As ridiculous stories have been circulated in regard to exorbitant hotel rates, it is well to note the rates that have been established at the Iroquois, the most expensive hotel in the city. These are, for one in a room without bath, $3 and upward; for two in a room without bath, $5 and upward, thus making the minimum rate $2.50 per individual. The rate for a room with bath for one person is $5 or for two in a room $7.50. This is on the European plan. Of course there are rooms and suites of rooms in this hotel for much higher rates for those who wish to pay them, but the prices here given are the highest in the city for hotel

PAN-AMERICAN EXPOSITION.

The National Grange and New York State Committee of the Grangers have arranged to entertain 300,000 Grangers during the Exposition. Tickets entitling Grangers to the use of the Grange building and securing accommodations in the city are being supplied to all Granges in the United States and Canada.

MILITARY CAMPS.

Accommodations For the Soldier Boys at the Pan-American Exposition.

Many military organizations intend to visit the Pan-American Exposition during the summer. Arrangements have been made to provide first class accommodations for them.

The Exposition will maintain a permanent camp within the grounds for the accommodation of about 200 men at one time.

This camp will be supplied with tents floored, cots, buckets, basins, pint cups, light, water and sinks, for the use of which no charge will be made. It will be necessary for visiting organizations to furnish their own blankets and subsistence.

There will be no accommodation for cooking in this camp, but the visitors will no doubt be able to make satisfactory arrangements with restaurants on the grounds at reasonable rates.

It is expected that organizations taking advantage of these camp privileges will, at such time as may be agreed upon beforehand, give military exhibitions without charge in the Stadium.

Bands in uniform will be admitted to the grounds free. Organizations using this camp will pay one general admission per man when they enter the grounds and must be governed by the rules and regulations laid down by the Exposition Company.

On account of the large number of organizations now applying for camp facilities at the Exposition the use of this camp will be limited to a period not exceeding six days for any one organization.

Large bodies of troops visiting the Exposition must be quartered outside the grounds, where a large camp for this purpose has been established.

Major Charles J. Wolf is in charge of the Military Bureau, and he is kept very busy these days furnishing information to organizations intending to visit the Exposition.

The little bee is very busy at the Pan-American Exposition, gathering and storing honey in glass hives in full view of visitors.

THE MIDWAY.

Principal Amusement Features of the Pan-American Exposition.

The Midway of the Pan-American Exposition far surpasses all amusement features at former expositions, both in quality and novelty of atractions. The following are the principal concessions:

Esquimaux Village, Glass Factory, Trip to the Moon, Aerio-Cycle, Old Plantation, Beautiful Orient, Miniature World's Fair, Around the World, Cleopatra, Colorado Gold Mine, Living Pictures, Dreamland, Moving Pictures, War Cyclorama, Philippine Village, Alt Nuremberg, Panopticon, Streets of Mexico, Darkness and Dawn, Burning Mountain, Darkest Africa, House Upside Down, Water Sports Carnival, Gypsy Camp, Golden Chariots, Johnstown Flood, Infant Incubators, Fair Japan, Bostock's Wild Animal Arena, Ideal Palace, Jerusalem on the Morning of the Crucifixion, Indian Congress, Bazaar Building, Scenic Railway, Venice in America, Dawson City and Miniature Railway.

The Mechanics' Institute at Rochester has obtained space in the Educational division of the Pan-American Exposition for an exhibit. The pictures to be placed on view are three sizes—28 by 22 inches, 22 by 14 inches and 7 by 5 inches. Room for 32 of the largest size has been given to the Institute.

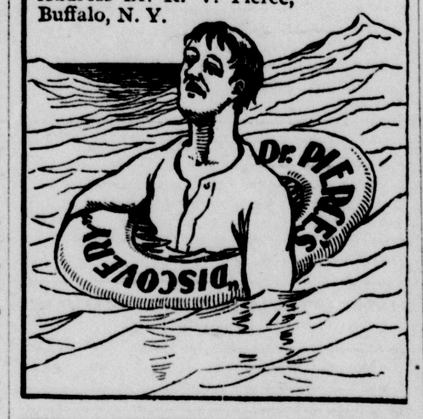

One of the novelties promised by John Philip Sousa, "The March King," for the Pan-American Exposition Band Concerts, is the new Sousa March, "Hail to the Spirit of Liberty," which he composed for the dedication of the Lafayette Monument in Paris last Fourth of July.

Varicose Veins.

An exchange gives the following cure for varicose veins, contributed by a person who was cured by it in less than three weeks: Peel a potato; grate it fine; place it on a white cloth long enough to well cover the ulcer. Warm it a little and apply in the morning. Renew at noon; also at night before retiring. Let it remain all night. Put on three new poultices next day just the same and continue to do so until the ulcer is entirely healed. Wash the ulcer every time the poultice is renewed.

Neuralgia.

The Prayer of a Nerve for More Blood.

Neuralgia may attack any part of the body but most frequently occurs where the nerves are most abundant.

In the head,
In the face.
Sometimes the heart nerves seem to twist
Twinging rheumatic pains of the extremities
Sharp and intense at times
In the intervals dull and heavy.

Neuralgia is the result of impoverished blood caused by impairment of the nerves—a lack of nerve force.

It is a disease of the nerve centers, and the pains accompanying it are a prayer for better nourishment. They are the danger signals which warn you against a total collapse of the nervous system.

Liniments and all external applications can only give temporary relief. Permanent cure cannot possibly come until the nerve centers are thoroughly revitalized and reinvigorated by Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills. The beneficial effects of this great nerve restorative are felt thrilling through the nerve fibres as week by week and month by month the nerve force of the body is restored. Women afflicted with diseases peculiar to their sex are frequently great sufferers from neuralgia. Dr. Chase's Nerve Pills positively cures both these disorders by filling the nervous system with new vigor and life. 50 cents a box at all dealers, or Dr. A. W. Chase Medicine Co., Buffalo, N. Y. The genuine has portrait and signature of Dr. A. W Chase on each package.

MILLIONS FOR SCOTS

Andrew Carnegie's Great Gift For Higher Education.

Given to Certain Universities to Provide Free Education For Scottish Men and Women—Comments Made by Scotch and English Papers.

London, May 21.—Andrew Carnegie has given £2,000,000 to establish free education in four Scotch universities, Edinburgh, Glasgow, Aberdeen and Standrews. He stipulates that the beneficiaries be his "Scottish fellow countrymen" only, no English, Irish, Colonials or foreigners. The fund will apply to medical as well as to commercial education, and will be placed in the hands of trustees, who will pay the expenses of Scottish students benefited under the scheme.

A meeting was held in London to consider Mr. Carnegie's gift. Among those present were Lord Elgin, Thomas Shaw, M. P., Mr. A. J. Balfour, Sir Henry Campbell Bannerman, Mr. John Morley, Mr. James Bryce and others. The matter was discussed at length, but no conclusion was arrived at as to the best method of administering the gift

Mr. Carnegit desires that all Scotch men and Scotch women shall enter the universities on an equal footing, hence the money is not given to the students to pay their fees, but to the universities themselves. The system is made perpetually free and will probably be under government auspices.

Acording to the educational authorities the administration of Mr. Carnegie's gift presents considerable difficulties, and for this reason the Scotch papers for the present are rather looking the gift horse in the mouth, while the English press is inclined to cavil at the method of Mr. Carnegie's munificence.

The leading Scotch paper, the Edinburgh Scotsman, says editorially that Mr. Carnegie's offer is "disconcerting from its very munificence," and proceeds to show that the gift might disorganize the whole educational system. It points out that the fees which students pay are only a small part of the cost of educating them, the remainder being supplied by endowments, and that if Mr. Carnegie's project were to bring an increase of students the uniersities would be compelled to appeal to the public for further funds. Then, if university education is free, the country will soon be asked, the Scotsman contends, to make secondary education free also. In conclusion it asserts that acceptance of the offer demands the most careful consideration, although it is an offer which Scotland cannot afford to decline without the best of good reasons."

The London papers reflect these difficulties, while expressing admiration and gratitude "It is obvious" says The Times, "that this splendid gift cannot leave Scotch education as it was before Cambridge has not been lucky enough to be associated by birth or otherwise with a transatlantic millionaire, but nobody south of the Tweed will envy the Scotch universities, if we can only be sure that Mr Carnegie's generous donation will be well applied and administered in the best interests of education. Splendid as the promised gift may appear, it ought not to be allowed to pauperize the whole system of university education in Scotland, where the sturdy spirit of independence has been among the moral and intellectual characteristics of the nation."

The Daily Chronicle says:

"It requires great judgment to give away largs sums both wisely and well. It would be better to employ the money in freeing the universities from debt, completing the schemes of their faculties and endowing them for research."

ADJOURNMENT PROPOSAL.

Creasy Offered Resolution For June 14 In Pennsylvania House.

Harrisburg, May 21.—By a vote of 83 to 46 the house last night laid on the table a concurrent resolution recalling from the governor for amendment the senate bill relative to minority representation in the suprerior court. The resolution was offered by Mr. Haag, of Schuylkill, and was generally supported by the Democrats.

The Creasy resolution fixing June 1 for final adjournment was referred to the rules committee by a vote of 73 to 56.

Mr. Creasy offered a resolution subsequently fixing June 14 to adjourn and gave notice that he would call it up today.

The senate held a brief session Monday afternoon and then adjourned until tonight. The order of business Monday was the consideration of bills on first reading. There were only four bills on the first reading calendar, all of which were read and advanced to second reading.

CURED BY THE LORD.

Crippled Boy Enabled to Walk—Pilgrims Hopefully Flock to a Brooklyn Church.

New York, May 21.—Cripples flocked to the Church of Our Lady of Lourdes in Brooklyn. They had heard how a poor little crippled boy had been miraculously enabled to walk again.

The afflicted filled the big grotto back of the pulpit, kneeling before the Virgin and praying that they might be healed. Their haggard, drawn faces shone with the first gleam of hope many of them had known for years.

Esther Cleveland Ill.

Princeton, N. J., May 21.—Esther Cleveland, the 9-year-old daughter of the former president, is suffering from diphtheria. The physician in attendance says the child is not in a dangerous condition and he expects no serious developments in the case. Mr. Cleveland, who has been on a fishing trip to Middle Bass island, near Toledo, O., is expected here today.

MAY CALL MINTON

Committee From East Liberty Church Heard the Moderator Preach at Philadelphia.

Philadelphia, May 21.—Rev. Dr. Henry C. Minton, moderator of the general assembly of the Presbyterian church, will probably be called to fill the pulpit of the East Liberty Presbyterian church, of Pittsburg. Rev. Dr. J. P. E. Kumler, the last pastor of the church, retired on April 1 on account of his advanced age, and a committee of 15 prominent members of the church has since been seeking some one to succeed him.

Three members of the committee were in Philadelphia Sunday for the purpose of hearing Rev. Dr. Minton preach at Calvary Presbyterian church in the morning. The committeemen were Judge W. P. Potter, of the supreme court; Dr. Thomas D. Davis and Thomas C. Lazear, a prominent lawyer.

Their duty is simply to report to the congregation on Rev. Dr. Minton's eligibility for the pastorate. All expressed themselves as pleased with Rev. Dr. Minton's ability, but would not express an opinion as to the likelihood of his being chosen. It was said that the committee would also hear several Philadelphia pastors and make a comprehensive report to the congregation.

Rev. Dr. Minton's election as moderator, it is said, is not responsible for the desire of the members of East Liberty church to secure him as their pastor. For some time the congregation has had Rev. Dr. Minton in view, but as he has not recently been in this part of the country no opportunity had heretofore presented itself to the committee to hear him.

The members of the committee were not to hold a conference with Rev. Dr. Minton and no action was to be taken in the case until a report was made to the congregation.

PITCAIRN HONORED.

APPOINTED VICE MODERATOR OF PRESBYTERIAN ASSEMBLY.

Opening of Buffalo Exposition and Publication of Sunday Newspapers Condemned.

Philadelphia, May 21.—Routine matters occupied the attention of the commissioners to the Presbyterian general assembly during the greater portion of Monday's sessions. The annual reports of the eight church boards were submitted to the assembly, and three of them, ministerial relief, education and freedmen, with the reports of their standing committees, were disposed of. The others may be taken up today and tomorrow, when it is expected the desk will be clear for the discussion of the revison of the committee's report, which is the special order for Thursday.

During the afternoon Moderator Minton announced the appointment of Robert Pitcairn, of Pittsburg, as vice moderator. Rev. Dr. Minton also appointed a committee of five to complete the details of the Peoria overture, the new plan of electing standing committees. A resolution was adopted deprecating the action of the directors of the Pan-American exposition in opening the gates on Sunday and earnestly urging the closing of the exposition on that day.

The special committee on Sabbath observance protested against the publication of Sunday newspapers and all use of the Lord's day for business purposes and commercial interests.

The report of the special committee on judicial commissions came up for consideration, but debate was interrupted by adjournment.

In addition to all this, there are a large number of buildings throughout the city now being remodeled and converted into hotels, the plans of which are not far enough along to afford an accurate description or to estimate accommodation at the present time. It is safe to estimate the present capacity of the city of Buffalo to accommodate 150,000 strangers. To this may be added accommodations for at least 50,000 in the surrounding towns, such as Tonawanda, La Salle, Niagara Falls, Lockport, Williamsville, Gardenville, Depew and Lancaster, all within a short trolley ride of the city.

Rates in hotels range from $1 per day upward. As ridiculous stories have been circulated in regard to exorbitant hotel rates, it is well to note the rates that have been established at the Iroquois, the most expensive hotel in the city. These are, for one in a room without bath, $3 and upward; for two in a room without bath, $5 and upward, thus making the minimum rate $2.50 per individual. The rate for a room with bath for one person is $5 or for two in a room $7.50. This is on the European plan. Of course there are rooms and suites of rooms in this hotel for much higher rates for those who wish to pay them, but the prices here given are the highest in the city for hotel accommodations as the term is ordinarily understood.

A number of local reliable agencies are engaged in locating visitors in homes in the city. These can be relied upon as being honest, straightforward and efficient. They are composed of business men of integrity, who will carefully protect strangers in the city, and visitors may feel assured of courteous treatment and safe conduct to accommodations which have received careful inspection.

THE MIDWAY.

Principal Amusement Features of the Pan-American Exposition.

The Midway of the Pan-American Exposition far surpasses all amusement features at former expositions, both in quality and novelty of atfractions. The following are the principal concessions:

Esquimaux Village, Glass Factory, Trip to the Moon, Aerio-Cycle, Old Plantation, Beautiful Orient, Miniature World's Fair, Around the World, Cleopatra, Colorado Gold Mine, Living Pictures, Dreamland, Moving Pictures, War Cyclorama, Philippine Village, Alt Nuremberg, Panopticon, Streets of Mexico, Darkness and Dawn, Burning Mountain, Darkest Africa, House Upside Down, Water Sports Carnival, Gypsy Camp, Golden Chariots, Johnstown Flood, Infant Incubators, Fair Japan, Bostock's Wild Animal Arena, Ideal Palace, Jerusalem on the Morning of the Crucifixion, Indian Congress, Bazaar Building, Scenic Railway, Venice in America, Dawson City and Miniature Railway.

The Mechanics' Institute at Rochester has obtained space in the Educational division of the Pan-American Exposition for an exhibit. The pictures to be placed on view are three sizes—28 by 22 inches, 22 by 14 inches and 7 by 5 inches. Room for 32 of the largest size has been given to the Institute.

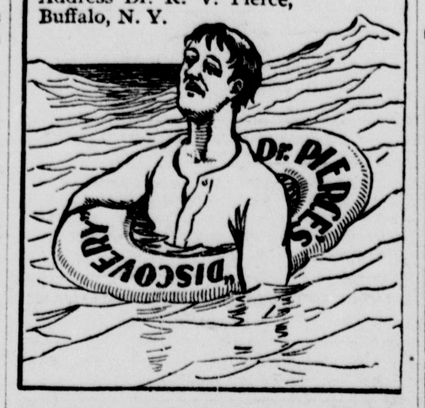

One of the novelties promised by John Philip Sousa, "The March King," for the Pan-American Exposition Band Concerts, is the new Sousa March, "Hail to the Spirit of Liberty," which he composed for the dedication of the Lafayette Monument in Paris last Fourth of July.

Varicose Veins.

An exchange gives the following cure for varicose veins, contributed by a person who was cured by it in less than three weeks: Peel a potato; grate it fine; place it on a white cloth long enough to well cover the ulcer. Warm it a little and apply in the morning. Renew at noon; also at night before retiring. Let it remain all night. Put on three new poultices next day just the same and continue to do so until the ulcer is entirely healed. Wash the ulcer every time the poultice is renewed.

Neuralgia.

The Prayer of a Nerve for More Blood.

Neuralgia may attack any part of the body but most frequently occurs where the nerves are most abundant.
In the head,
In the face.
Sometimes the heart nerves seem to twist
Twinging rheumatic pains of the extremities
Sharp and intense at times
In the intervals dull and heavy.

Neuralgia is the result of impoverished blood caused by impairment of the nerves—a lack of nerve force.

It is a disease of the nerve centers, and the pains accompanying it are a prayer for better nourishment. They are the danger signals which warn you against a total collapse of the nervous system.

Liniments and all external applications can only give temporary relief. Permanent cure cannot possibly come until the nerve centers are thoroughly revitalized and reinvigorated by Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills. The beneficial effects of this great nerve restorative are felt thrilling through the nerve fibres as week by week and month by month the nerve force of the body is restored. Women afflicted with diseases peculiar to their sex are frequently great sufferers from neuralgia. Dr. Chase's Nerve Pills positively cures both these disorders by filling the nervous system with new vigor and life. 50 cents a box at all dealers, or Dr. A. W. Chase Medicine Co., Buffalo, N. Y. The genuine has portrait and signature of Dr. A. W Chase on each package.

Brief Notes of a Personal Nature And of Matters About Town.

A Daughter Born—Born, to Mr. and Mrs. T. C. Rice, Broadway, a daughter.

Removed to Massillon—Mrs. James C. Hunter was this morning taken to the Massillon State hospital by her husband and son John.

Trial This Evening—The case in which Miss R. Bills is plaintiff and Charles Smith defendant will be tried this evening before Justice McLane.

Rehearsing For Commencement—The pupils of the high school have already began to rehearse for the commencement exercises. The program promises to be very interesting.

Teachers' Examination—The teachers' examination this spring will be held on Tuesday, June 4, at the Central building in this city. A large number of applicants will be examined.

Has a New Job—Robert West yesterday resigned his position as roller at the outbound platform of the freight station and has accepted a position as driver for a grocery store.

Hunting for a Clue—Two men in the employ of John Rinehart started yesterday for Burgettstown, Pa., where an effort will be made to get track of the horse and buggy which has been several days.

Mumps Epidemic—An epidemic of mumps is just now prevalent in the western portion of the city. A large number of childen are afflicted, among them being two small sons of Mr. and Mrs. William Lynn.

Had No Money Coming—Justice McCarron issued an execution yesterday against John Kelley, colored, for $3, which he owes Mrs. Daniel Woods. When the papers were served it was found that the man had no wages coming to him. He is employed at the Woodbine laundry.

Bad Places Still Left—Although extensive repairs have been made to the street railway tracks near the Sixth street switch, there are still some bad places, and yesterday traffic was delayed several times by cars jumping the track.

Funeral Yesterday—The funeral of Miss Jennie Franklin, who died at her home on Seventh street Saturday morning, took place yesterday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock from St. Stephen's church. Interment was made at Riverview cemetery.

Hit by a Ball—A little son of Harry Watson, of Third street, was struck in the face by a base ball last evening and sustained a bad bruise on the nose. One of the child's eyes was also injured, but not seriously.

Mayor Will Angle—Mayor Davidson is preparing to go on a fishing excursion next Thursday. He busied himself today taking orders, and those who have not as yet arranged for a supply of the fish he catches are instructed to call at his honor's office, where Chief Thompson has charge of the order book.

Funeral of Charles Roberts—The funeral of Charles Roberts who died at his home on Railroad street Saturday afternoon, took place this afternoon at 2 o'clock and was in charge of the Knights of Pythias. Revs. W. H. Gladden and J. R. Greene officiated. Interment was made at Spring Grove cemetery.

Proceedings in Ouster—Mrs. Nellie Walther, as agent, has filed suit in Justice McLane's court against Mrs. Smith, residing in the East End, to obtain possession of a house occupied by defendant. Another suit of the same nature was brought yesterday in Justice McLane's court by Thomas D. Wright against George Weddell. The defendant occupies property in the West End owned by the defendant.

Had to Give Up Carrying Mail—Mr. and Mrs. David Shimer and two children, of Bloomfield, O., are guests at the home of Robert Martin. Mr. Shimer has been in the employ of the postoffice department for a number of years, and carried the mail between Bloomfield station and Bloomingdale. Recently he suffered a stroke of paralysis and was compelled to give up the mail route. He is now in very poor health.

WHEELS OF JUSTICE

Grind Slowly in This Case, But Sure, Indeed—Bertine Lichtenstein Arrested.

On April 29 a charge was filed in Justice Rose's court against Bertine Lichtenstein for non-support of a minor child. Since that time Constable Powell has been looking for the accused man, but was unable to lay hands on him until yesterday.

Lichtenstein was located at the Laughlin pottery in the East End and brought before Squire Rose. He pleaded guilty and later effected a settlement with his wife, who had filed the affidavit.

RICHARD WATSON GILDER'S INSCRIPTIONS

The Pen of the Gifted Editor Gives a Finishing Touch to the Exposition. He Proclaims a Prophecy and Pronounces a Benediction.

When the people of the two Americas visit the Exposition city just erected "by the great waters of the North," many will recognize the style of Richard Watson Gilder in the classic and poetic inscriptions which adorn its Propylæa, Stadium, bridges, palaces and temples. The Exposition was peculiarly fortunate in persuading the scholarly editor of The Century to put the finishing touch on the artistic masterpiece. Those who read the legends will feel that their author is a man who "has upheld the ideals of Liberty and Justice" and who throughout a laborious life now in its prime has been "faithful to the things that are eternal," one who "has never shunned the dust and sweat of the contest and on whose brow" already "falls the cool shade of the olive" and rests the wreath of the victor's laurel.

INSCRIPTIONS FOR THE PROPYLÆA.

PANEL I.

Here, by the great waters of the north, are brought together the peoples of the two Americas, in exposition of their resources, industries, products, inventions, arts and ideas.

PANEL II.

That the century now begun may unite in the bonds of peace, knowledge, good will, friendship and noble emulation all the dwellers on the continents and islands of the new world.

INSCRIPTIONS FOR THE STADIUM.

PANEL I.

Not ignoble are the days of peace, not without courage and laureled victories.

PANEL II.

He who fails bravely has not truly failed, but is himself also a conqueror.

PANEL III.

Who shuns the dust and sweat of the contest, on his brow falls not the cool shade of the olive.

INSCRIPTIONS FOR THE GREAT PYLONS OF THE BRIDGE.

On the pylons are statues of Courage, Liberty, Tolerance, Truth, Benevolence, Patriotism, Hospitality and Justice.

PANEL I.

The spirit of adventure is the maker of commonwealths.

PANEL II.

Freedom is but the first lesson in self government.

PANEL III.

Religious tolerance a safeguard of civil liberty.

PANEL IV.

A free state exists only in the virtue of the citizen.

PANEL V.

Who gives wisely builds manhood and the state—who gives himself gives best.

PANEL VI.

To love one's country above all others is not to despise all others.

PANEL VII.

The brotherhood of man—the federation of nations—the peace of the world.

PANEL VIII.

Between nation and nation as between man and man lives the one law of right.

DEDICATORY INSCRIPTIONS UPON PRINCIPAL BUILDINGS.

PANEL I.

To the ancient races of America, for whom the new world was the old, that their love of freedom and of nature, their hardy courage, their monuments, arts, legends and strange songs, may not perish from the earth.

PANEL II.

To the explorers and pioneers who blazed the westward path of civilization, to the soldiers and sailors who fought for freedom and for peace and to the civic heroes who save a priceless heritage.

PANEL III.

To the great inventors and farseeing projectors, to the engineers, manufacturers, agriculturists and merchants who have developed the resources of the new world and multiplied the homes of freemen.

PANEL IV.

To those who in the deadly mine, on stormy seas, in the fierce breath of the furnace and in all perilous places working ceaselessly bring to their fellow men comfort, sustenance and the grace of life.

PANEL V.

To the scholars and laborious investigators who in the old world and the new guard the lamp of knowledge and century by century increase the safety of life, enlighten the mind and enlarge the spirit of man.

PANEL VI.

To those painters, sculptors and architects, tellers of tales, poets and creators of music, to those actors and musicians who in the new world have cherished and increased the love of beauty.

PANEL VII.

To the prophets and heroes, to the mighty poets and divine artists and to all the light bearers of the ancient world who inspired our forefathers and shall lead and enlighten our children's children.

PANEL VIII.

To the statesmen, philosophers, teachers and preachers and to all those who in the new world have upheld the ideals of liberty and justice and have been faithful to the things that are eternal.

LUCY BARTLETT (MRS. R. H. WHITE, JR.).

Lucy Bartlett is a beautiful Boston girl who began her career as a shopgirl, continued it by marrying the son of a New England merchant prince, and who has lately gone on the stage as a chorus girl while her young husband seeks a divorce in Colorado.

Took Him at His Word.

"Men on newspapers often have peculiar experiences," said W. A. Fairchild of Chicago, "and such a one befell a friend of mine some time ago. The friend in question was city editor of a great daily, and in the course of his manifold duties it fell to his lot to take to task one of his reporters. The reporter in question was an Englishman, slow of thought and action and miserly of speech. Through the tirade to which he was subjected he said nothing, and when it finally ended he left the presence of his superior without any comment.

"But, as the result proved, he did some tall thinking. City editors when 'riled,' as is well known, are not particularly choice or economical in the language they bestow on their unfortunate reporters, and among other things the Englishman had been told that he was no better than—in fact, was—a crazy man and that his proper habitat was a lunatic asylum and not the hall bedroom of a Chicago boarding house which he occupied.

"The Englishman took this part of the city editor's remarks as his text and acted upon them. He promptly went to an asylum, had himself thoroughly examined by three or four alienists and secured from them an official certificate to the fact that he was sane. With this he appeared at the office of his paper the next day, and, entering the editor's sanctum, he slapped it down before his astonished and dismayed superior. 'Now, you go and get one,' was his only comment and for once that city editor capitulated."—New York Tribune.

Bunkoed.

"His name was Alexander, and his weakness was the horses," said the reporter. "Surprising as it may appear, he won sometimes and enjoyed a brief nodding acquaintance with fortune. When the bookmakers got it back again, he took to drink and in the end went about trying to pick out a good place in which to kill himself.

"He bought a drink in a cheap hotel, and the quality of the liquor led him to believe he had found the place. He wished to do no man injury, but any one who sold that sort deserved to find a dead man on the premises. He hired a room, small, bleak, well calculated to make a man willing to blow out the gas, even if he had an aversion to it, which Alexander had not.

"He plugged the apertures, closed the transom, hung his coat over the keyhole, turned out the gas and lay down. Then he lighted it again and wrote a few foolish letters of farewell, so hard is it for even a tired mortal to quit with no word. Then he put out the light, saw that the gas was flowing freely and lay down.

"He noticed that it was ten minutes to 1 o'clock in the morning. He fell asleep, certain it was all over. (Oblivion.)

"He woke. The sun was streaming in. It was high noon. Yes; he was alive. He could not understand it. There was no gas in the room, yet it was still turned on. He finally discovered that in hotels of that sort they turn the gas off at 1 a. m. 'Bunkoed!' he said and went cheerily on his way."—New York Sun.

A Joke That Failed.

Professor Rogers and Dr. Dale were once lecturing in England, and at every town which they visited Dr. Dale noticed that his colleague, who always spoke first, made the same speech. In fact, so often did the professor give that speech that the worthy doctor knew it off by heart, and this fact led the latter to think of a way of taking the wind out of his friend's sails.

On their arrival at a town in south Lancashire Dr. Dale asked Dr. Rogers to allow him to speak first, an arrangement to which the latter readily agreed, so Dr. Dale rose and proceeded to deliver the speech of Dr. Rogers, looking every now and then out of the corner of his eye to see how that worthy gentleman was taking this practical joke. Dr. Rogers sat calm and composed, and when at length his turn came to speak he just as calmly rose and delivered, to Dr. Dale's utter astonishment, quite a new speech.

At the conclusion of the meeting Dr. Dale said to his colleague:

"I thought I had taken the wind out of your sails tonight."

Dr. Rogers replied: "Oh, no. I delivered that speech when I was here a month ago."

Origin of Cake Walk.

The cake walk proper had its origin among the French negroes of Louisiana more than a century ago, says the New Orleans Times-Democrat. There is little doubt that it is an offshoot of some of the old French country dances. It resembles several of them in form. From New Orleans it spread over the entire south and thence north. It was found of convenience to the plantation negroes. They were not wedded by license, and it was seldom that the services of a preacher were called in. At a cake walk a man might legitimately show his preference for a woman and thus publicly claim her for a wife.

In effect the cake walk was not different from the old Scotch marriage which required only public acknowledgment from the contracting parties. So this festival became in some sense a wooing, an acceptance or a rejection and a ceremony. This explains its popularity with the blacks outside of its beauties, with the accompaniment of music, which is competent at all times to command negro support.

Cake walking has improved, as do most things that are constantly practiced. It has lost its old significance in the south. Negroes now get married when they marry at all in the white folks' fashion. It has become, however, a pantomime dance. Properly performed, it is a beautiful one. The cake is not much of a prize, though the negro has a sweet tooth.

A Discovery by Chance.

Finiguerra, the master of early engraving, delighted in doing deeds of kindness. One day a washerwoman in washing a piece of clothing in which a needle had been carelessly left had the misfortune to run it into her hand. The needle broke, and more than half of it was left imbedded in the flesh. It gave her much pain, and as soon as she could she went to Finiguerra's studio, put down the bundle of damp clothes that she was carrying to their owner and asked the artist to help her. After much patient, careful manipulation with his fine tools he succeeded in extracting the broken needle.

The woman thanked him, and as she lifted her damp bundle to leave the studio Finiguerra noticed that it had rested upon one of his engravings and had received an excellent impression from it. The engraving, like all others of that time, was a metal plate complete in itself and was regarded as a single picture. The impression made upon the damp cloth suggested to the alert mind of Finiguerra the possibility of producing an indefinite number of pictures from a single original. By experimenting he perfected his discovery and eventually made it possible for all homes to have beautiful engravings, for previous to his discovery only the wealthy could afford them.

The readers of this paper will be pleased learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all it's stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing it's work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer $100 for any case it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

Odd Ideas of Providence.

The temperance lecturer, John B. Gough, had occasion in one of his addresses to refer to the indiscriminate and arbitrary yet consoling doctrine of Providence. He said: "Some people have strange ideas on this matter. Once when a ship was in danger a lady went to the captain in great distress. 'We must trust in Providence, madam,' said he. 'Goodness gracious, is it as bad as that?' she cried.

"A washerwoman had her little shanty burned down. She stood before the wreck and, lifting her eyes to heaven and shaking her fist, exclaimed, 'You see if I don't work on Sundays to pay for that!'

"In the firth of Forth a vessel struck on a rock, and a tug was drawing nigh to the rescue. A boy, much alarmed, was clinging to his mother. She said, 'Ye must pit yer trust in Providence, Jamie.' 'I will, mither, as soon as I get into that ither boat.'

"In New York a Dutchman with a companion went into Delmonico's to get lunch. They were charged $6. One of the men began to swear, as he thought the charges excessive. 'Don't you swear,' said the other. 'Providence has punished that man Delmonico very bad already.' 'How is that? How has he punished him?' 'Why, I've got my pockets full of his forks and spoons.'"—Kansas City Independent.

If a girl has a piano, it is dangerous to give her a bust of Mozart or a picture of Beethoven, for then the parlor is changed to "the music room."—Atchison Globe.

He busied himself today taking orders, and those who have not as yet arranged for a supply of the fish he catches are instructed to call at his honor's office, where Chief Thompson has charge of the order book.

Funeral of Charles Roberts—The funeral of Charles Roberts who died at his home on Railroad street Saturday afternoon, took place this afternoon at 2 o'clock and was in charge of the Knights of Pythias. Revs. W. H. Gladden and J. R. Greene officiated. Interment was made at Spring Grove cemetery.

Proceedings in Ouster—Mrs. Nellie Walther, as agent, has filed suit in Justice McLane's court against Mrs. Smith, residing in the East End, to obtain possession of a house occupied by defendant. Another suit of the same nature was brought yesterday in Justice McLane's court by Thomas D. Wright against George Weddell. The defendant occupies property in the West End owned by the defendant.

Had to Give Up Carrying Mail—Mr. and Mrs. David Shimer and two children, of Bloomfield, O., are guests at the home of Robert Martin. Mr. Shimer has been in the employ of the postoffice department for a number of years, and carried the mail between Bloomfield station and Bloomingdale. Recently he suffered a stroke of paralysis and was compelled to give up the mail route. He is now in very poor health.

WHEELS OF JUSTICE

Grind Slowly in This Case, But Sure, Indeed—Bertine Lichtenstein Arrested.

On April 29 a charge was filed in Justice Rose's court against Bertine Lichtenstein for non-support of a minor child. Since that time Constable Powell has been looking for the accused man, but was unable to lay hands on him until yesterday.

Lichtenstein was located at the Laughlin pottery in the East End and brought before Squire Rose. He pleaded guilty and later effected a settlement with his wife, who had filed the affidavit.

RICHARD WATSON GILDER'S INSCRIPTIONS

When the people of the two Americas visit the Exposition city just erected "by the great waters of the North," many will recognize the style of Richard Watson Gilder in the classic and poetic inscriptions which adorn its Propylæa, Stadium, bridges, palaces and temples. The Exposition was peculiarly fortunate in persuading the scholarly editor of The Century to put the finishing touch on the artistic masterpiece. Those who read the legends will feel that their author is a man who "has upheld the ideals of Liberty and Justice" and who throughout a laborious life now in its prime has been "faithful to the things that are eternal," one who "has never shunned the dust and sweat of the contest and on whose brow" already "falls the cool shade of the olive" and rests the wreath of the victor's laurel.

INSCRIPTIONS FOR THE PROPYLÆA.

PANEL I.

Here, by the great waters of the north, are brought together the peoples of the two Americas, in exposition of their resources, industries, products, inventions, arts and ideas.

PANEL II.

That the century now begun may unite in the bonds of peace, knowledge, good will, friendship and noble emulation all the dwellers on the continents and islands of the new world.

INSCRIPTIONS FOR THE STADIUM.

PANEL I.

Not ignoble are the days of peace, not without courage and laureled victories.

PANEL II.

He who fails bravely has not truly failed, but is himself also a conqueror.

PANEL III.

Who shuns the dust and sweat of the contest, on his brow falls not the cool shade of the olive.

INSCRIPTIONS FOR THE GREAT PYLONS OF THE BRIDGE.

On the pylons are statues of Courage, Liberty, Tolerance, Truth, Benevolence, Patriotism, Hospitality and Justice.

PANEL I.

The spirit of adventure is the maker of commonwealths.

PANEL II.

Freedom is but the first lesson in self government.

PANEL III.

Religious tolerance a safeguard of civil liberty.

PANEL IV.

A free state exists only in the virtue of the citizen.

PANEL V.

Who gives wisely builds manhood and the state—who gives himself gives best.

PANEL VI.

To love one's country above all others is not to despise all others.

PANEL VII.

The brotherhood of man—the federation of nations—the peace of the world.

PANEL VIII.

Between nation and nation as between man and man lives the one law of right.

DEDICATORY INSCRIPTIONS UPON PRINCIPAL BUILDINGS.

PANEL I.

To the ancient races of America, for whom the new world was the old, that their love of freedom and of nature, their hardy courage, their monuments, arts, legends and strange songs, may not perish from the earth.

PANEL II.

To the explorers and pioneers who blazed the westward path of civilization, to the soldiers and sailors who fought for freedom and for peace and to the civic heroes who save a priceless heritage.

PANEL III.

To the great inventors and farseeing projectors, to the engineers, manufacturers, agriculturists and merchants who have developed the resources of the new world and multiplied the homes of freemen.

PANEL IV.

To those who in the deadly mine, on stormy seas, in the fierce breath of the furnace and in all perilous places working ceaselessly bring to their fellow men comfort, sustenance and the grace of life.

PANEL V.

To the scholars and laborious investigators who in the old world and the new guard the lamp of knowledge and century by century increase the safety of life, enlighten the mind and enlarge the spirit of man.

PANEL VI.

To those painters, sculptors and architects, tellers of tales, poets and creators of music, to those actors and musicians who in the new world have cherished and increased the love of beauty.

PANEL VII.

To the prophets and heroes, to the mighty poets and divine artists and to all the light bearers of the ancient world who inspired our forefathers and shall lead and enlighten our children's children.

PANEL VIII.

To the statesmen, philosophers, teachers and preachers and to all those who in the new world have upheld the ideals of liberty and justice and have been faithful to the things that are eternal.

LUCY BARTLETT (MRS. R. H. WHITE, JR.).

Lucy Bartlett is a beautiful Boston girl who began her career as a shopgirl, continued it by marrying the son of a New England merchant prince, and who has lately gone on the stage as a chorus girl while her young husband seeks a divorce in Colorado.

Took Him at His Word.

"Men on newspapers often have peculiar experiences," said W. A. Fairchild of Chicago, "and such a one befell a friend of mine some time ago. The friend in question was city editor of a great daily, and in the course of his manifold duties it fell to his lot to take to task one of his reporters. The reporter in question was an Englishman, slow of thought and action and miserly of speech. Through the tirade to which he was subjected he said nothing, and when it finally ended he left the presence of his superior without any comment.

"But, as the result proved, he did some tall thinking. City editors when 'riled,' as is well known, are not particularly choice or economical in the language they bestow on their unfortunate reporters, and among other things the Englishman had been told that he was no better than—in fact, was—a crazy man and that his proper habitat was a lunatic asylum and not the hall bedroom of a Chicago boarding house which he occupied.

"The Englishman took this part of the city editor's remarks as his text and acted upon them. He promptly went to an asylum, had himself thoroughly examined by three or four alienists and secured from them an official certificate to the fact that he was sane. With this he appeared at the office of his paper the next day, and, entering the editor's sanctum, he slapped it down before his astonished and dismayed superior. 'Now, you go and get one,' was his only comment and for once that city editor capitulated."—New York Tribune.

Bunkoed.

"His name was Alexander, and his weakness was the horses," said the reporter. "Surprising as it may appear, he won sometimes and enjoyed a brief nodding acquaintance with fortune. When the bookmakers got it back again, he took to drink and in the end went about trying to pick out a good place in which to kill himself.

"He bought a drink in a cheap hotel, and the quality of the liquor led him to believe he had found the place. He wished to do no man injury, but any one who sold that sort deserved to find a dead man on the premises. He hired a room, small, bleak, well calculated to make a man willing to blow out the gas, even if he had an aversion to it, which Alexander had not.

"He plugged the apertures, closed the transom, hung his coat over the keyhole, turned out the gas and lay down. Then he lighted it again and wrote a few foolish letters of farewell, so hard is it for even a tired mortal to quit with no word. Then he put out the light, saw that the gas was flowing freely and lay down.

"He woke. The sun was streaming in. It was high noon. Yes; he was alive. He could not understand it. There was no gas in the room, yet it was still turned on. He finally discovered that in hotels of that sort they turn the gas off at 1 a. m. 'Bunkoed!' he said and went cheerily on his way."—New York Sun.

A Joke That Failed.

Professor Rogers and Dr. Dale were once lecturing in England, and at every town which they visited Dr. Dale noticed that his colleague, who always spoke first, made the same speech. In fact, so often did the professor give that speech that the worthy doctor knew it off by heart, and this fact led the latter to think of a way of taking the wind out of his friend's sails.

On their arrival at a town in south Lancashire Dr. Dale asked Dr. Rogers to allow him to speak first, an arrangement to which the latter readily agreed, so Dr. Dale rose and proceeded to deliver the speech of Dr. Rogers, looking every now and then out of the corner of his eye to see how that worthy gentleman was taking this practical joke. Dr. Rogers sat calm and composed, and when at length his turn came to speak he just as calmly rose and delivered, to Dr. Dale's utter astonishment, quite a new speech.

At the conclusion of the meeting Dr. Dale said to his colleague:

"I thought I had taken the wind out of your sails tonight."

Dr. Rogers replied: "Oh, no. I delivered that speech when I was here a month ago."

Origin of Cake Walk.

The cake walk proper had its origin among the French negroes of Louisiana more than a century ago, says the New Orleans Times-Democrat. There is little doubt that it is an offshoot of some of the old French country dances. It resembles several of them in form. From New Orleans it spread over the entire south and thence north. It was found of convenience to the plantation negroes. They were not wedded by license, and it was seldom that the services of a preacher were called in. At a cake walk a man might legitimately show his preference for a woman and thus publicly claim her for a wife.

In effect the cake walk was not different from the old Scotch marriage which required only public acknowledgment from the contracting parties. So this festival became in some sense a wooing, an acceptance or a rejection and a ceremony. This explains its popularity with the blacks outside of its beauties, with the accompaniment of music, which is competent at all times to command negro support.

Cake walking has improved, as do most things that are constantly practiced. It has lost its old significance in the south. Negroes now get married when they marry at all in the white folks' fashion. It has become, however, a pantomime dance. Properly performed, it is a beautiful one. The cake is not much of a prize, though the negro has a sweet tooth.

A Discovery by Chance.

Finiguerra, the master of early engraving, delighted in doing deeds of kindness. One day a washerwoman in washing a piece of clothing in which a needle had been carelessly left had the misfortune to run it into her hand. The needle broke, and more than half of it was left imbedded in the flesh. It gave her much pain, and as soon as she could she went to Finiguerra's studio, put down the bundle of damp clothes that she was carrying to their owner and asked the artist to help her. After much patient, careful manipulation with his fine tools he succeeded in extracting the broken needle.

The woman thanked him, and as she lifted her damp bundle to leave the studio Finiguerra noticed that it had rested upon one of his engravings and had received an excellent impression from it. The engraving, like all others of that time, was a metal plate complete in itself and was regarded as a single picture. The impression made upon the damp cloth suggested to the alert mind of Finiguerra the possibility of producing an indefinite number of pictures from a single original. By experimenting he perfected his discovery and eventually made it possible for all homes to have beautiful engravings, for previous to his discovery only the wealthy could afford them.

The readers of this paper will be pleased learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all it's stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing it's work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer $100 for any case it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

Odd Ideas of Providence.

The temperance lecturer, John B. Gough, had occasion in one of his addresses to refer to the indiscriminate and arbitrary yet consoling doctrine of Providence. He said: "Some people have strange ideas on this matter. Once when a ship was in danger a lady went to the captain in great distress. 'We must trust in Providence, madam,' said he. 'Goodness gracious, is it as bad as that?' she cried.

"A washerwoman had her little shanty burned down. She stood before the wreck and, lifting her eyes to heaven and shaking her fist, exclaimed, 'You see if I don't work on Sundays to pay for that!'

"In the firth of Forth a vessel struck on a rock, and a tug was drawing nigh to the rescue. A boy, much alarmed, was clinging to his mother. She said, 'Ye must pit yer trust in Providence, Jamie.' 'I will, mither, as soon as I get into that ither boat.'

"In New York a Dutchman with a companion went into Delmonico's to get lunch. They were charged $6. One of the men began to swear, as he thought the charges excessive. 'Don't you swear,' said the other. 'Providence has punished that man Delmonico very bad already.' 'How is that? How has he punished him?' 'Why, I've got my pockets full of his forks and spoons.'"—Kansas City Independent.

EVENING NEWS REVIEW.

HER HOME IS IN WELLSVILLE

She Was Deserted Four Months After Her Marriage—Jury Commissioners Appointed — Assignment of Criminal Cases for Next Week.

Lisbon, May 21.—(Special.) — Miss Catherine Browning, of Wellsville, was brought into probate court last night and adjudged to be insane. She is 27 years old and has been in her present mental condition six months. Her physicians say her malady is due to overwork in the Wellsville postoffice, where she had been employed. Permission to admit her to the asylum at Massillon was obtained by Judge Boone by telephone and she was taken there this morning by her father and sister.

Miss Browning is the daughter of Samuel Browning, of Eleventh street, Wellsville. She has not been employed in the postoffice for two or three years. She is not violent, but appears to be suffering from melancholia.

Judges Ambler, McCarty and Hole, for this, the Eighteenth sub-division of the Ninth judicial district of Ohio, composed of Stark, Carroll and Columbiana counties, met and appointed R. N. Chamberlain, of East Palestine; B. F. Roose, of Homeworth; Frank H. Croxall, of East Liverpool, and H. A. Tolerton, of Salem, as jury commissioners. The appointment is for one year from May 27, 1901. They have been ordered to appear at the court house next Monday at 1 o'clock, to fill the jury wheel.

Warren A. Schifler, of New Waterford, and Miss Nettie Cuthbert, of Leeonia; Ralph R. Winger and Miss Dora A. Stier, both of Homeworth, were granted marriage licenses today.

The case of Nora O. Dubbs vs. O. H. Bates, executor of the estate of the late Christian K. Betz, was called for trial today and will last all day. The action is to recover $1,500 which is claimed to be due on a note given in Salem in 1895.

Mrs. Blanche Bartholomew, of Wellsville, was granted a divorce from John Bartholomew. They were married in Chester, W. Va., in 1897, and went to the home of Bartholomew's parents in Youngstown. After four weeks of married life the husband left and the wife was penniless. Since that time the wife has been working in Wellsville as a domestic. She was formerly Miss Blanche Gamble, of Wellsville.

The following assignment was made this morning for next week in court, when Judge Hole will occupy the bench:

Monday—Jesse E. Summers vs. J. A. McAllister.

Timid About Fighting Chickens on Line Island—Wheeling Men Investigating.

The announcement in the News Review of Saturday concerning the intention of Prosecutor Brookes to co-operate with the authorities of Hancock county, on the opposite side of the river, in an effort to stop cocking mains, prize fights and other so-called sports on Line island, has caused considerable apprehension. Not only is the local sporting fraternity becoming uneasy, but outside parties who have been accustomed to attending illegal contests which have been pulled off at the island, are very much concerned.

Jack West, a well known sporting man of Wheeling, arrived in the city last night for the purpose of ascertaining whether or not there was a possibility of the proposed cocking main on May 30 being headed off. West owns several chickens which he proposed to enter in the contests, and he doesn't care to bring the birds up here unless it is a certainty the main will take place.

While he was not assured there would be no interferance by the officers, it is understood he was so far convinced that no trouble was likely to result that he proposes to take the chances. Several other Wheeling sports will be present at the main. Wellsville will come in with a large share of the chickens, and Steubenville, Martin's Ferry, Alliance, Beaver Falls and Rochester propose to be represented. Unless the authorities put a dampener on the affair, it is predicted the main will be by all odds the greatest ever held on Line island.

Although it has not yet been definitely decided, it is whispered about in sporting circles that a prize fight is being arranged for, to take place on May 30. The location is not known. It is said a local colored man will try conclusions with an outside party.

RICHARD WALKER FAILED TO KEEP HIS PROMISE.

Arrested While in a Half Crazed Condition From Drink—Fined $10 And Costs.

Less than a week ago Richard Walker, with tears in his eyes and vowing he would mend his ways, was released from the city jail after his aged father-in-law had paid a fine which Mayor Davidson had imposed on the man for drunkenness. Last night Walker was again placed in a cell in a half crazed condition and reeling from the effects of liquor.

Officer Davidson arrested the man on Second street on the charge of drunkenness and immoral conduct. He was taken to jail in the patrol and held there until this morning when he was given a hearing.

Mayor Davidson read the charges to Walker, who at once pleaded guilty, but before sentence was imposed he made a pitiful plea for leniency. The mayor had no sympathy for the man, and while Walker stood at the bar of justice shivering from head to foot, his honor administered a most scathing rebuke and finished by imposing a fine of $10 and costs and committing the culprit to the workhouse.

Walker begged to be given his liberty and repeatedly promised he would leave drink alone if given just one more chance. The mayor, however, refused to listen to the man and he was led back to his cell. He will be taken to Canton Thursday, unless he succeeds in paying his fine.

BOYS ENJOY IT

Exercises for Juveniles at the Y. M. C. A. Interesting and Popular.

The meetings of the Boys' band at the Y. M. C. A. are increasing in interest. Sunday 63 were present. The secretary seems to have some very effective plans for reaching the little fellows. Last Friday he gave them a phonograph concert with candy on the side. Yesterday he announced that he would allow the privileges of the association for a limited time to his boys, as he calls them. He will issue 15 day tickets, good for all privileges, twenty at a time. This week numbers 1 to 20 will be given out. The junior hours are 4 to 6 p. m., Tuesday and Thursday, and 9 a. m., to 12 m., Saturday.

The boys will be under the secretary's care, as he will look after them personally. To say that the youngsters enjoy such things is to put it mildly.

Works to Be Greatly Changed.

Bellaire, May 21.—As a result of the visit of President Charles M. Schwab, of the United States company, to this city it is authoritatively announced that the Bellaire steel works of the National Steel company will be enlarged to twice or three times its present capacity. It is also given out that the Mingo Junction plant of the National will be another of the plants to be enlarged. Already improvements that are expected to cost $1,000,000 are well under way.

PLAYERS HAVE A KICK COMING

Members of Nowling's Orchestra Are Protesting Against Non-Union Music.

NOT GIVEN FAIR TREATMENT

Is the Claim They Are Making, And Mr. Nowling Gives Reasons for the Complaint—Appeal May Be Made to Labor Organizations.

The members of A. K. Nowling's orchestra have a grievance. They do not believe they are receiving proper consideration at the hands of the citizens of East Liverpool, and are not bashful in stating their reasons for finding fault. The cause of the trouble lies in their claim that the members of local dancing clubs and even labor organizations are not exercising proper discretion in the selection of orchestras to furnish music at the balls, parties, etc., which the held in the city.

It is said that within the past few weeks four non-union musical organizations have played for dances at the Rock Springs park and that all were hired by East Liverpool parties. Mr. Nowling's orchestra is composed of union men, and he considers it an act of injustice that his musicians are not given better support. In a conversation he said:

"I am not finding fault with the management of Rock Springs park when I say that I am displeased because non-union musicians play there. I do, however, believe it is out of place for dancing parties, the majority of which are made up of union men and women, to ignore a union orchestra and secure the services of non-union musicians. Even out-of-town talent has been employed by some of the local dancers, and this, I claim, is also unfair. I only ask for what I believe to be right, and nothing more."

The matter is being much discussed and it is likely Mr. Nowling will personally carry the case up before the different local labor organizations.

SCARED BY A BLAST

A WELLSVILLE TEAM PLUNGES OVER A BANK.

Both Animals Went Down Twenty Feet With a Wagon Load of Goods.

A team of horses belonging to Samuel O'Connor, of Wellsville, were injured in an accident which occurred at Shadyside, just west of the Jethro bridge, shortly before noon today.

The horses were hitched to a wagon which was standing in front of Mrs. Wood's residence and which was being loaded with household goods belonging to the woman, who is moving to another dwelling. Just as the teamster was ready to drive off, a blast was fired at Golden's stone quarry, a short distance away, which gave the horses a terrible scare.

Both of them reared and plunged to the lower sile of the road, and a moment later the horses, wagon and contents were sent tumbling down over the steep embankment, 20 feet below. The driver jumped in time to save himself.

A party of men were summoned to the scene and immediately set to work in an effort to release the injured horses, which were pinioned underneath the heavy wagon. It was impossible to move the vehicle until another team was secured. Then a rope was fastened to the rear axle and the wagon dragged back.

The horses were cut and bruised in dozens of places, and it was thought at first they were fatally hurt. However, a close examination revealed that the injuries were not serious.

Mrs. Woods threatens to bring a suit for damages.

Dog Bit Him.

Clyde Mount was attacked by a dog last evening in the alley between Third and Fourth streets. He was bitten on the leg, but beat the brute off before it inflicted serious injury. The police are looking for the dog.

Selected from Thirty.

Steubenville, May 21.—Prof. Arthur Powell, superintendent of the Marion (O.) schools, was last night elected superintendent of schools here. There were 30 applicants. The salary is $2,000 a year.

PRINTERS' LIST IS MADE UP

After Almost Two Weeks of Faithful Work the Committees Have Agreed Upon a Uniform Scale Which Will Be Adopted.

As was predicted in the News Review of yesterday the last price was fixed and the final settlement arranged in the formation of the printers' scale at the meeting last night.

The session was a long one, lasting until 11 o'clock, and when it had ended the committees breathed a sigh of relief, as the task has been an arduous one, extending over two weeks.

The basis of settlement on the various articles coming under the scale is said to be satisfactory to both the men and manufacturers, although there were concessions made and some difficulty experienced in arriving at a final conclusion.

The president and secretary of the manufacturers' committee, Messrs. Owen and Carson, were given the task of compiling the scale, which is said to have been formed on an entirely different basis with reference to figuring than the method in vogue heretofore. It is said to be much more simple and is easily understood. The gentlemen will have completed the work by Friday evening, and at that time Messrs. Greene and Quell, of the printers' committee, will meet with them and check up the list and O. K. it.

On Saturday morning the list as formed by the conference will be laid before the national officials and the manufacturers' association for ratification. When this has been done the list will be ready to introduce in the various potteries under the jurisdiction of the Western association.

With this settlement the last of the pottery trades will have succeeded in accomplishing the task begun many months ago, viz.: The adoption of a scale of prices which will govern their respective line of work, with the positive assurance that no other employe performing the same labor will receive an amount less than that which is called for in the list just adopted.

A printer was responsible for the statement this morning that his trade might have been working under a uniform scale long ago had it not been for the indiscreet action of a member of the original wage committee. At that time it was declared an impossibility to form a list which would govern the trade in a satisfactory manner, and no effort was made to enforce the one formed at that time. From the result of the conference just ended it would seem this theory was incorrect.

AT FINDLAY

A Few Matters of Ancient History in Connection With the Potters There.

President Hughes' visit to the west has recalled a number of interesting incidents in connection with the employes of the pottery at Findlay.

Just now they are involved in a strike that will keep them busy for some time to come. There has never been a time that the employes received as high a rate of wages as prevail in other western manufacturing concerns and for this reason there has been trouble from time to time for many years. The kiln department has been the greatest sufferer as to wages, the employes of that branch receiving a very low rate.

There have been locals in Findlay almost ever since the potters' union has been in existence; in fact, No. 5 of that city was one of the first Brotherhood locals instituted. In February, 1890, a strike occurred there, and it was so long drawn out that the members of the organization who were loyal and could have accomplished a vast amount of good were compelled to seek employment elsewhere, and the charter was surrendered.

The result of this move was that the plant was manned with apprentices and incompetent non-union men, so that the class of work turned out by the concern was anything but satisfactory.

A union was organized not long before the late strike, but did not last through the time covered by the trouble, and was again surrendered. It has been customary for the employes to get mixed up in some difficulty and then become very much concerned in the organization of a local.

The present case was no exception, and a union could have been formed at that place a month ago, but would have done them no good, as they could not have enjoyed any of the benefits.

President Hughes states there will likely be a local there by the middle of July, but hardly before. He says the men are anxious to come in and will do so at the first opportunity.

The proprietor of the plant has also became weary of the non-union element and is very anxious to have the shop thoroughly organized, having come to the conclusion that in order to secure the best workmanship and cordial relations between himself and employes, this is a logical move.

Thirty New Members.

Local union No. 4, pressers, held a very largely attended meeting last evening, and about 30 new members were initiated. The organization is just now enjoying a degree of prosperity which is phenomenal.

Trustees Meeting.

PAPERS ARE SERVED

AND EX-ENGINEER GEORGE IS NOW SUED, FOR SURE.

Property Which the City Claims Was Attached, But Yet Remains in George's Possession.

Constable Powell attached the property last evening in the possession of ex-Eingineer George, which is claimed by the city and for which suit was begun Saturday in Justice McLane's court.

The property was immediately apprised by John Kerr and F. G. Croxall, who fixed a valuation on the same of $144.75. Before the material was removed by the constable, Attorney Brookes, representing Mr. George, filed a re-delivery bond and the ex-engineer is thus permitted to retain possession of the surveys, plans, etc., until the case has been settled. The plaintiff's bond has also been filed.

For trying the case June 3 has now been decided on, and a jury will settle the matter. Justice McLane will preside.

BEFORE GRAND JURY

Mrs. Matursh, the Assailant of Mrs. William Price, Will Likely Be Taken.

Attorney F. E. Grosshans, who represented Mrs. Lucille Matursh, the Italian woman who assaulted Mrs. William Price a few weeks ago, at the trial before Mayor Davidson, has given up hope of having his client tried on an insanity charge until after the sitting of the grand jury next June.

The husband of the Italian woman refuses to pay the lawyer's fees in her case, and hence if the grand jury returns an indictment against her, the state will have to furnish a lawyer, and Mr. Matursh will thus be relieved of the necessity of parting with his cash.

PARDON OPPOSED

In the Case of a Salem Young Man Now in Massillon Reformatory.

Columbus, May 21. — (Special.)— Homer Knowles, a young man of Salem, was sent last fall to the Massillon reformatory for an aggravated offense. A petition for his pardon was presented to the pardon board last April, but was not acted upon. The board is expected to take up and act upon his case next Thursday.

Prosecutor Brookes, a Salem minister, and another Salem citizen, have entered a protest, and favorable action by the board is scarcely looked for.

It May Be Some Time Before the Plan is Carried Out.

BUT IT IS BOUND TO COME

The Reservoir Now Under Way is a Mammoth affair, and Modern.

TO HOLD 12,000,000 GALLONS

The Department Has Not As Yet Made Any of the Arrangements, But the Matter Has Been Talked Over.

When the plans now contemplated by the water works department shall have been carried out, the system will be second to none in the country.

At present the facilities for serving patrons are first-class, being among the best in the Ohio valley, but those in charge are determined to make it as near perfection as it is possible to do. The only drawback to the plans as they have been arranged is the matter of finances. The expense of building the new reservoir now under way is being met from the regular income of the department, and when completed will represent an outlay of from $26,000 to $28,000.

The new reservoir is located immediately east of the old one and is to be connected thereto by a 24-inch pipe with a valve attached so that in case of necessity the old reservoir may be used by simply opening the valve. The new structure will be 23 feet deep and will hold in the neighborhood of 12,000,000 gallons.

The work under way will make the service, so far as the supply is concerned, almost inexhaustible, but there are yet other improvements in contemplation.

The money is not in sight just at present with which to bear the expense of the new addition, but those in charge of the department are confident it will come in the not far distant future.

The plan is to build a huge filter in connection with the reservoir, and furnish the water to the patrons from this source in its purity.

The filter will be located just east of the new reservoir and will be built so that the bottom of the purifier will be on a level with the top of the reservoir, or 23 feet above the surface of the same.

The inlet main will be changed from its place at the southeastern corner of the reservoir to a point at the upper end of the filter, so that the water must pass through a process of filtration before it reaches the reservoir.

Clerk Gipner was questioned with reference to the matter this morning and said:

"The department has not at the present time any plans under way, but just as soon as the condition of our funds will permit, I think the addition will be made; in fact, this has already been determined upon. The improvements now under way are being paid for out of the legitimate income of the department, and that is about all we can stand at this time, but I think it would not be out of place to say that the new feature will be added within the next few years."

ODD FELLOWS PICNIC

Acceptances Already Received Show That It Will Be a Big Affair.

The subordinate lodge of Odd Fellows, at their meeting last evening, initiated two new members, conferring upon them the second degree. Two applications for membership were received.

The canton will meet in regular session on Friday night, when several new members will be taken into the degree. Arrangements are being made to entertain the large crowd which is expected to attend the picnic to be given by the canton on June 5. A number of sister lodges have already been heard from, the last being that at Dennison. The lodge there has accepted the invitation and will attend in a body.

GLEANINGS OF A DAY

One of those English fault-finders has recently been with us—himself probably a potter—and visited some of the factories at Trenton, N. J. His idea of American-made wares, viewed in one of the largest pottery centers in this country, is not flattering to the Trenton manufacturers, and he tells his representative journal, upon his return home, that the ways of our potters are still very crude, and that the pottery ware turned out by them has "a thick and heavy air of the antique, such as might have passed for fine art in the days of the patriarch Abraham, but not since."

Verily, says the Glass and Pottery World, another Daniel came to judgment. We venture to remark that, deprived of any distinguishing trademark, a good many of the products of our potteries could be placed side by side of the English product and sold therefor without the purchaser being able to distinguish the difference between the two, even according him to be a good judge of pottery wares. When our pottery industries get fairly out of their swaddling clothes, and reach half or one-quarter the age of the English industries, they will attain as high a standard as most of the wares produced in England. They have already gained a considerable foothold in the English market, while our products of glassware are greatly admired in London, as well as in some of the large cities on the continent.

Judge James L. Price, of Lima, has been announced as a candidate for the Republican nomination for supreme judge, by the coming Republican state convention. Judge Price was born in New Hagerstown, Carroll county, O. He received a college education and studied law under General E. R. Eckley, at Carrollton, and afterwards began the practice of law in that town, being mayor of Carrollton and afterwards prosecuting attorney of the county. He removed to Van Wert and later to Lima, in 1882, where he has since resided.

The warehousemen and decorators of the Dresden pottery deny the report that was published Saturday that they wert defeated last Thursday by a score of 9 to 0 by the warehousemen and decorators of the Murphy plant, and say that they never knew they were to play a game on that day. The team is willing to meet the Murphy team any Saturday afternoon at any place, as it would like to have satisfaction and is confident of victory.

The Anti-Saloon League expects to hold Anti-Saloon meetings Sunday in East Liverpool and Wellsville on June 2. The list of speakers has not been named. A date for Lisbon will be arranged for in the near future. The league held services at Columbiana last Sunday. Funds for carrying on the work of the league are solicited at these meetings. Meetings will be held in the small towns and villages of the county on week days.

John S. Goodwin, of the Goodwin Pottery company, East Liverpool, was in the city last Monday en route to Buffalo, says China, Glass and Lamps, of Pittsburg. Mr. Goodwin says the craze for souvenirs reached high water mark at the exposition this year. "There are thousands of souvenirs on sale this year," said he, "and the best of it is that almost all of them are of American manufacture."

Articles of incorporation were filed in Trenton last week for the Buck Ceramic company, with a capital stock of $12,000. The incorporators are Edward H. Sweeney, Alfred A. Sweeney and Frederick C. Buck. The company is formed to manufacture tile and all kinds of pottery and earthenware.

At Urbana the Republican county committee passed resolutions favoring the abolition of the existing rule of a single term in office for the senator from the Eleventh district, declaring for two terms, commencing with Champaign county, and indorsing Senator E. S. Middleton for renomination in case the change is made.

The new addition being erected at the C. C. Thompson pottery will be completed this week. The second floor will be used as a turning shop, while the first will be used as a green house. The turners commenced their work today, but the green house is not yet finished.

Judge Cyrus Newby, of Highland county, was given the third nomination for common pleas judge by the Republicans of the second subdivision of the Fifth judicial circuit, composed of Fayette, Highland, Ross, Madison and Pickaway counties, at Washington C. H.

In a hotly contested ball game Saturday afternoon, at the ball grounds in Sebring, the Barnes colored nine of Pittsburg defeated the Sebring pottery team by a score of 16 to 3. The game was largely attended, and was exciting from start to finish.

The glost kiln hands at the Laughlin No. 2 plant have among their number a most unique character whom they designate as "Rip Van Winkle II." He takes a day off every week to sleep, so it is said, and this is his day off.

At a meeting of the district committee it was decided to hold the Republican senatorial convention for Trumbull and Mahoning counties June 20. Senator B. F. Wirt, of Youngstown, will be renominated by acclamation.

"Red" Allison, Charles Meyers, Theodore King, Dimar Wheatley and Henry King, all jiggermen at the Laughlin No. 2 plant, loafed yesterday afternoon on account of a shortage of help. Also several of the jiggers were broken.

Harry Jenkins, who was employed in the clay shops at the Vodrey pottery, has resigned his position and returned to his home on the Big Sandy in West Virginia.

Miss Mayme Zink resigned her position as dresser at the Dresden Saturday and yesterday accepted a similar one at the Taylor, Lee & Smith pottery in Chester.

Josh Chadwick yesterday commenced the work of making slop jars at the Burford pottery. It is a new shape and was recently secured by the plant.

Hiram Roth, who was formerly employed at the La Belle pottery in Wheeling, has accepted a position as glost kilnman at the Chetwynd plant.

John Wilkinson, jiggerman, and William Button, kilnhand, will represent the Steubenville Potters Union No. 30 at East Liverpool July 8.

Licking county's Democratic mass meeting endorsed Kilbourne for governor and John David Jones and Emmet Wickham for judges.

The work of erecting the new gas engine recently purchased for the Burford pottery was completed yesterday afternoon.

F. F. Debolt left yesterday afternoon for a week's trip through Pennsylvania in the interests of the French China company.

John Howard, who formerly worked at Arnold's store, has accepted a position in the clay shop at the Laughlin No. 2 plant.

Thomas Boyd, who is employed as batter-out for John Godwin at the Laughlin plant, is off duty on account of illness.

Ralph Howe, of California Hollow, has accepted a position as mold runner for William Brandt at the Vodrey pottery.

Frank Timmers, who is boss of the clay shops at the Klondike plant, went to Sebring yesterday on business.

The Burford Bros. last week placed a number of new ware bins in the warehouse of their property.

Charley Yoch, a potter of Wheeling, was looking for a position in one of the East End potteries yesterday.

EAST END

A JOB OF GRADING

Begun By the Street Railway Company Below Neville Institute.

The street railway company has commenced the grading of the bank below Neville Institute. This strip, which is about 200 yards long, will require more excavating than will be necessary at any other place along the extension.

When this is completed the work will be pushed rapidly, as the largest part of the remaining portion of the track will require but little grading.

STONE CRUSHING

An Industry in Which John Forbes Proposes to Engage.

John Forbes and John Arnold went to Smith's Ferry this morning to purchase an engine which Mr. Forbes will use to operate a sand crusher. The machine will be put in operation on the Frank Riley farm, where, it is said, there is enough soft rock to keep a crusher going for half a century.

Home From the Seminary.

Dislocated a Finger.

EAST END AFFAIRS.

George Hunt is off duty on account of illness.

Samuel Dixon, of St. George street, is very ill, threatened with typhoid fever.

Mrs. William Brandt is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Eli Downard, at Sebring.

Harvey Hays is erecting a new residence on High street in the rear of the M. E. church.

Walter C. Supplee is in Lisbon, his suit against that town having been set for hearing today.

Mr. and Mrs. Moselle Ull, of Cabel county, W. Va., are visiting Mrs. David Garl, of Dixonville.

John Patterson, of Rochester, Pa., is visiting his nephew, William Spearhas, of Mulberry street.

William McClure, of Dixonville, has purchased a farm near Frederickstown and will remove to it soon.

A. M. Fisher is moving into the Chambers house near the M. E. church. He purchased this property recently.

Mrs. William Spearhas, who is ill with fever at Esther, Pa., is improving rapidly, but is still unable to be out.

Selvy Garl, of Dixonville, who has been ill with typhoid fever for some time, is able to be up but is not able to be out.

The Young People's society of the Second U. P. church have arranged to hold an elaborate social and festival at the church this evening.

Sweet Revenge.

"Naw; I ain't working any more, I've lost me job," said the diminutive office boy when he was asked about it. "But I got even, betcher life! I heard the old man telling a feller that I was no good and that he was going to fire me at the end of the week. He said the only thing I could do was to sit on a stool and balance a ruler on the end of my nose.

"Well, when I heard the old man say that he was going to fire me, I just laid low to get even. And I did, betcher life! There was a book agent what had been pestering the life out of the old man, and he was expecting her to call again, so he made a sneak and told me to tell her when she called that he had gone west for good and wasn't coming back.

"Well, just then his wife telephoned him that she was coming down to the office to see him about something, and he told me to tell her when she came to take a seat and wait for him.

"Well, I saw my chance to get even. So when the book agent came in I told her that the old man had left word for her to wait for him. Then when his wife blew in, I told her that the old man had gone west and left word for her that she needn't expect to see him again.

"Geerusalem! Maybe you think the sparks didn't fly then. I waited till the fireworks were over, then I wrote out me resignation, balanced the ruler on me nose for the last time and left."—Detroit Free Press.

ENGLAND'S FIRST SHIP.

Great Harry Was the Country's Premier Fighting Machine.

Of the first ship, properly speaking, of the British navy, known as the Great Harry, the following particulars are given in an old number of the Mechanic's Magazine, dated Oct. 25, 1823:

The Great Harry was built by King Henry VII at a cost of £14,000, and was burned at Woolwich, through accident, in 1553.

Though King Henry, as well as other princes, hired many ships, exclusive of those which the different seaports were obliged to furnish, he seems thus to have been the first king who thought of avoiding this inconvenience by raising such a force as might be at all times sufficient for the service of the state. Historians tell us that he caused his navy, which had been neglected in the preceding reign, to be put in a condition to protect the British coasts against all foreign invasions, and that in the midst of profound peace he always kept up a fleet ready to act.

In August, 1512, the Regent, a ship of 1,000 tons, which was at that time the largest vessel in the British navy, was burned, and to replace it the Great Harry, or, as it was also known, the Henry Grace de Dieu, was built in 1515.

The vessel, of about 1,000 tons burden, was manned by 349 soldiers, 301 marines and 50 gunners. She had four masts and portholes on both decks and in other parts.

Before the time of her construction the cannon were placed above deck and on the prow and poop. One Decharges, a French builder at Brest, is said to have invented portholes.

In a list of the British navy, as it stood on Jan. 5, 1548, the Great Harry is said to have carried 19 brass and 103 iron pieces of ordnance.

The name of the ship is supposed to have been changed in the reign of Edward VI to Edward, which, on Aug. 26, 1552, was reported to be still "in good case to serve," and was ordered "to be grounded and calked once a year to keep it tight."—Cassier's Magazine.

Clay's First Speech.

Henry Clay as a young man was extremely bashful, although he possessed uncommon brightness of intellect and fascinating address, without effort making the little he knew pass for much more. In the early part of his career he settled in Lexington, Va., where he found the society most congenial, though the clients seemed somewhat recalcitrant to the young lawyer. He joined a debating society at length, but for several meetings he remained a silent listener.

One evening, after a lengthy debate, the subject was being put to a vote, when Clay was heard to observe softly to a friend that the matter in question was by no means exhausted. He was at once asked to speak and after some hesitation rose to his feet. Finding himself thus unexpectedly confronted by an audience, he was covered with confusion and began, as he had frequently done in imaginary appeals to the court, "Gentlemen of the jury."

A titter that ran through the audience only served to heighten his embarrassment, and the obnoxious phrase fell from his lips again. Then he gathered himself together and launched into a peroration so brilliantly lucid and impassioned that it carried the house by storm and laid the cornerstone to his future greatness, his first case coming to him as a result of this speech, which some consider the finest he ever made.—Collier's Weekly.

MRS. M'KINLEY GAINS

r Condition is Pronounced by Most Encouraging.

HE PRESIDENT WAS CHEERFUL

rrangements Were to Go Direct to Washington and Not to Canton, as Had Been Unofficially Stated—The President Visited His Uncle.

San Francisco, May 21.—Secretary ortelyou gave out the following statement about 9 o'clock last night:

"DRS. HIRSCHFELDER AND GIBONE MET DR. RIXEY AT 8:30 P. . THEY FIND THAT MRS. M'KINEY'S IMPROVEMENT HAS CONINUED THROUGHOUT THE DAY ND THAT HER CODITION TOIGHT IS EXCELLENT. DRS. IRSCHFELDER, GIBBONS AND USHING WILL MEET DR. RIXEY T 11:30 A. M. TOMORROW."

Mrs. McKinley passed a very good fternoon and the president was very heerful over the improved condition.

The above announcement was made t the Scott residence last night. While Mrs. McKinley did not leave er bed Monday, she passed considrable time propped up and rested ell. While no definite date had een set for the president's departure he present arrangements were to go irect to Washington, and not to Canon, as has been unofficially stated.

In spite of the stormy weather Monday the president did not remain ndoors. Carriages were summoned bout 9 a. m. and the president drove o the residence of his uncle, Benjanin J. McKinley, on Bush street, where he spent about 10 minutes vising with the family. He then drove o the home of his niece, Mrs. George Morse. His visit was wholly unexpected by Mrs. Morse, who had left he house some time previously to go o the Scott residence. The president returned directly to the Scott house or luncheon. Among the callers on he president Monday was Richard J. Carson, Jr., the young member of the rmy signal corps who has been appointed to West Point in recognition f his gallantry in saving the lives f several men in the Philippines. He alled to thank the president for his ppointment.

UBURN-HAIRED WOMAN FOUND.

tanley Confessed He Had Lied About Late Rev. Father Phillips.

New York, May 21.—Interest in the ragic death of Rev. Father Phillips, f Hazleton, which had by no means ubsided, was made more acute y the bringing to the West Fortyighth street police station of a woan with auburn hair, who answered he description of the woman whom he police have been looking for and ho has been referred to as "Dr. tanley's wife." She was closeted ith Captain Donahue for over four ours and he then took her to lunch, fter which the two went back to the tation.

The police took extraordinary eans to keep the identity of the oman secret. They even went to the xtent of denying that she had anyhing to do with the case of Father hillips. However, Assistant District ttorney Garvan, who has charge of he case for the district attorney's office, was sent for and talked with the ysterious woman for about an hour nd a half. When he had finished the nterview he said that the woman as the one Stanley had introduced s his wife and that she might be eld as a witness in the case, but hat he would not say so positively. e also said:

"I am satisfied that this woman as nothing to do with the case. I hall not give her name because she omes from a very respectable famly. I want to shield her because I elieve in my heart that she had othing to do with the case whatever. questioned her closely and am satisied that she does not know anything bout it."

The other day Stanley cleared Phillips of the charge he at first made, f women being in the room with hem.

MANY FIRMS SIGNED.

Machinists' Demands Conceded to About 30,000 Men—Gompers Claimed He Was Pleased.

Washington, May 21.—President O'Connell, of the Machinists' union, said last night that up to 5 o'clock reports showed that 904 firms employing approximately 30,000 men, had signed the agreements for the nine-hour day or made satisfactory arrangements with the local organizations.

Cincinnati, May 21.—President Samuel Gompers, of the American Federation of Labor, gave out a statement regarding the great machinists' strike last night, saying in part:

"The results of the strike thus far are very gratifying to me and victory certainly awaits the strikers. A great number of employers throughout the country has already acceded to the nine-hour day, although not quite as many as I had anticipated. Still, the reports that have reached me are remarkable in their showing a unanimity of action between both union and non-union men, which presages ultimate victory."

UNCLE SAM'S NEW GUN.

Captain Crozier Has Invented a Wire Wound Affair of Great Utility.

Uncle Sam is fortunate in having in his army Captain William Crozier, for that gentleman is probably the leading "gun sharp" in the United States and one of the best in the world. Captain Crozier has just demonstrated his knowledge of heavy ordnance by perfecting a new type of the wire wound gun which presents several points of superiority over others of its kind.

Captain Crozier's new gun consists of a tube of the best forged steel, an envelope of wire wound over the rear portion of the tube abutting at the forward end against a series of rings, an envelope of wire wound upon the forward portion abutting at the front end against a ring and at the rear end against the other rings. Over the rear portion of the gun is placed a jacket with a very slight shrinkage which has a shoulder upon its inner surface near the forward end. A feature of the invention consists of the manner of so locking the parts of the gun that they cannot separate under the severe strain to which it is subjected.

A Cherokee Dish.

An article of food much used by the Cherokees is made from corn. The process is first to soak the corn in strong lye made from hickory ashes, just as white people in the country make hominy. This removes the hulls. The corn is then put into a large mortar made by hollowing out the end of a large log and is pounded by a huge pestle.

As the process of pounding goes on the crushed corn is removed from the mortar and riddled with a sieve made of cane and then fanned in the wind to remove the hulls. The "grit," as the course meal is called, is then replaced in the mortar and pounded into a fine meal. It is then boiled up with cayenne pepper and other ingredients. A small amount of lye is left in the meal, and it has a tendency to preserve it for a long time. However, if the stuff sours, it is regarded as a great delicacy. It is known as "con-a-hanna." The food is sometimes varied by the addition of nuts, which is considered especially fine. With the nuts it is called "ca-nutch."

In the olden times cakes were made of "con-a-hanna" by baking the substance in rudely constructed rock ovens or in hot ashes. These cakes would keep for a long time and, in connection with the wild game, provided nourishment for the Indians on their long hunts. Many of the older Cherokees still use the mortar and pestle to make the dish.—Kansas City Journal.

The Honorable Board.

Sam Rawson occasionally said a good thing, and one of these occasions chanced to be the town meeting. The people of Sam's village could not understand how the money appropriated for the roads had vanished with such poor results.

A stretch of road running past Sam's house was in notoriously poor condition, although Sam declared that he had paid liberally to have it put in good order, and there was general interest when Sam rose to make his statement before the selectmen.

"I'd just like to say one thing," he crawled, heedless of the fact that he had interrupted an indignant neighbor. "I don't want to make any fuss, but I'd just like to ask the honorable board of highwaymen"—

That was as far as he could get. A roar of laughter swept over the town meeting and showed its effects in the red faces of the "highwaymen."—Youth's Companion.

THE PROSPEROUS SOUTH.

The demand for a reorganization or regeneration of the Democratic party is loudest and strongest in the south, where, ever since there has been a Democratic party, the people have been unswerving in their fidelity to its principles, or what passed for principles. But there has been an industrial awakening in Dixie. The prosperity that has swept across the country has found a firm foothold there. New business methods have come in along with new capital and new men and political traditions are rudely trampled upon. The wisest Democrats in the south begin to see that, if their party is to continue supreme there, it must have a better foundation than mere antagonism to the party in power. The south is for sound money, expansion and progress; the Democracy of the north is for a Bryan dollar, contraction and retrogression. Hence the demand for political regeneration.

The way is easy, if the south will adopt it, as a larger and larger section seems disposed to do each year. Abandon a party that has outlived its usefulness and clings only to dead issues, and let the voters cast their fortunes with the party which has made possible the new south and unexampled prosperity throughout the nation. The Democratic party is past regeneration, and recognition of the fact has already broken political lines in the once solid south. The breach bids fair to widen greatly in the next four years.

ORDER IN THE PHILIPPINES.

General Fred D. Grant, who is connected with the administration in the Philippines, is now in this country on a visit. He brings most gratifying reports of peace and good will existing among the people in the new American possessions. In his own district, long known as the most lawless in the islands, General Grant says there is no longer a robber band in existence, a condition hitherto unknown in the whole history of the Filipino people. The general quotes a Spanish planter, with large estates upon which he had not dared to live for over five years. Now he is moving his family to the country in perfect safety and will cultivate twice as much land as ever before. Where it was formerly dangerous for a white man to travel, except he went armed and with an armed escort, gentlemen now ride about alone, on horseback, by day or night, without revolvers or attendants.

Anarchy and lawlessness have passed and peace and freedom now have a home in the Philippines. The country has local government, courts and schools and is building roads. The Filipinos and civilization have gained more in a brief period of American rule than in centuries of Spanish misrule. How thoughtful men can maintain that there is injustice or wrong in giving the islanders stable government and starting them on the road to progress, instead of turning them over to the prey of designing, half civilized scoundrels, like Aguinaldo and his associates, passes understanding.

The Pan-American exposition at Buffalo has been officially declared open. It is a great show, and not only the city on Lake Erie, but the whole country, has reason to be proud of it.

If Andrew Carnegie keeps on giving $5,000,000 and $10,000,000 at a time he may escape the fate which he says is in store for millionaires without philanthropic ideas. Andrew, it will be remembered, has declared that the man who dies rich dies disgraced.

The continued favorable reports from the bedside of Mrs. McKinley are cheering news, and the nation receives them with thankfulness and satisfaction.

There is a poet in Chicago who gets $1,000 a year. He does not get it out of his poetry, however, but from an office that he holds.

LUCKIEST MAN IN TOWN

Howard Marshall Loses His Watch But Gets It Back Again.

Howard, better known as "Shorty" Marshall, is now considered by his friends to be the luckiest man in town. Saturday afternoon he had his watch stolen from his pocket while talking with some friends at the corner of Second and Union streets. He did not miss the watch until he was one square away from the corner, and when they returned they asked him where his watch was. He replied that he had pawned it for a shoe-shine. After a short time he explained that he had lost it and was of the opinion that it had been taken by a party named Jesse, but he would not give the last name. The watch was turner over to an officer by the party who took it. He said it was done in a joke. The watch was returned to Marshall.

Stone Crusher Arrives—The stone crusher owned by the county was brought to the city yesterday from Lisbon and unloaded from the car this morning. It will be used to crush stone for the new reservoir, it having been decided to use crushed stone instead of gravel.

CONTRACTORS' BOND

Meeting of Commission Enlivened By Much Discussion—Proposed Sanitary Sewer Extension.

The sewer commission met yesterday afternoon, in a meeting adjourned from Saturday, to consider the bonds which Irwin Bros. offered on the storm water sewer. City Solicitor Wells declared the bond presented did not protect the city enough in case of damage suits. The specifications require a particular clause to indemnify the city in case of damage to property or health.

Mr. Irwin stated that the bond includes everything they specified in the contract. The solicitor recommended a special caluse.

The commission, by unanimous vote, insisted on Mr. Irwin's securing a bond which would make provision for all indemnity. Mr. Irwin said that he could obtain the bond if it were positively required.

A letter was then read from ex-City Engineer Riggs in regard to claims of Irwin Bros. for extra pay on deep cuts. Mr. Irwin says there was no plan presented when the contract was made for a sewer on Avondale street. Mr. Riggs said this sewer was in the original plans and he recommended that the claims should not be paid. The matter was laid aside until Mr. Riggs comes to accept the sewer.

Mr. Martin asked whether any more of the sanitary sewer could be built at this time. Mr. Bowers said there was no money, and so the line could not be built now. After a great deal of talk the matter was laid over.

FREICHT CARS WRECKED

A Bad Smash in the Wellsville Yards This Morning.

The eastbound freight train on the river division was wrecked this morning at the lower end of the Wellsville yards. Two freight cars were entirely demolished and their contents scattered over the ground. No one was hurt.

The wreck was caused by the breaking of a flange on one of the car wheels.

VICIOUS DOG SLAUGHTERED

The Brute Had Bitten a Child of George Frederick—Wound is Quite Serious.

A child, daughter of George L. Frederick, of West Market street, was attacked a few days ago by a bulldog owned by Mrs. Hamill. The matter was reported to the police and an appeal made to have the dog killed. The officers referred the case to Mayor Davidson, who, in turn, requested that a physician examine the wound inflicted by the brute.

This morning Dr. Bailey reported that the child was bitten severely on the leg, and Officer Morris was instructed to kill the dog. The carcass was incinerated at the garbage furnace.

BLOODY AND DRUNK.

A Smith's Ferry Couple in a Sad Predicament.

Steubenville, May 21.—Sheriff Porter and family were out driving yesterday and when a short distance from Mingo they found a man and woman lying by the roadside and a horse hitched to a buggy a short distance from them. On examination he found that they were both bloody and drunk. He gathered them up, took them to Mingo and turned them over to the marshal, who locked them up and the horse and buggy were taken to the livery stable.

When they were somewhat straightened up they were released and started down street for their horse and buggy with their arms lovingly entwined around each other, declaring that they would drink and eat, live, bleed and die for each other. They started down the river in the buggy rejoicing, with four quarts of "John Barleycorn" in the buggy. It is said they were from Smith's Ferry, their destination not known.

Found a Mare's Nest.

A brigadier general or major general is entitled to the keep of three horses at Uncle Sam's expense; a colonel, lieutenant colonel, major or captain to two only.

The forage allowance is often commuted by turning over the same to the quartermaster, and this practice once betrayed a suspicious new member of the house into a curious blunder. He announced that he had discovered that "officers of the army are selling the forage allowed to them, and one such case I am prepared to cite from the records of the war department, a case in which the oats and hay were transferred, doubtless for a consideration, to a person named Q. M. Corral."

There was an exchange of looks and winks among his astonished hearers, and then an old member kindly rose and said, "I presume, Mr. Speaker, that the memorandum referred to by my distinguished friend refers to a transfer of forage, in the ordinary course of business, to the quartermaster's corral."—Buffalo Commercial.

The Has Beens.

They met again in after years by chance at the door of a circus tent, the judge and the middle aged woman who had been Maud Muller.

"Great scott," muttered the judge to himself as he noted her sallow face, faded hair, stubby fingers with the marks of the washboard upon them and the group of slatternly children she was angrily trying to induce the ticket taker to pass in free, "what a lucky escape I had!"

"Merciful gracious," she mused inwardly, looking at his bald head, watery eyes, double chin and protuberant stomach, "and I once wanted to marry that man!"

They passed in, with their respective noses perceptibly elevated and were listening a few minutes later to the time honored jokes of the clown.—Chicago Tribune.

A Great Sporting News Journal.

The illustrated special sporting section of the Sunday Chicago Record-Herald thoroughly deserves the attention of everyone interested in sporting news. It is always beautifully illustrated and embraces four full pages covering with the thoroughness that satisfies to the utmost the whole realm of sports. Baseball news, racing news, bowling news, cycling news, pugilistic news, golf news, yachting news—all the sporting news—is given with the degree of fullness and interest to be expected of the newspaper which combines the very complete facilities of these two great metropolitan newspapers, The Chicago Record and the Chicago Times-Herald. The sporting page of the daily issue is also exceptionally popular—a self-evident fact to those who have noticed the general vogue of the Chicago Record-Herald among sportsmen.

Mount Marcy.

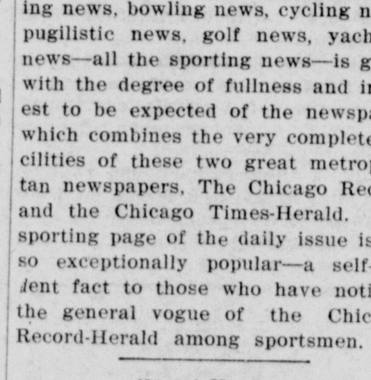

Mount Marcy, the highest mountain in the Adirondacks, is very uneasy, with volcanic tendency. This mountain is one of the curiosities of the Adirondack section, and it is said to be the first mountain in the world to have received the cooling breezes after the chaos period, and to this fact is attributed the continued salubrity of the air and general healthfulness of the Adirondack mountains.

Forever Dry.

There is a youngster in Girard college who combines the poetic instinct with a keen sense of humor. He is not a close student—in fact, he regards books as instruments of torture. One of the professors picked up a textbook belonging to him the other day and found on the fly leaf this bit of verse, which no doubt expressed the student's opinion of it:

Should there be another flood,
For refuge hither fly,
And should the whole world be submerged
This book would still be dry.

SOUTH SIDE

WITHOUT OFFICERS

THAT IS CHESTER'S FIX, THOUGH THEY WERE ELECTED.

Two Weeks Have Passed And No One Has Qualified—Much Dissatisfaction.

The people of Chester are alredy indulging in much vituperative language concerning their lately elected town officers. The election occurred two weeks ago today and yet not a single officer has qualified and the town is without a municipal government.

Just why this is the case the people claim they cannot understand. An attempt was made last evening to get the officers together, but the mayor failed to appear and the councilmen could not be installed. This was the third unsuccessful attempt to have the officers qualify. Now the people are talking of employing legal aid and making an attempt to force them to take the oath of office or resign. Some people even go so far as to say that the installation is purposely delayed, and unless something is done shortly it would seem that interesting developments may follow.

MINOR NEWS OF CHESTER.

Oscar Hobbs is visiting his mother at Fairview.

J. Howard Maxwell is in Pittsburg on business today.

Carl Evans has accepted a position with John J. Marshall at his news stand.

Ex-Sheriff Wilkinson, of New Cumberland, was in Chester looking up tax delinquents today.

J. D. Stewart has drawn up plans for a new residence, which he will erect on Carolina avenue.

O. A. Crael has let the contract for his new six-roomed residence on Indiana avenue to J. W. Johnson.

Charles Boles will leave for Connellsville tomorrow morning, where he will follow his trade as plumber. He had been employed in Chester for more than a year.

George A. Arner and wife and son left on the Queen City today for a short pleasure trip in western Pennsylvania. They will visit Pittsburg, Monessen, Butler and Franklin, Pa., and will not return for several days.

NEED OF PRACTICE

MADE APPARENT IN YESTERDAY'S BALL GAME.

A Different Sort of Exhibition Is Wanted—Base Ball News in General.

A little tme worst exhibition of base ball seen in these parts in many a day was witnessed on the Southside yesterday in the game between the Crockery City and Chester, all of which goes to prove conclusively that talking base ball, becoming enthused and playing the game as it should be played are widely different propositions. The Crockeries need practice and need it badly.

The Chester team, which is made up for the most part of players from East Liverpool, would have had little trouble in winning, had it not been for the errors which were piled up by that aggregation.

The management of the team had evidently not used good judgment in placing the players, as changes were made throughout the entire game. Wheatley pitched an excellent game and had he been given the support he deserved, would have won the game.

However, the Crockeries have a good team, and all they lack is the practice. There was a large crowd present and plenty of enthusiasm, which demonstrates the fact that there is sufficient interest in the national game here to support a good team. Following the score:

Crockeries .....0 3 2 0 1 6 0 2 1—15
Chester .. ....0 3 0 0 5 0 1 0 2—11

The East End Grays have arranged for a game with the West End Athletics a week from next Saturday. In the meantime the East Enders are doing hard practice and expect to come out victorious when the time arrives. The game will be played at Columbian park.

The junior nine of the East End Grays wish to challenge any team composed of players 17 years of age or under and will play at any time and for any amount or for the fun only.

Did You Ever Drown a Fly?

Whatever other fate might befall it, naturalists agree that the common house fly cannot be drowned and many experiments have been made in relation thereto.

Included in such tests was the immersion of a fly in a tumbler of clear cold water, with a piece of cardboard to fit the glass and floated so as to keep the insect beneath the surface.

So little did the fly trouble about such an obstacle that it kept near the bottom of the glass, and there for a quarter of an hour ran about as freely as in the fresh air, while it at times crawled across the underside of the pasteboard as on the ceiling of a room.

After being immersed for 20 minutes the fly's movements were less active, and at 25 minutes it turned over on its side, apparently dead. It hung suspended in the water just under the pasteboard, which kept it from rising to the surface, and there it remained for another 25 minutes.

It was then taken out and placed on a sheet of paper, looking to all appearance dead. Its next fate was to be buried by being covered with about half a teaspoonful of fine salt.

At the end of 15 minutes the saline was shaken off, the fly having thus been completely covered either by water or by salt for 65 minutes.

Immediately upon its release the insect trimmed its wings and legs actively for awhile and then flew away.—Pearson's Weekly.

Why Monarchs Were Insane.

Pathologists have often pointed out the fact that physical and mental enervation are apt to go hand in hand, and the intellectual degeneracy of etiquette monarchs may have a good deal to do with the Sybaritism of their palace life.

The plebeian functions which mediæval sovereigns were obliged to perform by proxy included the adjustment of their gala gloves. They had flunkies to remove their cravats and warm their nightshirts, unplait their pigtails and tuck up their bedclothes around their shoulders. In the morning courtiers competed for the honor of holding their washbasin. Peers of the realm waited on bended knees to buckle their shoes. If the inheritor of a legitimate throne lifted a spoon to break an egg, lynx eyed lackeys anticipated his needs with the agility of trained conjurers. Like his food, his information on current topics was served ready dressed and cooked, till he turned into a masticating machine and repeater of conventional twaddle.—Lippincott's.

Saved Each Other.

A short time ago a guard on one of the Northern expresses while at a big station in the midlands had been talking to the engine driver. Presently he stepped aside and gave his "Right away!" when a gentleman who was late sprang on to the footboard while the train was in motion and tried to obtain admission to one of the compartments.

As the carriage came along the guard seized him by the coat and pulled him off, remarking that he must think himself lucky, for he had practically saved his life.

As this conversation was going on the guard's van came by, and the guard, with that gracefulness acquired by constant practice, sailed majestically on to his van.

The gentleman, who had taken in the situation, thereupon seized him by the coat and pulled him off, saying as the train sped away:

"One good turn deserves another. You saved my life; I have saved yours. Now we are quits."—London Telegraph.

He Got Off.

The wife of a German farmhand in Ohio was taken sick and finally died, the husband, of course, leaving his work for several days in consequence. Two weeks later he appeared at the house of his employer and asked to be relieved from work for a couple of days, when the following conversation took place:

"I vould like to get off for apout two tays."

"I can't spare you unless it is absolutely necessary. You know you lost several days two weeks ago, and we are behind in the work. What is the necessity for your getting off?" inquired the farmer.

"Vell, I vas to be married."

"Why, Fritz, your wife died only two weeks ago, and now you are about to get married again? I do not understand that."

"Vell," replied the German, "I don't hold spite long."

The farmer dismissed the case without prejudice.

Pretty Far Off.

A summer resident in a New Hampshire village, a lady who, in Horace Walpole's phrase, "sits at the top of the world," was making her first friendly call of the season upon the family of an old widower.

Only the father was at home, one of the girls being absent on a visit to the other sister, who had been married during the past winter. Naturally the talk turned on the daughters.

"Yes," said the father; "Mary made out real well. But I don' know's I'll ever work Lizabeth off. There's a young man been comin here steady now for two year, an he's no further on yet, ma'am, than me an you."—Youth's Companion.

Making Him Sweat.

Hardware Dealer—What was old Krankey kicking about?

Clerk—He wanted ten pounds of nails; said he'd pay for them and take them home himself. Wouldn't trust us to deliver them, he said.

Hardware Dealer—Surly old codger! I hope he'll sweat for it.

Clerk—Oh, I took care of that. I threw in an extra ten pounds, and he never knew it.—Philadelphia Press.

Interesting and Newsy Notes Gathered In Jethro and Vicinity.

John H. Peake and wife were visiting friends at West Point Sunday.

James Welsh, of Lisbon street, spent Sunday with friends at Cannon's Mill.

Herbert Smith, of Pleasant Heights, has moved into the Welsh house on Lisbon street.

William Barton, Jr., of Lisbon street has removed his family and household effects to Dixsonville, where he has just built a new residence.

Miss Mary Earle and Miss Meda Brown have resigned their positions at the West End laundry and have taken places at the Vodrey pottery.

The Fort Pitt Gas company has a large force of men at work extending its main along Denver street. Most of the residents of this street will burn gas hereafter.

Some of the residents of Eighth street are registering a kick against the boys playing ball in the street on Sunday. They allege that these young men congregate on the bridge at Carpenter's run, and some make noise that spoils their slumbers on Sunday afternoon.

John P. Wilson, of Hartford, Ind., is visiting at the home of his sister, Mrs. Daniel Johnson, of Lisbon street. Mr. Wilson was a member of the Sixteenth Indiana volunteer infantry during the Spanish-American war. He became acquainted with several members of the Eighth Ohio while in Cuba.

Etiquette In 1624.

Here is a curious extract from the court regulations of the Hofburg for the year 1624 on the etiquette to be observed by officers when invited to the royal table. The regulation begins by stating that officers usually behave under such circumstances "with great politeness and good breeding, like true and worthy cavaliers," but that the emperor thinks it necessary to issue the following directions for the use of inexperienced cadets:

"1. Officers should come to the palace handsomely dressed and not enter the room in a half drunken state.

"2. When they are at table, they should not rock about on their chairs nor sit back and stretch out their legs.

"3. They should not drink after each mouthful, as by so doing they will very soon get drunk, nor drink more than half a glass at a time, and before drinking they should wipe their lips and moustachios.

"4. They should not put their hands in the dishes nor throw bones under the table.

"5. They should not lick their fingers nor drink so brutally as to fall off their chairs."

Because She Loved Him So.

"You do not care for me!" he cried despairingly. "You do not believe in my love!"

"On the contrary," replied the up to date girl, "I am giving you the best possible evidence that I do."

"But you refuse to marry me," he said.

"And why?" was asked, with the air of one who thinks she has been deeply wronged. "It is because I believe you love me and I care enough for you not to make you miserable. Nothing could be more unselfish than my action. You are poor. You could not supply me with those luxuries that I crave, and the fact that you had to deny them to me would make you unhappy. The greater your love the more wretched you would be in such circumstances, and it is to save you from this unhappiness that I refuse you. I shall sacrifice myself by marrying some one with lots of money, but it will be for you—all for you."—Chicago Post.

Dodging Cannon Shot.

"Last Friday Lucy (Mrs. Knox) dined at General Washington's. Last Saturday, let it be remembered to the honor and skill of the British troops, they fired 104 cannon shot at our works at not a greater distance than half point blank shot—and did what? Why, scratched a man's face with the splinters of a rail fence. I have had the pleasure of dodging these heretofore engines of terror with great success, nor am I afraid they will hit me unless directed by the hand of Providence."—From "A Soldier of the Revolution," by Noah Brooks.

One Woman's Treasure.

I read in one of the "tit-bit" papers that "one good lady is said to treasure still the flounce of a dress" which the late Duke of Coburg "accidentally trod on and tore" when on a ceremonial visit to Lerwick, N. B., in 1882.. One thinks at once of Calverley's lines:

A clod—a piece of orange peel—
The end of a cigar—
When trod on by a princely heel,
How beautiful they are!

HARKEN YE

To the Voice of East Liverpool People.

If you will but listen to your friends and neighbors, they will tell you how the pains and aches of a bad back, the annoyance of urinary troubles, the nervousness, the restlessness which comes from kidney ills can be relieved and cured. Read what one East Liverpool citizen says:

Mrs. Mary Hewitt, of St. George street, says: "I read in the Pittsburg Press an account of some one who had been cured of kidney complaint in that city by using Doan's Kidney Pills. The fact of such an account being published of one living in almost the same place had a tendency to convince me that there must be some truth in it, and I determined to try them myself. Some years before this I had a severe attack of rheumatism; for three months I lay helpless and after that I had trouble with my kidneys. For a year I suffered severely. My back was so bad that it felt as if I had a boil where the kidneys are. I could not bend, lean back against a chair or reach up. I could not lie on my back, and about every move I made caused pain. I had taken numerous remedies, but none brought the desired relief. Well, Doan's Kidney Pills, procured at the W. & W. pharmacy, did what no other remedy was able to do. I took them regularly for a short time and found them all the Pittsburg paper stated them to be. I can heartily recommend them. After using them I was rid of backaches and other symptoms of kidney trouble."

Sold for 50 cents per box by all dealers. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States.

Too Many Risks.

They had come up from lower Maryland—man and wife—to have their tintypes taken by a traveling operator at the Marlboro fair. The husband thought it well to have a fair understanding of the matter beforehand, and so he entered the gallery on wheels and asked:

"How much fur two pictur's?"

"Fifty cents," was the reply.

"Will you take a prime coonskin in payment?"

"Yes."

"Will we look nateral?"

"You will."

"Kin I stand with a knife in my hand, as if ready to tackle a b'ar?"

"You can."

"Kin the ole woman hev her hands clasped and her eyes rolled up like some of them rich folks?"

"If she wants to."

"And yo'll take all the risks?"

"What risks do you mean?"

"Waal, I hain't purty nor proud, but the ole woman is, and yo'll hev to take a twist out of her nose and shorten up her chin a leetle, or she'll git right up arter seein the pictur' and light on yo' like a turkey on a 'tater bug. The last feller that was here only survived two days arter takin her pictur', and I thought it was only squar' to tell yo' 'bout it."

The artist declined to take the risks, and the man picked up his coonskin and went out, saying:

"Can't blame yo', stranger. Can't blame yo' a bit. Yo' don't want to be tore all to pieces and hev this wagin wrecked fur the sake of one coonskin. I'll git the ole woman seven yards of kalliker, and she'll hev to roll up her eyes at that and let the pictur' go."—Washington Post.

Coins and Conductors.

A new industry among street car conductors was revealed to a patient passenger on an up town Sixth avenue car the other day. The conductor, who was in a talkative mood, opened conversation by exhibiting a coin of a mintage which commands a premium and remarking that many such coins, which were carried as pocket pieces, came into the hands of himself and his fellow conductors in the course of a year, either from passengers who were temporarily oblivious more or less of their surroundings and their actions or from men who had gone broke and had to get up town.

From that he passed to the topic of bogus coins, ingenuously confessing that conductors who took bad quarters or half dollars by mistake and were too conscientious to try to work them off on passengers sold them at the car house to other conductors at a discount of 5 cents. The squeamish conductors, he explained, had rather lose 5 cents than to try to pass the coins or to lose the face value of the coins The other conductors, he said, were always ready to make the 5 cents and there were of course always passengers available to whom the coins might be given in change.—New York Sun.

Both at Rest.

"I suppose," said the stonecutter, "you'll want 'Requiescat in pace' at the bottom of your wife's monument?"

"No," replied the bereaved Mr. Peck; "make it 'Requiesco in pace.'"

"That means 'I rest in peace,' doesn't it?"

"Yes, and I want you to sign that 'Husband.'"—Catholic Standard and Times.

Adversity's Round Robin.

"This is a cold world. A man can't get a job unless he has a good suit of clothes."

"Well, that's logic."

A Well Dressed Pauper.

In all large cities there is a way of getting rid of undesirable persons by means of giving them a "pauper's pass" to some city to which they want to go.

It seems that a lawyer who is quite well known about town and who, like many other persons, is not averse to traveling on a free ticket had made several requests to a certain official for a pass to New York. He had been refused a number of times, but with a persistence worthy of a better cause he continued to bore his official friend. Finally he was supplied with the magic pasteboard, and without looking at it he went to the railroad station and paid for his seat in the parlor car.

When the conductor came along, the lawyer, who, by the way, is a man of rather imposing appearance, was reading a paper and with the nonchalance supposed to be second nature to those who never pay their carfare held out his pass, never even glancing at the conductor. That official took the pass, read it carefully, looked at the holder of it and then examined the pass again with considerable care. The lawyer, noticing that the conductor seemed to be giving the pass more than ordinary attention, stared at the official with a manner that indicated that he might at least be a director and asked with considerable warmth, "Anything the matter with that pass?"

The conductor looked at his questioner in a quizzical way and then said, "No; the pass is all right, but you are certainly the best dressed pauper I ever saw."—Boston Transcript.

How Moody Got Out of It.

Many were the interesting experiences belonging to the first Northfield conference called by D. L. Moody. One especially shows Mr. Moody himself in his varying phases. It was the conversation hour at noon, and about 100 men were sitting under the tent on Round Top

Mr. Moody, leaning sturdily against the tent pole, led the meeting. Suddenly there came from him the plump question, "Brethren, how many of you have so grown in grace that you can bear to have your faults told?"

Many hands went up. Quick as a flash, but neither sharply nor insultingly, Mr. Moody turned to a young minister and said:

"Brother, you have spoken 13 times in 12 days here and perhaps shut out 12 other good men from speaking."

It was true. The young man had been presuming and officious. He had held up his hand, but he could not bear to be chidden, and now he stoutly defended himself, only making matters worse. Then another minister broke forth and berated Mr. Moody for his bluntness. The latter blushed, but listened until the reproof was done. Then he suggestively covered his face and spoke through his fingers, "Brethren, I admit the fault my friend charges me with; but, brethren, I did not hold up my hand!"—Youth's Companion.

To Cure Insomnia.

An English physician of distinction gives these suggestions for cure of insomnia: In cases where the patient sleeps for an hour or two, then wakens with a start and cannot go to sleep again the physician recommends that a hot water compress be laid on the abdomen. When one cannot go to sleep on retiring and is unable to dismiss thoughts that have occupied the day, it is advised that the patient keep his feet in water as hot as he can bear comfortably for ten minutes before going to bed. He should then put on a pair of thin cotton hose wrung out of cold water and over those a pair of woolen ones. A more powerful remedy is a mustard sitz bath, with the proportion of a teacupful of mustard to a gallon of hot water. He should remain seated in the bath from 10 to 20 minutes. In many cases a reclining bath in tepid water is useful as a sedative.

The Funniest Story?

Sir Wilfrid Laurier once said that he considered the following the funniest story in the world. Do you agree with him?

A gentleman was once being taken over an idiot asylum. He asked an attendant how they knew when an idiot was considered to be sufficiently restored to sanity to be discharged.

"Oh," said the attendant, "it is easily managed. We take them into a yard where there are several troughs. We turn on the taps and then give the idiots buckets to bail out the water and empty the troughs. Many of them go on bailing away while the tap keeps running, but them that isn't idiots stops the tap."

Subsequent Reflection.

"Oh, what a beautiful water lily!"

No sooner had the maiden uttered these words than Archie Sixcap resolutely waded out after it.

He sank in mud up to his waist at once.

But he didn't get the lily.

It was still yards away from him and in deeper mud.

"Fools rush in," he muttered savagely to himself as he turned and began slopping his way back to shore, "where angels have too darned much sense to tread!"—Chicago Tribune.

In the Business.

"Children," said Aunt Mary, "you have a new little brother. He came this morning while you were asleep."

"Did he?" exclaimed the eldest. "Then I know who brought him."

"Who was it?" asked Aunt Mary.

"Why, the milkman, of course. I saw it on his cart, 'Families supplied daily.'"—London Tit-Bits.

Her Reply.

The Husband (sourly)—You ought to know better how to use money.

The Wife (sweetly)—Perhaps I could learn if I had a little more to practice with.—Puck.

In a Safe Place.

Among his trusted and efficient attaches in the office of the street railway headquarters is one Millikin. He also has a partnership interest in a north side grocery. After keeping cases on cars and their operators each day Mr. Millikin waits on customers at the grocery store. Saturday night is usually a busy one, and of course everything is done in a hurry. This probably accounts for a slight oversight of Mr. Millikin in filling an order for a little fat girl who came into the store as the kind hearted Millikin was about to close the doors.

"Mister Mil-li-kin, my mamma sent after a quarter's worth of mul-las-siz," said the child.

"All right, little girl. Let's have your bucket," said the genial clerk.

With this the little lady handed over a good sized tin bucket. Mr. Millikin disappeared among some barrels, and after considerable grinding he reappeared.

"There's a big measure, little girl. Do you think you can carry it?"

"Yes, sir," said the maiden as she started toward the door.

"Little girl, where's your money?" said Millikin as he followed up his customer.

"In the bucket, Mr. Mil-li-kin," naively replied the child.—Columbus Dispatch.

From Bad to Worse.

A gentleman was admiring his pigeons the other afternoon, when he heard a curious "thud" and saw one of his birds drop from a window sill to the ground.

Turning round, the gentleman was just in time to see a small boy in the lane drop a catapult and run.

After a short chase the culprit was caught.

"You young scoundrel!" ejaculated the angry owner of the pigeon. "What do you mean by coming and shooting my birds?"

"Please, sir, I didn't mean to do it," whined the captive. "I—I didn't shoot at the pigeon."

"Come, come," said the gentleman, "don't make matters worse. I saw the bird fall, and if you did not aim at it how came you to hit it?"

"Please, sir," blubbered the boy, "the pigeon got in the way. I—I was aiming at the winder."—London Tit-Bits.

Looking Without Seeing.

Perhaps you are an exception to the rule, but if you are not you have probably on many occasions, just after looking at your watch, been forced to acknowledge to a friend who asked you the time that you did not know what it was. Yet you undoubtedly took your timepiece out of your pocket, looked at its face and carefully replaced it in your pocket, showing a logical sequence of thought and a well defined object, which did not, however, result in leaving a sufficiently distinct impression on your mind to satisfy your friend's curiosity as to the hour of the day. The motion was not an involuntary one, like that of the boy who cannot too often admire his first chronometer, nor yet habitual, for few persons are merely in the habit of taking out their watches. One does so only for a specific purpose.

Now, how may this seeming contradiction be accounted for? Perhaps the reason is that not once in ten times does a man look at his watch to see what the actual time is, but rather to learn whether he still has time to accomplish some purpose. He may want to keep an appointment at a certain time or to be sure not to miss a boat or train. When he takes out his watch, therefore, he instinctively looks for the hands in the position called for by that particular moment, and when he sees that they have not yet reached that point he returns the watch to its resting place, with his mind relieved.

The actual position of the hands really plays no part at all in the operation, and so when the time is asked of him he is unable to reply. In other words, he accomplishes the paradoxical feat of intently looking at a thing without really seeing it.

A Financial Quicksand.

"Would you like an increase of salary, Mr. Smith?"

"No; it's no use."

"No use?"

THE PROSPEROUS SOUTH.

The demand for a reorganization or regeneration of the Democratic party is loudest and strongest in the south, where, ever since there has been a Democratic party, the people have been unswerving in their fidelity to its principles, or what passed for principles. But there has been an industrial awakening in Dixie. The prosperity that has swept across the country has found a firm foothold there. New business methods have come in along with new capital and new men and political traditions are rudely trampled upon. The wisest Democrats in the south begin to see that, if their party is to continue supreme there, it must have a better foundation than mere antagonism to the party in power. The south is for sound money, expansion and progress; the Democracy of the north is for a Bryan dollar, contraction and retrogression. Hence the demand for political regeneration.

The way is easy, if the south will adopt it, as a larger and larger section seems disposed to do each year. Abandon a party that has outlived its usefulness and clings only to dead issues, and let the voters cast their fortunes with the party which has made possible the new south and unexampled prosperity throughout the nation. The Democratic party is past regeneration, and recognition of the fact has already broken political lines in the once solid south. The breach bids fair to widen greatly in the next four years.

ORDER IN THE PHILIPPINES.

General Fred D. Grant, who is connected with the administration in the Philippines, is now in this country on a visit. He brings most gratifying reports of peace and good will existing among the people in the new American possessions. In his own district, long known as the most lawless in the islands, General Grant says there is no longer a robber band in existence, a condition hitherto unknown in the whole history of the Filipino people. The general quotes a Spanish planter, with large estates upon which he had not dared to live for over five years. Now he is moving his family to the country in perfect safety and will cultivate twice as much land as ever before. Where it was formerly dangerous for a white man to travel, except he went armed and with an armed escort, gentlemen now ride about alone, on horseback, by day or night, without revolvers or attendants.

Anarchy and lawlessness have passed and peace and freedom now have a home in the Philippines. The country has local government, courts and schools and is building roads. The Filipinos and civilization have gained more in a brief period of American rule than in centuries of Spanish misrule. How thoughtful men can maintain that there is injustice or wrong in giving the islanders stable government and starting them on the road to progress, instead of turning them over to the prey of designing, half civilized scoundrels, like Aguinaldo and his associates, passes understanding.

The Pan-American exposition at Buffalo has been officially declared open. It is a great show, and not only the city on Lake Erie, but the whole country, has reason to be proud of it.

If Andrew Carnegie keeps on giving $5,000,000 and $10,000,000 at a time he may escape the fate which he says is in store for millionaires without philanthropic ideas. Andrew, it will be remembered, has declared that the man who dies rich dies disgraced.

The continued favorable reports from the bedside of Mrs. McKinley are cheering news, and the nation receives them with thankfulness and satisfaction.

There is a poet in Chicago who gets $1,000 a year. He does not get it out of his poetry, however, but from an office that he holds.

LUCKIEST MAN IN TOWN

Howard Marshall Loses His Watch But Gets It Back Again.

Howard, better known as "Shorty" Marshall, is now considered by his friends to be the luckiest man in town. Saturday afternoon he had his watch stolen from his pocket while talking with some friends at the corner of Second and Union streets. He did not miss the watch until he was one square away from the corner, and when they returned they asked him where his watch was. He replied that he had pawned it for a shoe-shine. After a short time he explained that he had lost it and was of the opinion that it had been taken by a party named Jesse, but he would not give the last name. The watch was turner over to an officer by the party who took it. He said it was done in a joke. The watch was returned to Marshall.

Stone Crusher Arrives—The stone crusher owned by the county was brought to the city yesterday from Lisbon and unloaded from the car this morning. It will be used to crush stone for the new reservoir, it having been decided to use crushed stone instead of gravel.

WELLSVILLE

Meeting of Commission Enlivened By Much Discussion—Proposed Sanitary Sewer Extension.

The sewer commission met yesterday afternoon, in a meeting adjourned from Saturday, to consider the bonds which Irwin Bros. offered on the storm water sewer. City Solicitor Wells declared the bond presented did not protect the city enough in case of damage suits. The specifications require a particular clause to indemnify the city in case of damage to property or health.

Mr. Irwin stated that the bond includes everything they specified in the contract. The solicitor recommended a special caluse.

The commission, by unanimous vote, insisted on Mr. Irwin's securing a bond which would make provision for all indemnity. Mr. Irwin said that he could obtain the bond if it were positively required.

A letter was then read from ex-City Engineer Riggs in regard to claims of Irwin Bros. for extra pay on deep cuts. Mr. Irwin says there was no plan presented when the contract was made for a sewer on Avondale street. Mr. Riggs said this sewer was in the original plans and he recommended that the claims should not be paid. The matter was laid aside until Mr. Riggs comes to accept the sewer.

Mr. Martin asked whether any more of the sanitary sewer could be built at this time. Mr. Bowers said there was no money, and so the line could not be built now. After a great deal of talk the matter was laid over.

FREIGHT CARS WRECKED

A Bad Smash in the Wellsville Yards This Morning.

The eastbound freight train on the river division was wrecked this morning at the lower end of the Wellsville yards. Two freight cars were entirely demolished and their contents scattered over the ground. No one was hurt.

The wreck was caused by the breaking of a flange on one of the car wheels.

VICIOUS DOG SLAUGHTERED

The Brute Had Bitten a Child of George Frederick—Wound is Quite Serious.

A child, daughter of George L. Frederick, of West Market street, was attacked a few days ago by a bulldog owned by Mrs. Hamill. The matter was reported to the police and an appeal made to have the dog killed. The officers referred the case to Mayor Davidson, who, in turn, requested that a physician examine the wound inflicted by the brute.

This morning Dr. Bailey reported that the child was bitten severely on the leg, and Officer Morris was instructed to kill the dog. The carcass was incinerated at the garbage furnace.

The auction sale of lots at Grandview yesterday afternoon was well attended. Fourteen lots were sold, all bringing good prices. The sale will be continued on next Saturday, at which time it is expected even a larger batch will be disposed of.

BLOODY AND DRUNK.

A Smith's Ferry Couple in a Sad Predicament.

Steubenville, May 21.—Sheriff Porter and family were out driving yesterday and when a short distance from Mingo they found a man and woman lying by the roadside and a horse hitched to a buggy a short distance from them. On examination he found that they were both bloody and drunk. He gathered them up, took them to Mingo and turned them over to the marshal, who locked them up and the horse and buggy were taken to the livery stable.

When they were somewhat straightened up they were released and started down street for their horse and buggy with their arms lovingly entwined around each other, declaring that they would drink and eat, live, bleed and die for each other. They started down the river in the buggy rejoicing, with four quarts of "John Barleycorn" in the buggy. It is said they were from Smith's Ferry, their destination not known.

TO WED TOMORROW.

Fatally Shot Himself.

New Castle, Pa., May 21.—Alderman Benjamin S. Leslie, a leading Republican politician of this city, shot and fatally wounded himself last evening in an attempt at suicide. He is 40 years of age, a son of the late Hon. J. P. Leslie and belongs to one of the leading families of the city.

New Members to Initiate.

The grocery and butcher clerks' union will initiate six new candidates at their meeting tonight. A smoker and social will be held after the regular business is transacted.

Found a Mare's Nest.

A brigadier general or major general is entitled to the keep of three horses at Uncle Sam's expense; a colonel, lieutenant colonel, major or captain to two only.

The forage allowance is often commuted by turning over the same to the quartermaster, and this practice once betrayed a suspicious new member of the house into a curious blunder. He announced that he had discovered that "officers of the army are selling the forage allowed to them, and one such case I am prepared to cite from the records of the war department, a case in which the oats and hay were transferred, doubtless for a consideration, to a person named Q. M. Corral."

There was an exchange of looks and winks among his astonished hearers, and then an old member kindly rose and said, "I presume, Mr. Speaker, that the memorandum referred to by my distinguished friend refers to a transfer of forage, in the ordinary course of business, to the quartermaster's corral."—Buffalo Commercial.

The Has Beens.

They met again in after years by chance at the door of a circus tent, the judge and the middle aged woman who had been Maud Muller.

"Great scott," muttered the judge to himself as he noted her sallow face, faded hair, stubby fingers with the marks of the washboard upon them and the group of slatternly children she was angrily trying to induce the ticket taker to pass in free, "what a lucky escape I had!"

"Merciful gracious," she mused inwardly, looking at his bald head, watery eyes, double chin and protuberant stomach, "and I once wanted to marry that man!"

They passed in, with their respective noses perceptibly elevated and were listening a few minutes later to the time honored jokes of the clown.—Chicago Tribune.

Breaking the News.

Jackson—See here, Jimson, that confounded dog of yours kept up a continual howl under my window till 3 o'clock this morning!

Jimson (firmly)—It wasn't my dog, sir!

Jackson—I'm glad to hear that, old man, because I hated to ask you to bury the body. To whom did you sell him?—Brooklyn Life.

Evidence of Genius.

"My wife," said Mr. Snickers, "is a truly remarkable woman."

"We all know that," we said. "But do you wish to specify?"

"Yes, sir. She wrote and sold a story the other day, and she spent only once the money she expected to receive for it."—Harper's Bazar.

FRIENDS AND VISITORS.

Ed Hassey spent the day in Pittsburg.

J. S. Pauley was a Pittsburg business visitor today.

John Sant left this morning for a business trip to Zanesville.

Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Thompson left this morning for Lisbon, where they attended the funeral of George Hinchliffe, which took place there today.

Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Windram, of the West End, left on the Queen City for a pleasure trip to Pittsburg, where they will visit relatives.

A Great Sporting News Journal.

The illustrated special sporting section of the Sunday Chicago Record-Herald thoroughly deserves the attention of everyone interested in sporting news. It is always beautifully illustrated and embraces four full pages covering with the thoroughness that satisfies to the utmost the whole realm of sports. Baseball news, racing news, bowling news, cycling news, pugilistic news, golf news, yachting news—all the sporting news—is given with the degree of fullness and interest to be expected of the newspaper which combines the very complete facilities of these two great metropolitan newspapers, The Chicago Record and the Chicago Times-Herald. The sporting page of the daily issue is also exceptionally popular—a self-evident fact to those who have noticed the general vogue of the Chicago Record-Herald among sportsmen.

Mount Marcy.

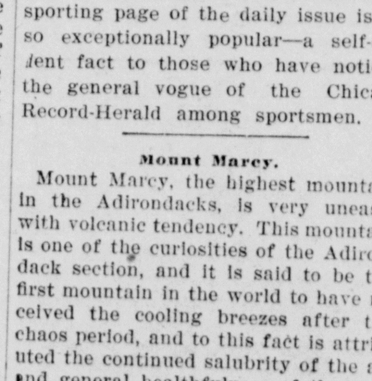

Mount Marcy, the highest mountain in the Adirondacks, is very uneasy, with volcanic tendency. This mountain is one of the curiosities of the Adirondack section, and it is said to be the first mountain in the world to have received the cooling breezes after the chaos period, and to this fact is attributed the continued salubrity of the air and general healthfulness of the Adirondack mountains.

Forever Dry.

There is a youngster in Girard college who combines the poetic instinct with a keen sense of humor. He is not a close student—in fact, he regards books as instruments of torture. One of the professors picked up a textbook belonging to him the other day and found on the fly leaf this bit of verse, which no doubt expressed the student's opinion of it:

Should there be another flood,
For refuge hither fly,
And should the whole world be submerged
This book would still be dry.

SOUTH SIDE

WITHOUT OFFICERS

THAT IS CHESTER'S FIX, THOUGH THEY WERE ELECTED.

Two Weeks Have Passed And No One Has Qualified—Much Dissatisfaction.

The people of Chester are alredy indulging in much vituperative language concerning their lately elected town officers. The election occurred two weeks ago today and yet not a single officer has qualified and the town is without a municipal government.

Just why this is the case the people claim they cannot understand. An attempt was made last evening to get the officers together, but the mayor failed to appear and the councilmen could not be installed. This was the third unsuccessful attempt to have the officers qualify. Now the people are talking of employing legal aid and making an attempt to force them to take the oath of office or resign. Some people even go so far as to say that the installation is purposely delayed, and unless something is done shortly it would seem that interesting developments may follow.

MINOR NEWS OF CHESTER.

Oscar Hobbs is visiting his mother at Fairview.

J. Howard Maxwell is in Pittsburg on business today.

Carl Evans has accepted a position with John J. Marshall at his news stand.

Ex-Sheriff Wilkinson, of New Cumberland, was in Chester looking up tax delinquents today.

J. D. Stewart has drawn up plans for a new residence, which he will erect on Carolina avenue.

O. A. Crael has let the contract for his new six-roomed residence on Indiana avenue to J. W. Johnson.

Charles Boles will leave for Connellsville tomorrow morning, where he will follow his trade as plumber. He had been employed in Chester for more than a year.

George A. Arner and wife and son left on the Queen City today for a short pleasure trip in western Pennsylvania. They will visit Pittsburg, Monessen, Butler and Franklin, Pa., and will not return for several days.

NEED OF PRACTICE

MADE APPARENT IN YESTERDAY'S BALL GAME.

A Different Sort of Exhibition Is Wanted—Base Ball News in General.

A little tme worst exhibition of base ball seen in these parts in many a day was witnessed on the Southside yesterday in the game between the Crockery City and Chester, all of which goes to prove conclusively that talking base ball, becoming enthused and playing the game as it should be played are widely different propositions. The Crockeries need practice and need it badly.

The Chester team, which is made up for the most part of players from East Liverpool, would have had little trouble in winning, had it not been for the errors which were piled up by that aggregation.

The management of the team had evidently not used good judgment in placing the players, as changes were made throughout the entire game. Wheatley pitched an excellent game and had he been given the support he deserved, would have won the game.

However, the Crockeries have a good team, and all they lack is the practice. There was a large crowd present and plenty of enthusiasm, which demonstrates the fact that there is sufficient interest in the national game here to support a good team. Following the score:

Crockeries .....0 3 2 0 1 6 0 2 1—15
Chester .. ....0 3 0 0 5 0 1 0 2—11

The East End Grays have arranged for a game with the West End Athletics a week from next Saturday. In the meantime the East Enders are doing hard practice and expect to come out victorious when the time arrives. The game will be played at Columbian park.

The junior nine of the East End Grays wish to challenge any team composed of players 17 years of age or under and will play at any time and for any amount or for the fun only.

Did You Ever Drown a Fly?

Whatever other fate might befall it, naturalists agree that the common house fly cannot be drowned and many experiments have been made in relation thereto.

Included in such tests was the immersion of a fly in a tumbler of clear cold water, with a piece of cardboard to fit the glass and floated so as to keep the insect beneath the surface.

So little did the fly trouble about such an obstacle that it kept near the bottom of the glass, and there for a quarter of an hour ran about as freely as in the fresh air, while it at times crawled across the underside of the pasteboard as on the ceiling of a room.

After being immersed for 20 minutes the fly's movements were less active, and at 25 minutes it turned over on its side, apparently dead. It hung suspended in the water just under the pasteboard, which kept it from rising to the surface, and there it remained for another 25 minutes.

It was then taken out and placed on a sheet of paper, looking to all appearance dead. Its next fate was to be buried by being covered with about half a teaspoonful of fine salt.

At the end of 15 minutes the saline was shaken off, the fly having thus been completely covered either by water or by salt for 65 minutes.

Immediately upon its release the insect trimmed its wings and legs actively for awhile and then flew away.—Pearson's Weekly.

Why Monarchs Were Insane.

Pathologists have often pointed out the fact that physical and mental enervation are apt to go hand in hand, and the intellectual degeneracy of etiquette monarchs may have a good deal to do with the Sybaritism of their palace life.

The plebeian functions which mediæval sovereigns were obliged to perform by proxy included the adjustment of their gala gloves. They had flunkies to remove their cravats and warm their nightshirts, unplait their pigtails and tuck up their bedclothes around their shoulders. In the morning courtiers competed for the honor of holding their washbasin. Peers of the realm waited on bended knees to buckle their shoes. If the inheritor of a legitimate throne lifted a spoon to break an egg, lynx eyed lackeys anticipated his needs with the agility of trained conjurers. Like his food, his information on current topics was served ready dressed and cooked, till he turned into a masticating machine and repeater of conventional twaddle.—Lippincott's.

Saved Each Other.

A short time ago a guard on one of the Northern expresses while at a big station in the midlands had been talking to the engine driver. Presently he stepped aside and gave his "Right away!" when a gentleman who was late sprang on to the footboard while the train was in motion and tried to obtain admission to one of the compartments.

As the carriage came along the guard seized him by the coat and pulled him off, remarking that he must think himself lucky, for he had practically saved his life.

As this conversation was going on the guard's van came by, and the guard, with that gracefulness acquired by constant practice, sailed majestically on to his van.

The gentleman, who had taken in the situation, thereupon seized him by the coat and pulled him off, saying as the train sped away:

"One good turn deserves another. You saved my life; I have saved yours. Now we are quits."—London Telegraph.

He Got Off.

The wife of a German farmhand in Ohio was taken sick and finally died, the husband, of course, leaving his work for several days in consequence. Two weeks later he appeared at the house of his employer and asked to be relieved from work for a couple of days, when the following conversation took place:

"I vould like to get off for apout two tays."

"I can't spare you unless it is absolutely necessary. You know you lost several days two weeks ago, and we are behind in the work. What is the necessity for your getting off?" inquired the farmer.

"Vell, I vas to be married."

"Why, Fritz, your wife died only two weeks ago, and now you are about to get married again? I do not understand that."

"Vell," replied the German, "I don't hold spite long."

The farmer dismissed the case without prejudice.

Pretty Far Off.

A summer resident in a New Hampshire village, a lady who, in Horace Walpole's phrase, "sits at the top of the world," was making her first friendly call of the season upon the family of an old widower.

Only the father was at home, one of the girls being absent on a visit to the other sister, who had been married during the past winter. Naturally the talk turned on the daughters.

"Yes," said the father; "Mary made out real well. But I don' know's I'll ever work Lizabeth off. There's a young man been comin here steady now for two year, an he's no further on yet, ma'am, than me an you."—Youth's Companion.

Etiquette In 1624.

Here is a curious extract from the court regulations of the Hofburg for the year 1624 on the etiquette to be observed by officers when invited to the royal table. The regulation begins by stating that officers usually behave under such circumstances "with great politeness and good breeding, like true and worthy cavaliers," but that the emperor thinks it necessary to issue the following directions for the use of inexperienced cadets:

"1. Officers should come to the palace handsomely dressed and not enter the room in a half drunken state.

"2. When they are at table, they should not rock about on their chairs nor sit back and stretch out their legs.

"3. They should not drink after each mouthful, as by so doing they will very soon get drunk, nor drink more than half a glass at a time, and before drinking they should wipe their lips and moustachios.

"4. They should not put their hands in the dishes nor throw bones under the table.

"5. They should not lick their fingers nor drink so brutally as to fall off their chairs."

Because She Loved Him So.

"You do not care for me!" he cried despairingly. "You do not believe in my love!"

"On the contrary," replied the up to date girl, "I am giving you the best possible evidence that I do."

"But you refuse to marry me," he said.

"And why?" was asked, with the air of one who thinks she has been deeply wronged. "It is because I believe you love me and I care enough for you not to make you miserable. Nothing could be more unselfish than my action. You are poor. You could not supply me with those luxuries that I crave, and the fact that you had to deny them to me would make you unhappy. The greater your love the more wretched you would be in such circumstances, and it is to save you from this unhappiness that I refuse you. I shall sacrifice myself by marrying some one with lots of money, but it will be for you—all for you."—Chicago Post.

Dodging Cannon Shot.

"Last Friday Lucy (Mrs. Knox) dined at General Washington's. Last Saturday, let it be remembered to the honor and skill of the British troops, they fired 104 cannon shot at our works at not a greater distance than half point blank shot—and did what? Why, scratched a man's face with the splinters of a rail fence. I have had the pleasure of dodging these heretofore engines of terror with great success, nor am I afraid they will hit me unless directed by the hand of Providence."—From "A Soldier of the Revolution," by Noah Brooks.

One Woman's Treasure.

I read in one of the "tit-bit" papers that "one good lady is said to treasure still the flounce of a dress" which the late Duke of Coburg "accidentally trod on and tore" when on a ceremonial visit to Lerwick, N. B., in 1882.. One thinks at once of Calverley's lines:

A clod—a piece of orange peel—
The end of a cigar—
When trod on by a princely heel,
How beautiful they are!

HARKEN YE

To the Voice of East Liverpool People.

If you will but listen to your friends and neighbors, they will tell you how the pains and aches of a bad back, the annoyance of urinary troubles, the nervousness, the restlessness which comes from kidney ills can be relieved and cured. Read what one East Liverpool citizen says:

Mrs. Mary Hewitt, of St. George street, says: "I read in the Pittsburg Press an account of some one who had been cured of kidney complaint in that city by using Doan's Kidney Pills. The fact of such an account being published of one living in almost the same place had a tendency to convince me that there must be some truth in it, and I determined to try them myself. Some years before this I had a severe attack of rheumatism; for three months I lay helpless and after that I had trouble with my kidneys. For a year I suffered severely. My back was so bad that it felt as if I had a boil where the kidneys are. I could not bend, lean back against a chair or reach up. I could not lie on my back, and about every move I made caused pain. I had taken numerous remedies, but none brought the desired relief. Well, Doan's Kidney Pills, procured at the W. & W. pharmacy, did what no other remedy was able to do. I took them regularly for a short time and found them all the Pittsburg paper stated them to be. I can heartily recommend them. After using them I was rid of backaches and other symptoms of kidney trouble."

Sold for 50 cents per box by all dealers. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States.

Too Many Risks.

They had come up from lower Maryland—man and wife—to have their tintypes taken by a traveling operator at the Marlboro fair. The husband thought it well to have a fair understanding of the matter beforehand, and so he entered the gallery on wheels and asked:

"How much fur two pictur's?"

"Fifty cents," was the reply.

"Will you take a prime coonskin in payment?"

"Yes."

"Will we look nateral?"

"You will."

"Kin I stand with a knife in my hand, as if ready to tackle a b'ar?"

"You can."

"Kin the ole woman hev her hands clasped and her eyes rolled up like some of them rich folks?"

"If she wants to."

"And yo'll take all the risks?"

"What risks do you mean?"

"Waal, I hain't purty nor proud, but the ole woman is, and yo'll hev to take a twist out of her nose and shorten up her chin a leetle, or she'll git right up arter seein the pictur' and light on yo' like a turkey on a 'tater bug. The last feller that was here only survived two days arter takin her pictur', and I thought it was only squar' to tell yo' 'bout it."

The artist declined to take the risks, and the man picked up his coonskin and went out, saying:

"Can't blame yo', stranger. Can't blame yo' a bit. Yo' don't want to be tore all to pieces and hev this wagin wrecked fur the sake of one coonskin. I'll git the ole woman seven yards of kalliker, and she'll hev to roll up her eyes at that and let the pictur' go."—Washington Post.

Coins and Conductors.

A new industry among street car conductors was revealed to a patient passenger on an up town Sixth avenue car the other day. The conductor, who was in a talkative mood, opened conversation by exhibiting a coin of a mintage which commands a premium and remarking that many such coins, which were carried as pocket pieces, came into the hands of himself and his fellow conductors in the course of a year, either from passengers who were temporarily oblivious more or less of their surroundings and their actions or from men who had gone broke and had to get up town.

From that he passed to the topic of bogus coins, ingenuously confessing that conductors who took bad quarters or half dollars by mistake and were too conscientious to try to work them off on passengers sold them at the car house to other conductors at a discount of 5 cents. The squeamish conductors, he explained, had rather lose 5 cents than to try to pass the coins or to lose the face value of the coins The other conductors, he said, were always ready to make the 5 cents and there were of course always passengers available to whom the coins might be given in change.—New York Sun.

Both at Rest.

"I suppose," said the stonecutter, "you'll want 'Requiescat in pace' at the bottom of your wife's monument?"

"No," replied the bereaved Mr. Peck; "make it 'Requiesco in pace.'"

"That means 'I rest in peace,' doesn't it?"

"Yes, and I want you to sign that 'Husband.'"—Catholic Standard and Times.

Adversity's Round Robin.

"This is a cold world. A man can't get a job unless he has a good suit of clothes."

"Well, that's logic."

A Well Dressed Pauper.

In all large cities there is a way of getting rid of undesirable persons by means of giving them a "pauper's pass" to some city to which they want to go.

It seems that a lawyer who is quite well known about town and who, like many other persons, is not averse to traveling on a free ticket had made several requests to a certain official for a pass to New York. He had been refused a number of times, but with a persistence worthy of a better cause he continued to bore his official friend. Finally he was supplied with the magic pasteboard, and without looking at it he went to the railroad station and paid for his seat in the parlor car.

When the conductor came along, the lawyer, who, by the way, is a man of rather imposing appearance, was reading a paper and with the nonchalance supposed to be second nature to those who never pay their carfare held out his pass, never even glancing at the conductor. That official took the pass, read it carefully, looked at the holder of it and then examined the pass again with considerable care. The lawyer, noticing that the conductor seemed to be giving the pass more than ordinary attention, stared at the official with a manner that indicated that he might at least be a director and asked with considerable warmth, "Anything the matter with that pass?"

The conductor looked at his questioner in a quizzical way and then said, "No; the pass is all right, but you are certainly the best dressed pauper I ever saw."—Boston Transcript.

How Moody Got Out of It.

Many were the interesting experiences belonging to the first Northfield conference called by D. L. Moody. One especially shows Mr. Moody himself in his varying phases. It was the conversation hour at noon, and about 100 men were sitting under the tent on Round Top

Mr. Moody, leaning sturdily against the tent pole, led the meeting. Suddenly there came from him the plump question, "Brethren, how many of you have so grown in grace that you can bear to have your faults told?"

Many hands went up. Quick as a flash, but neither sharply nor insultingly, Mr. Moody turned to a young minister and said:

"Brother, you have spoken 13 times in 12 days here and perhaps shut out 12 other good men from speaking."

It was true. The young man had been presuming and officious. He had held up his hand, but he could not bear to be chidden, and now he stoutly defended himself, only making matters worse. Then another minister broke forth and berated Mr. Moody for his bluntness. The latter blushed, but listened until the reproof was done. Then he suggestively covered his face and spoke through his fingers, "Brethren, I admit the fault my friend charges me with; but, brethren, I did not hold up my hand!"—Youth's Companion.

To Cure Insomnia.

An English physician of distinction gives these suggestions for cure of insomnia: In cases where the patient sleeps for an hour or two, then wakens with a start and cannot go to sleep again the physician recommends that a hot water compress be laid on the abdomen. When one cannot go to sleep on retiring and is unable to dismiss thoughts that have occupied the day, it is advised that the patient keep his feet in water as hot as he can bear comfortably for ten minutes before going to bed. He should then put on a pair of thin cotton hose wrung out of cold water and over those a pair of woolen ones. A more powerful remedy is a mustard sitz bath, with the proportion of a teacupful of mustard to a gallon of hot water. He should remain seated in the bath from 10 to 20 minutes. In many cases a reclining bath in tepid water is useful as a sedative.

The Funniest Story?

Sir Wilfrid Laurier once said that he considered the following the funniest story in the world. Do you agree with him?

A gentleman was once being taken over an idiot asylum. He asked an attendant how they knew when an idiot was considered to be sufficiently restored to sanity to be discharged.

"Oh," said the attendant, "it is easily managed. We take them into a yard where there are several troughs. We turn on the taps and then give the idiots buckets to bail out the water and empty the troughs. Many of them go on bailing away while the tap keeps running, but them that isn't idiots stops the tap."

Subsequent Reflection.

"Oh, what a beautiful water lily!"

No sooner had the maiden uttered these words than Archie Sixcap resolutely waded out after it.

He sank in mud up to his waist at once.

But he didn't get the lily.

It was still yards away from him and in deeper mud.

"Fools rush in," he muttered savagely to himself as he turned and began slopping his way back to shore, "where angels have too darned much sense to tread!"—Chicago Tribune.

In the Business.

"Children," said Aunt Mary, "you have a new little brother. He came this morning while you were asleep."

"Did he?" exclaimed the eldest. "Then I know who brought him."

"Who was it?" asked Aunt Mary.

"Why, the milkman, of course. I saw it on his cart, 'Families supplied daily.'"—London Tit-Bits.

Her Reply.

The Husband (sourly)—You ought to know better how to use money.

The Wife (sweetly)—Perhaps I could learn if I had a little more to practice with.—Puck.

In a Safe Place.

Among his trusted and efficient attaches in the office of the street railway headquarters is one Millikin. He also has a partnership interest in a north side grocery. After keeping cases on cars and their operators each day Mr. Millikin waits on customers at the grocery store. Saturday night is usually a busy one, and of course everything is done in a hurry. This probably accounts for a slight oversight of Mr. Millikin in filling an order for a little fat girl who came into the store as the kind hearted Millikin was about to close the doors.

"Mister Mil-li-kin, my mamma sent after a quarter's worth of mul-las-siz," said the child.

"All right, little girl. Let's have your bucket," said the genial clerk.

With this the little lady handed over a good sized tin bucket. Mr. Millikin disappeared among some barrels, and after considerable grinding he reappeared.

"There's a big measure, little girl. Do you think you can carry it?"

"Yes, sir," said the maiden as she started toward the door.

"Little girl, where's your money?" said Millikin as he followed up his customer.

"In the bucket, Mr. Mil-li-kin," naively replied the child.—Columbus Dispatch.

From Bad to Worse.

A gentleman was admiring his pigeons the other afternoon, when he heard a curious "thud" and saw one of his birds drop from a window sill to the ground.

Turning round, the gentleman was just in time to see a small boy in the lane drop a catapult and run.

After a short chase the culprit was caught.

"You young scoundrel!" ejaculated the angry owner of the pigeon. "What do you mean by coming and shooting my birds?"

"Please, sir, I didn't mean to do it," whined the captive. "I—I didn't shoot at the pigeon."

"Come, come," said the gentleman, "don't make matters worse. I saw the bird fall, and if you did not aim at it how came you to hit it?"

"Please, sir," blubbered the boy, "the pigeon got in the way. I—I was aiming at the winder."—London Tit-Bits.

Looking Without Seeing.

Perhaps you are an exception to the rule, but if you are not you have probably on many occasions, just after looking at your watch, been forced to acknowledge to a friend who asked you the time that you did not know what it was. Yet you undoubtedly took your timepiece out of your pocket, looked at its face and carefully replaced it in your pocket, showing a logical sequence of thought and a well defined object, which did not, however, result in leaving a sufficiently distinct impression on your mind to satisfy your friend's curiosity as to the hour of the day. The motion was not an involuntary one, like that of the boy who cannot too often admire his first chronometer, nor yet habitual, for few persons are merely in the habit of taking out their watches. One does so only for a specific purpose.

Now, how may this seeming contradiction be accounted for? Perhaps the reason is that not once in ten times does a man look at his watch to see what the actual time is, but rather to learn whether he still has time to accomplish some purpose. He may want to keep an appointment at a certain time or to be sure not to miss a boat or train. When he takes out his watch, therefore, he instinctively looks for the hands in the position called for by that particular moment, and when he sees that they have not yet reached that point he returns the watch to its resting place, with his mind relieved.

The actual position of the hands really plays no part at all in the operation, and so when the time is asked of him he is unable to reply. In other words, he accomplishes the paradoxical feat of intently looking at a thing without really seeing it.

IN A BLAZE OF GLORY

Buffiao, N. Y., May 21.—In the presence of a vast concourse of people with ceremonial both conventional and novel, the Pan-American exposition was dedicated formally. The day was fair and last night the industrious, energetic men who planned this great enterprise rejoiced in flattering success. The day began with a parade, in which there were men from nearly every country in the world, and ended with an aerial bombardment from flying bombs and a brilliant electrical illumination.

There occurred a parade and other exercises. Bishop Fowler prayed and speeches were made by Vice President Roosevelt, Senator Lodge and others.

Marched From City Hall.

The procession formed at the city hall and marched by way of the main thoroughfares to the exposition grounds. It was an interesting spectacle and thousands of people lined the route. As the procession formed there was a reception of distinguished visitors, foreign representatives, state commissioners, officers and officials at the city hall. Vice President Roosevelt was the guest of honor, and when he reached the hall the parade was started with a volley of aerial bombs. About 2,000 troops, who got their time from four bands, led the way, and after them were about a hundred carriages with the officials and guests. Behind them came the concessionaries from the Midway. Western Indians mingled with the children of the tropics, the Orient and the Mediterranean and gave the procession its truest touch of color. They were in native costume, had a score of artistic floats and 15 bands furnished them music. The entry of the procession to the exposition grounds about noon was a magnificent spectacle. The crowd in the grounds at the time numbered about 40,000 and the greater part of it was massed in the esplanade. Dozens of great wave kites, carrying streamers, floated high in the air. The troops were halted in the fore court and then formed in double columns across the bridge of triumph. The officials and guests left their carriages, marched through the lines of troops and then continued on in a roped enclosure to the esplanade beyond.

President Milburne, of the exposition, and Vice President Roosevelt led the way and the crowd cheered them as they advanced. About a hundred yards from the Temple of Music they halted, and at the other end of the esplanade several thousand carrier pigeons were suddenly released. Confused at first by their own numbers, they circled low in wild flight and then gradually soared upward on graceful wing. High up, where they got their bearings, they parted and took flight to every quarter of the compass. Below the crowd looked on in silent admiration. The vice president and party then filed on into the Temple of Music, and the parade, reforming, marched on through the grounds. The formal dedicatory seremonies in the presence of a crowd limited only by the size of the hall wer impressive. There were strong words for closer union among the American republics, and the remarks of Vice President Roosevelt on that point and the congratulatory telegrams from the presidents of the American republics excited the greatest enthusiasm.

American Republics Represented.

All of the American republics were represented at the dedication and their military attaches and commissioners were given conspicuous places in the group of special guests. Friendly expressions came by cable from national neighbors. The exercises began about 12:45 o'clock with the rendition of Handel's Alleluio by the Seventy-first Regiment band.

The venerable Bishop Charles H. Fowler led in prayer before an audience stilled and bowed.

President Milburn read a series of congratulatory telegrams and their reading provoked cheer upon cheer.

Mayor Conrad Diehl was then introduced and spoke.

Robert Cameron Rogers recited a poem.

The Orphius society gave a magnificent rendering of Sturm's Salve Libertas and Vice President Roosevelt was introduced. He was vigorously cheered and made several attempts to speak before he found quieted auditors. He then made a speech.

Emilio de Gogorza sang the prologue from I Pagliacci and Senator Lodge was presented. He, too, was very cordially welcomed and spoke.

When he had finished Frederic Almy read a poem.

Lieutenant Governor Timothy Woodruff then spoke.

After the lieutenant governor had concluded the chorus, audience and band united in America. The benediction was by Bishop William D. Walker. The closing musical number was an inspiring march, rendered by the Seventy-first Regiment band.

Display of Day Fireworks.

At the conclusion of the exercises in the Temple of Music there was a grand display of day fireworks on the esplanade and about the court of fountains. There was first a salute of 125 aerial guns fired from steel mortars. At the same time 27 12-foot gas balloons, each lettered with the name of one of the Pan-American countries and carrying below the flag of its country, were released. Forty-five aerial rockets were fired, one for each state in the union. There was also a magnificen display of Japanese daylight works, Oriental kite displays, daylight bomb cloud shells, seting free American and Pan-American flags with souvenirs of dedication day, and finally a grand salute of 500 large gun-cotton rockets.

The Midway was the place where the set program ended, and the beauties of the esplanade, tower, court and mall were no match for its charms in popular affection. The barkers proclaimed its wonders in strident tones. An unusual number of concessions are included in the midway and many of them gixe extensive and attractive performances.

The feature last night was the electrical show. Many of those who came during the day dined at the grounds and joined in the night crowd. The electrical tower was a dazzling column of light and the play of the lights on fountains below produced some beautiful effects.

A WOMAN CONFESSED

Ayres Killed In Struggle Over Revolver, Said Mrs. Bonine—Made Insulting Thrate.

Washington, May 21.—The mystery attending the killing of James Seymour Ayres, a census office clerk, in the Kenmore hotel, early last Wednesday morning, and which, because of the peculiar circumstances surrounding it, aroused Washington more than any tragedy in several years, was solved by a voluntary confession from Mrs. Lulu I. Bonine, a married woman and a guest at the house, that she had fired the three shots which ended Ayres' life. Mrs. Bonine's husband is a drummer for the wholesale drug house of Dewitt & Co., of Chicago.

At the commencement of the affair, she said that Ayres had come to her room in the Kenmore hotel about 2 o'clock Wednesday morning and upon the pretense of being ill had gained admission to her room. He complained of feeling as if he was going to have a chill and asked her to give him some preventive. She had a futile search for medicine which she had in her rooms, and he had then referred to some differences which they had had in the past and had asked her to come to his room, where they might quietly talk the matter over and come to an amicable understanding. She had agreed to go to the room as he had requested and he left her room, preceding her to his own. When Ayres called at her room he was entirely dressed, but when she entered his room, as per agreement, she found him standing behind the door, undressed, except as to his undershirt, and with a revolver in his hand. He then told her that he had enticed her to the room for his own purposes and that if she did not submit to his wishes he would kill her. Mrs. Bonine says that she immediately grasped the revolver, and in the struggle which ensued it was discharged three different times, striking him at each discharge, the last shot proving fatal. She says that the cries for help which Miss Minas heard were all from her, as were also the sobbing which Miss Minas described.

Mrs. Bonine says that after the shooting she passed through the window of Ayres' room on to and down the fire escape ladder, and entering the parlor window of the second floor passed through the parlor and back up the stairway of the hotel to her own room on the fourth floor. She then washed her hands, undressed and retired.

1,000 FILIPINOS RELEASED.

MacArthur Celebrated the Surrenders of Mascardo and Lacuna.

Manila, May 21.—General MacArthur celebrated the surrenders of the insurgent Generals Mascardo and Lacuna by releasing 1,000 Filipino prisoners.

General Moxica, the insurgent chief on the island of Leyte, surrendered, with 20 men, the remnant of his command.

The president of the island of Lubang, which lies northwest of the island of Mindoro, was arrested and brought to Cavite, charged with being an accomplice of the insurgents.

General Trias started on his visit to the insurgent leader Ballarmino, who is operating in the province of Albay, in Southern Luzon. Trias will try to induce Bellarmino to surrender.

Congressman Hall leaves Manila today for Zamboanga. He expressed himself as pleased with conditions here.

SOME STOCKS RESISTED

Strength Shown In Certain Ones, Despite General Tendency the Other Way.

New York, May 21.—The late upward movement of stocks last week failed to continue Monday, although there was some resistance at times in the way of strength for individual stocks.

The market opened irregular and then yielded all around to the realizing, but recovered quite strongly in response to a movement in the coalers. There was some strength also among the southwesterns, apparently on the score of published reports of a projected new steamship line from a Mexican port to the Orient. The obvious fact that the struggle for control of the transportation of future trade products to the Orient lies at the root of most of the movements working out in the transcontinental railroad territory gives any suggestion in this line an influence. The movement in the coalers was apparently speculative. The strength in St. Paul was not explained by any news, but the buying was called good. The stock yielded, however, in the late weakness and closed at a net loss. The weakness of Union Pacific was an effective factor in unsettling the market.

Allegations of a further issue of convertible bonds to finance the purchases of Northern Pacific stock were the prime factor in the stock's weakness. It closed at par 7½ points below Saturday's close, and at the lowest of the day. Other notable weak stocks were Atchison, which lost 4½; Consolidated Gas, as much; Sugar, 3½; Manhattan, 3⅛; Rock Island and Metropolitan Street Railway, 3; Louisville, 2¾; Amalgamated Copper, 2½, and a large number of stocks from 1 to 2. A number of the minor industrials showed notable strength, although their best prices were reduced by the late weakness. Among them were the International Paper stocks, American Linseed stocks, United States Rubber stocks; National Lead stocks and the rubber goods stocks. In American Linseed preferred and United States Rubber preferred the gains reached about 5 points. There was large buying of Burlington for cash, which was apparently connected with the fact of the proposition for the Burlington deal being conditioned upon the deposit of at least two-thirds of the capital stock on or before May 20. The beginning of the machinists' strike and fears of a spread of labor troubles was the depressing influence and the advance in sterling exchange rates with the decline of sterling at Paris, indicating further shipments of gold from here, as well as the heavy receipts of the treasury, which are unsurpassed for May, discouraged the borrowing of money for speculative purposes.

The bond market generally was dull and irregular, with some yielding in the late trading in sympathy with stocks. Total sales, par value, $3,330,000.

United States bonds were all unchanged on the last call.

Train No. 93, "Conway drag," yesterday afternoon pulled a drawhead from one of the cars a short distance this side of the East End and left 16 cars standing on the main track.

The trainmen did not notice the break in the train until they reached Wellsville and No. 303, due at the station at 3:50 o'clock, was delayed one hour. The train was compelled to run through the side track, as the engine belonging to the cars did not arrive until 5:50 o'clock to clear the track. No. 360, due at 4:06, was also delayed for some time by the accident.

Andrew Carnegie's Great Gift For Higher Education.

Given to Certain Universities to Provide Free Education For Scottish Men and Women—Comments Made by Scotch and English Papers.

London, May 21.—Andrew Carnegie has given £2,000,000 to establish free education in four Scotch universities, Edinburgh, Glasgow, Aberdeen and Standrews. He stipulates that the beneficiaries be his "Scottish fellow countrymen" only, no English, Irish, Colonials or foreigners. The fund will apply to medical as well as to commercial education, and will be placed in the hands of trustees, who will pay the expenses of Scottish students benefited under the scheme.

A meeting was held in London to consider Mr. Carnegie's gift. Among those present were Lord Elgin, Thomas Shaw, M. P., Mr. A. J. Balfour, Sir Henry Campbell Bannerman, Mr. John Morley, Mr. James Bryce and others. The matter was discussed at length, but no conclusion was arrived at as to the best method of administering the gift

Mr. Carnegit desires that all Scotch men and Scotch women shall enter the universities on an equal footing, hence the money is not given to the students to pay their fees, but to the universities themselves. The system is made perpetually free and will probably be under government auspices.

Acording to the educational authorities the administration of Mr. Carnegie's gift presents considerable difficulties, and for this reason the Scotch papers for the present are rather looking the gift horse in the mouth, while the English press is inclined to cavil at the method of Mr. Carnegie's munificence.

The leading Scotch paper, the Edinburgh Scotsman, says editorially that Mr. Carnegie's offer is "disconcerting from its very munificence," and proceeds to show that the gift might disorganize the whole educational system. It points out that the fees which students pay are only a small part of the cost of educating them, the remainder being supplied by endowments, and that if Mr. Carnegie's project were to bring an increase of students the uniersities would be compelled to appeal to the public for further funds. Then, if university education is free, the country will soon be asked, the Scotsman contends, to make secondary education free also. In conclusion it asserts that "acceptance of the offer demands the most careful consideration, although it is an offer which Scotland cannot afford to decline without the best of good reasons."

The London papers reflect these difficulties, while expressing admiration and gratitude "It is obvious" says The Times, "that this splendid gift cannot leave Scotch education as it was before Cambridge has not been lucky enough to be associated by birth or otherwise with a transatlantic millionaire, but nobody south of the Tweed will envy the Scotch universities, if we can only be sure that Mr Carnegie's generous donation will be well applied and administered in the best interests of education. Splendid as the promised gift may appear, it ought not to be allowed to pauperize the whole system of university education in Scotland, where the sturdy spirit of independence has been among the moral and intellectual characteristics of the nation."

The Daily Chronicle says:

"It requires great judgment to give away largs sums both wisely and well. It would be better to employ the money in freeing the universities from debt, completing the schemes of their faculties and endowing them for research."

ADJOURNMENT PROPOSAL.

Creasy Offered Resolution For June 14 In Pennsylvania House.

Harrisburg, May 21.—By a vote of 83 to 46 the house last night laid on the table a concurrent resolution recalling from the governor for amendment the senate bill relative to minority representation in the suprerior court. The resolution was offered by Mr. Haag, of Schuylkill, and was generally supported by the Democrats.

The Creasy resolution fixing June 1 for final adjournment was referred to the rules committee by a vote of 73 to 56.

Mr. Creasy offered a resolution subsequently fixing June 14 to adjourn and gave notice that he would call it up today.

The senate held a brief session Monday afternoon and then adjourned until tonight. The order of business Monday was the consideration of bills on first reading. There were only four bills on the first reading calendar, all of which were read and advanced to second reading.

CURED BY THE LORD.

Crippled Boy Enabled to Walk—Pilgrims Hopefully Flock to a Brooklyn Church.

New York, May 21.—Cripples flocked to the Church of Our Lady of Lourdes in Brooklyn. They had heard how a poor little crippled boy had been miraculously enabled to walk again.

The afflicted filled the big grotto back of the pulpit, kneeling before the Virgin and praying that they might be healed. Their haggard, drawn faces shone with the first gleam of hope many of them had known for years.

Esther Cleveland Ill.

Princeton, N. J., May 21.—Esther Cleveland, the 9-year-old daughter of the former president, is suffering from diphtheria. The physician in attendance says the child is not in a dangerous condition and he expects no serious developments in the case. Mr. Cleveland, who has been on a fishing trip to Middle Bass island, near Toledo, O., is expected here today.

MAY CALL MINTON

Committee From East Liberty Church Heard the Moderator Preach at Philadelphia.

Philadelphia, May 21.—Rev. Dr. Henry C. Minton, moderator of the general assembly of the Presbyterian church, will probably be called to fill the pulpit of the East Liberty Presbyterian church, of Pittsburg. Rev. Dr. J. P. E. Kumler, the last pastor of the church, retired on April 1 on account of his advanced age, and a committee of 15 prominent members of the church has since been seeking some one to succeed him.

Three members of the committee were in Philadelphia Sunday for the purpose of hearing Rev. Dr. Minton preach at Calvary Presbyterian church in the morning. The committeemen were Judge W. P. Potter, of the supreme court; Dr. Thomas D. Davis and Thomas C. Lazear, a prominent lawyer.

Their duty is simply to report to the congregation on Rev. Dr. Minton's eligibility for the pastorate. All expressed themselves as pleased with Rev. Dr. Minton's ability, but would not express an opinion as to the likelihood of his being chosen. It was said that the committee would also hear several Philadelphia pastors and make a comprehensive report to the congregation.

Rev. Dr. Minton's election as moderator, it is said, is not responsible for the desire of the members of East Liberty church to secure him as their pastor. For some time the congregation has had Rev. Dr. Minton in view, but as he has not recently been in this part of the country no opportunity had heretofore presented itself to the committee to hear him.

The members of the committee were not to hold a conference with Rev. Dr. Minton and no action was to be taken in the case until a report was made to the congregation.

PITCAIRN HONORED.

APPOINTED VICE MODERATOR OF PRESBYTERIAN ASSEMBLY.

Opening of Buffalo Exposition and Publication of Sunday Newspapers Condemned.

Philadelphia, May 21.—Routine matters occupied the attention of the commissioners to the Presbyterian general assembly during the greater portion of Monday's sessions. The annual reports of the eight church boards were submitted to the assembly, and three of them, ministerial relief, education and freedmen, with the reports of their standing committees, were disposed of. The others may be taken up today and tomorrow, when it is expected the desk will be clear for the discussion of the revison of the committee's report, which is the special order for Thursday.

During the afternoon Moderator Minton announced the appointment of Robert Pitcairn, of Pittsburg, as vice moderator. Rev. Dr. Minton also appointed a committee of five to complete the details of the Peoria overture, the new plan of electing standing committees. A resolution was adopted deprecating the action of the directors of the Pan-American exposition in opening the gates on Sunday and earnestly urging the closing of the exposition on that day.

The special committee on Sabbath observance protested against the publication of Sunday newspapers and all use of the Lord's day for business purposes and commercial interests.

The report of the special committee on judicial commissions came up for consideration, but debate was interrupted by adjournment.

SERVICES FOR MRS. CACE

Conducted by Rev. Dr. Hillis—Further Services and Interment to Be Held at Chicago.

Washington, May 21.—Funeral services over the remains of Mrs. Lyman J. Gage were held Monday at the secretary's residence on Massachusetts avenue, Rev. Dr. N. D. Hillis, of Plymouth church, Brooklyn, conducting the services, which were exceedingly simple. Rev. Dr. Hillis read passages from the Scripture and then "Rock of Ages" was sung, after which there was prayer and a sermon by the minister.

In the course of his remarks Rev. Dr. Hillis paid a beautiful tribute to the life and character of Mrs. Gage, whom he had known and respected for many years. The services were closed with a hymn, folowed by the benediction. Among those present were Senator and Mrs. Cullom, Attorney General Knox, ex-Postmaster General Gary, wife and daughter, Mrs. Garret A. Hobart and son, the British ambassador, the German ambassador, minister and other members of the diplomatic corps, together with a number of officials of the treasury department.

About 10 o'clock the body, reposing in a black broadcloth covered casket, was placed on the Pennsylvania limited train for transportation to Chicago. Secretary Gage, his daughter, Mrs. Pierce, and Mrs. Gage's sister, Mrs. Hendee, of Yonkers, N. Y., accompanied the remains. Rev. Dr. Hillis also went with the party. Rev. Dr. Hillis made a hurried trip from Rumford Falls, Me., in order to perform the service.

The funeral party were to reach Chicago about 9 o'clock this morning and the remains were to be transferred to the Northwestern road and taken to Evanston, Ills., where the body was to be placed in a vault in Rose Hill cemetery and interred Wednesday with final services at the grave, conducted by Rev. Dr. Hillis.

The floral offerings were numerous and beautiful, among them being a wreath of pink orchids sent by the president.

Father Killed Four; Shot Another.

London, May 21.—Sergeant Major Butler, who had returned from South Africa, shot five of his children, killing four of them. His wife and baby escaped.

ACCOMMODATIONS FOR VISITORS IN BUFFALO.

Hundreds of Hotels, Boarding and Rooming Houses, Besides Many Private Homes, on the List.

So much has been said and written about the ability of the city of Buffalo to care for the crowds which will attend the Pan-American Exposition this summer that a few facts and figures will be appreciated by the general public.

In the first place, there are listed more than 200 hotels, which will give accommodation to 30,000 people; there are 650 boarding and rooming houses, affording accommodation for 18,500, while 7,000 owners of houses, most of whom never before hung out their latchstring for a consideration, have signified their intention of opening their houses for the accommodation of visitors to Buffalo this summer. These 7,000 homes will accommodate at least 100,000 visitors.

The Exposition Company has arranged to furnish tent accommodation on the Exposition grounds for 250 uniformed men. There are also two companies arranging tent systems which will afford additional accommodation outside of the grounds for 1,500 or so.

In addition to all this, there are a large number of buildings throughout the city now being remodeled and converted into hotels, the plans of which are not far enough along to afford an accurate description or to estimate accommodation at the present time. It is safe to estimate the present capacity of the city of Buffalo to accommodate 150,000 strangers. To this may be added accommodations for at least 50,000 in the surrounding towns, such as Tonawanda, La Salle, Niagara Falls, Lockport, Williamsville, Gardenville, Depew and Lancaster, all within a short trolley ride of the city.

Rates in hotels range from $1 per day upward. As ridiculous stories have been circulated in regard to exorbitant hotel rates, it is well to note the rates that have been established at the Iroquois, the most expensive hotel in the city. These are, for one in a room without bath, $3 and upward; for two in a room without bath, $5 and upward, thus making the minimum rate $2.50 per individual. The rate for a room with bath for one person is $5 or for two in a room $7.50. This is on the European plan. Of course there are rooms and suites of rooms in this hotel for much higher rates for those who wish to pay them, but the prices here given are the highest in the city for hotel accommodations as the term is ordinarily understood.

A number of local reliable agencies are engaged in locating visitors in homes in the city. These can be relied upon as being honest, straightforward and efficient. They are composed of business men of integrity, who will carefully protect strangers in the city, and visitors may feel assured of courteous treatment and safe conduct to accommodations which have received careful inspection.

GRANGE BUILDING, PAN-AMERICAN EXPOSITION.

The National Grange and New York State Committee of the Grangers have arranged to entertain 300,000 Grangers during the Exposition. Tickets entitling Grangers to the use of the Grange building and securing accommodations in the city are being supplied to all Granges in the United States and Canada.

MILITARY CAMPS.

Accommodations For the Soldier Boys at the Pan-American Exposition.

Many military organizations intend to visit the Pan-American Exposition during the summer. Arrangements have been made to provide first class accommodations for them.

The Exposition will maintain a permanent camp within the grounds for the accommodation of about 200 men at one time.

This camp will be supplied with tents floored, cots, buckets, basins, pint cups, light, water and sinks, for the use of which no charge will be made. It will be necessary for visiting organizations to furnish their own blankets and subsistence.

There will be no accommodation for cooking in this camp, but the visitors will no doubt be able to make satisfactory arrangements with restaurants on the grounds at reasonable rates.

It is expected that organizations taking advantage of these camp privileges will, at such time as may be agreed upon beforehand, give military exhibitions without charge in the Stadium.

Bands in uniform will be admitted to the grounds free. Organizations using this camp will pay one general admission per man when they enter the grounds and must be governed by the rules and regulations laid down by the Exposition Company.

On account of the large number of organizations now applying for camp facilities at the Exposition the use of this camp will be limited to a period not exceeding six days for any one organization.

Large bodies of troops visiting the Exposition must be quartered outside the grounds, where a large camp for this purpose has been established.

Major Charles J. Wolf is in charge of the Military Bureau, and he is kept very busy these days furnishing information to organizations intending to visit the Exposition.

The little bee is very busy at the Pan-American Exposition, gathering and storing honey in glass hives in full view of visitors.

A searchlight on the Electric Tower of the Pan-American Exposition casts rays for a distance of 50 miles.

THE MIDWAY.

Principal Amusement Features of the Pan-American Exposition.

The Midway of the Pan-American Exposition far surpasses all amusement features at former expositions, both in quality and novelty of attractions. The following are the principal concessions:

Esquimaux Village, Glass Factory, Trip to the Moon, Aerio-Cycle, Old Plantation, Beautiful Orient, Miniature World's Fair, Around the World, Cleopatra, Colorado Gold Mine, Living Pictures, Dreamland, Moving Pictures, War Cyclorama, Philippine Village, Alt Nuremberg, Panopticon, Streets of Mexico, Darkness and Dawn, Burning Mountain, Darkest Africa, House Upside Down, Water Sports Carnival, Gypsy Camp, Golden Chariots, Johnstown Flood, Infant Incubators, Fair Japan, Bostock's Wild Animal Arena, Ideal Palace, Jerusalem on the Morning of the Crucifixion, Indian Congress, Bazaar Building, Scenic Railway, Venice in America, Dawson City and Miniature Railway.

The Mechanics' Institute at Rochester has obtained space in the Educational division of the Pan-American Exposition for an exhibit. The pictures to be placed on view are three sizes—28 by 22 inches, 22 by 14 inches and 7 by 5 inches. Room for 32 of the largest size has been given to the Institute.

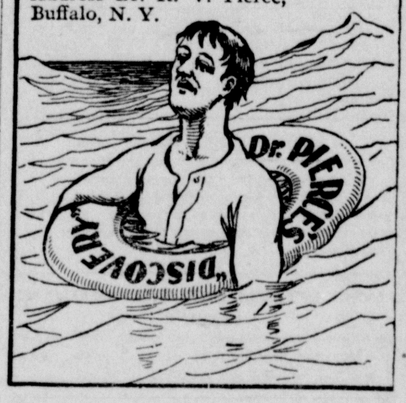

One of the novelties promised by John Philip Sousa, "The March King," for the Pan-American Exposition Band Concerts, is the new Sousa March, "Hail to the Spirit of Liberty," which he composed for the dedication of the Lafayette Monument in Paris last Fourth of July.

Varicose Veins.

An exchange gives the following cure for varicose veins, contributed by a person who was cured by it in less than three weeks: Peel a potato; grate it fine; place it on a white cloth long enough to well cover the ulcer. Warm it a little and apply in the morning. Renew at noon; also at night before retiring. Let it remain all night. Put on three new poultices next day just the same and continue to do so until the ulcer is entirely healed. Wash the ulcer every time the poultice is renewed.

Neuralgia.

The Prayer of a Nerve for More Blood.

Neuralgia may attack any part of the body but most frequently occurs where the nerves are most abundant.

In the head,
In the face.
Sometimes the heart nerves seem to twist
Twinging rheumatic pains of the extremities
Sharp and intense at times
In the intervals dull and heavy.

Neuralgia is the result of impoverished blood caused by impairment of the nerves—a lack of nerve force.

It is a disease of the nerve centers, and the pains accompanying it are a prayer for better nourishment. They are the danger signals which warn you against a total collapse of the nervous system.

Liniments and all external applications can only give temporary relief. Permanent cure cannot possibly come until the nerve centers are thoroughly revitalized and reinvigorated by Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills. The beneficial effects of this great nerve restorative are felt thrilling through the nerve fibres as week by week and month by month the nerve force of the body is restored. Women afflicted with diseases peculiar to their sex are frequently great sufferers from neuralgia. Dr. Chase's Nerve Pills positively cures both these disorders by filling the nervous system with new vigor and life. 50 cents a box at all dealers, or Dr. A. W. Chase Medicine Co., Buffalo, N. Y. The genuine has portrait and signature of Dr. A. W Chase on each package.

Brief Notes of a Personal Nature And of Matters About Town.

A Daughter Born—Born, to Mr. and Mrs. T. C. Rice, Broadway, a daughter.

Removed to Massillon—Mrs. James C. Hunter was this morning taken to the Massillon State hospital by her husband and son John.

Trial This Evening—The case in which Miss R. Bills is plaintiff and Charles Smith defendant will be tried this evening before Justice McLane.

Rehearsing For Commencement—The pupils of the high school have already began to rehearse for the commencement exercises. The program promises to be very interesting.

Teachers' Examination—The teachers' examination this spring will be held on Tuesday, June 4, at the Central building in this city. A large number of applicants will be examined.

Has a New Job—Robert West yesterday resigned his position as roller at the outbound platform of the freight station and has accepted a position as driver for a grocery store.

Hunting for a Clue—Two men in the employ of John Rinehart started yesterday for Burgettstown, Pa., where an effort will be made to get track of the horse and buggy which has been several days.

Mumps Epidemic—An epidemic of mumps is just now prevalent in the western portion of the city. A large number of childen are afflicted, among them being two small sons of Mr. and Mrs. William Lynn.

Had No Money Coming—Justice McCarron issued an execution yesterday against John Kelley, colored, for $3, which he owes Mrs. Daniel Woods. When the papers were served it was found that the man had no wages coming to him. He is employed at the Woodbine laundry.

Bad Places Still Left—Although extensive repairs have been made to the street railway tracks near the Sixth street switch, there are still some bad places, and yesterday traffic was delayed several times by cars jumping the track.

Funeral Yesterday—The funeral of Miss Jennie Franklin, who died at her home on Seventh street Saturday morning, took place yesterday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock from St. Stephen's church. Interment was made at Riverview cemetery.

Hit by a Ball—A little son of Harry Watson, of Third street, was struck in the face by a base ball last evening and sustained a bad bruise on the nose. One of the child's eyes was also injured, but not seriously.

Mayor Will Angle—Mayor Davidson is preparing to go on a fishing excursion next Thursday. He busied himself today taking orders, and those who have not as yet arranged for a supply of the fish he catches are instructed to call at his honor's office, where Chief Thompson has charge of the order book.

Funeral of Charles Roberts—The funeral of Charles Roberts who died at his home on Railroad street Saturday afternoon, took place this afternoon at 2 o'clock and was in charge of the Knights of Pythias. Revs. W. H. Gladden and J. R. Greene officiated. Interment was made at Spring Grove cemetery.

Proceedings in Ouster—Mrs. Nellie Walther, as agent, has filed suit in Justice McLane's court against Mrs. Smith, residing in the East End, to obtain possession of a house occupied by defendant. Another suit of the same nature was brought yesterday in Justice McLane's court by Thomas D. Wright against George Weddell. The defendant occupies property in the West End owned by the defendant.

Had to Give Up Carrying Mail—Mr. and Mrs. David Shimer and two children, of Bloomfield, O., are guests at the home of Robert Martin. Mr. Shimer has been in the employ of the postoffice department for a number of years, and carried the mail between Bloomfield station and Bloomingdale. Recently he suffered a stroke of paralysis and was compelled to give up the mail route. He is now in very poor health.

WHEELS OF JUSTICE

Grind Slowly in This Case, But Sure, Indeed—Bertine Lichtenstein Arrested.

On April 29 a charge was filed in Justice Rose's court against Bertine Lichtenstein for non-support of a minor child. Since that time Constable Powell has been looking for the accused man, but was unable to lay hands on him until yesterday.

Lichtenstein was located at the Laughlin pottery in the East End and brought before Squire Rose. He pleaded guilty and later effected a settlement with his wife, who had filed the affidavit.

RICHARD WATSON GILDER'S INSCRIPTIONS

The Pen of the Gifted Editor Gives a Finishing Touch to the Exposition. He Proclaims a Prophecy and Pronounces a Benediction.

When the people of the two Americas visit the Exposition city just erected "by the great waters of the North," many will recognize the style of Richard Watson Gilder in the classic and poetic inscriptions which adorn its Propylæa, Stadium, bridges, palaces and temples. The Exposition was peculiarly fortunate in persuading the scholarly editor of The Century to put the finishing touch on the artistic masterpiece. Those who read the legends will feel that their author is a man who "has upheld the ideals of Liberty and Justice" and who throughout a laborious life now in its prime has been "faithful to the things that are eternal," one who "has never shunned the dust and sweat of the contest and on whose brow" already "falls the cool shade of the olive" and rests the wreath of the victor's laurel.

INSCRIPTIONS FOR THE PROPYLÆA.

PANEL I.

Here, by the great waters of the north, are brought together the peoples of the two Americas, in exposition of their resources, industries, products, inventions, arts and ideas.

PANEL II.

That the century now begun may unite in the bonds of peace, knowledge, good will, friendship and noble emulation all the dwellers on the continents and islands of the new world.

INSCRIPTIONS FOR THE STADIUM.

PANEL I.

Not ignoble are the days of peace, not without courage and laureled victories.

PANEL II.

He who fails bravely has not truly failed, but is himself also a conqueror.

PANEL III.

Who shuns the dust and sweat of the contest, on his brow falls not the cool shade of the olive.

INSCRIPTIONS FOR THE GREAT PYLONS OF THE BRIDGE.

On the pylons are statues of Courage, Liberty, Tolerance, Truth, Benevolence, Patriotism, Hospitality and Justice.

PANEL I.

The spirit of adventure is the maker of commonwealths.

PANEL II.

Freedom is but the first lesson in self government.

PANEL III.

Religious tolerance a safeguard of civil liberty.

PANEL IV.

A free state exists only in the virtue of the citizen.

PANEL V.

Who gives wisely builds manhood and the state—who gives himself gives best.

PANEL VI.

To love one's country above all others is not to despise all others.

PANEL VII.

The brotherhood of man—the federation of nations—the peace of the world.

PANEL VIII.

Between nation and nation as between man and man lives the one law of right.

DEDICATORY INSCRIPTIONS UPON PRINCIPAL BUILDINGS.

PANEL I.

To the ancient races of America, for whom the new world was the old, that their love of freedom and of nature, their hardy courage, their monuments, arts, legends and strange songs, may not perish from the earth.

PANEL II.

To the explorers and pioneers who blazed the westward path of civilization, to the soldiers and sailors who fought for freedom and for peace and to the civic heroes who save a priceless heritage.

PANEL III.

To the great inventors and farseeing projectors, to the engineers, manufacturers, agriculturists and merchants who have developed the resources of the new world and multiplied the homes of freemen.

PANEL IV.

To those who in the deadly mine, on stormy seas, in the fierce breath of the furnace and in all perilous places working ceaselessly bring to their fellow men comfort, sustenance and the grace of life.

PANEL V.

To the scholars and laborious investigators who in the old world and the new guard the lamp of knowledge and century by century increase the safety of life, enlighten the mind and enlarge the spirit of man.

PANEL VI.

To those painters, sculptors and architects, tellers of tales, poets and creators of music, to those actors and musicians who in the new world have cherished and increased the love of beauty.

PANEL VII.

To the prophets and heroes, to the mighty poets and divine artists and to all the light bearers of the ancient world who inspired our forefathers and shall lead and enlighten our children's children.

PANEL VIII.

To the statesmen, philosophers, teachers and preachers and to all those who in the new world have upheld the ideals of liberty and justice and have been faithful to the things that are eternal.

LUCY BARTLETT (MRS. R. H. WHITE, JR.).

Lucy Bartlett is a beautiful Boston girl who began her career as a shopgirl, continued it by marrying the son of a New England merchant prince, and who has lately gone on the stage as a chorus girl while her young husband seeks a divorce in Colorado.

Took Him at His Word.

"Men on newspapers often have peculiar experiences," said W. A. Fairchild of Chicago, "and such a one befell a friend of mine some time ago. The friend in question was city editor of a great daily, and in the course of his manifold duties it fell to his lot to take to task one of his reporters. The reporter in question was an Englishman, slow of thought and action and miserly of speech. Through the tirade to which he was subjected he said nothing, and when it finally ended he left the presence of his superior without any comment.

"But, as the result proved, he did some tall thinking. City editors when 'riled,' as is well known, are not particularly choice or economical in the language they bestow on their unfortunate reporters, and among other things the Englishman had been told that he was no better than—in fact, was—a crazy man and that his proper habitat was a lunatic asylum and not the hall bedroom of a Chicago boarding house which he occupied.

"The Englishman took this part of the city editor's remarks as his text and acted upon them. He promptly went to an asylum, had himself thoroughly examined by three or four alienists and secured from them an official certificate to the fact that he was sane. With this he appeared at the office of his paper the next day, and, entering the editor's sanctum, he slapped it down before his astonished and dismayed superior. 'Now, you go and get one,' was his only comment and for once that city editor capitulated."—New York Tribune.

Bunkoed.

"His name was Alexander, and his weakness was the horses," said the reporter. "Surprising as it may appear, he won sometimes and enjoyed a brief nodding acquaintance with fortune. When the bookmakers got it back again, he took to drink and in the end went about trying to pick out a good place in which to kill himself.

"He bought a drink in a cheap hotel, and the quality of the liquor led him to believe he had found the place. He wished to do no man injury, but any one who sold that sort deserved to find a dead man on the premises. He hired a room, small, bleak, well calculated to make a man willing to blow out the gas, even if he had an aversion to it, which Alexander had not.

"He plugged the apertures, closed the transom, hung his coat over the keyhole, turned out the gas and lay down. Then he lighted it again and wrote a few foolish letters of farewell, so hard is it for even a tired mortal to quit with no word. Then he put out the light, saw that the gas was flowing freely and lay down.

"He woke. The sun was streaming in. It was high noon. Yes; he was alive. He could not understand it. There was no gas in the room, yet it was still turned on. He finally discovered that in hotels of that sort they turn the gas off at 1 a. m. 'Bunkoed!' he said and went cheerily on his way."—New York Sun.

A Joke That Failed.

Professor Rogers and Dr. Dale were once lecturing in England, and at every town which they visited Dr. Dale noticed that his colleague, who always spoke first, made the same speech. In fact, so often did the professor give that speech that the worthy doctor knew it off by heart, and this fact led the latter to think of a way of taking the wind out of his friend's sails.

On their arrival at a town in south Lancashire Dr. Dale asked Dr. Rogers to allow him to speak first, an arrangement to which the latter readily agreed, so Dr. Dale rose and proceeded to deliver the speech of Dr. Rogers, looking every now and then out of the corner of his eye to see how that worthy gentleman was taking this practical joke. Dr. Rogers sat calm and composed, and when at length his turn came to speak he just as calmly rose and delivered, to Dr. Dale's utter astonishment, quite a new speech.

At the conclusion of the meeting Dr. Dale said to his colleague:

"I thought I had taken the wind out of your sails tonight."

Dr. Rogers replied: "Oh, no. I delivered that speech when I was here a month ago."

Origin of Cake Walk.

The cake walk proper had its origin among the French negroes of Louisiana more than a century ago, says the New Orleans Times-Democrat. There is little doubt that it is an offshoot of some of the old French country dances. It resembles several of them in form. From New Orleans it spread over the entire south and thence north. It was found of convenience to the plantation negroes. They were not wedded by license, and it was seldom that the services of a preacher were called in. At a cake walk a man might legitimately show his preference for a woman and thus publicly claim her for a wife.

In effect the cake walk was not different from the old Scotch marriage which required only public acknowledgment from the contracting parties. So this festival became in some sense a wooing, an acceptance or a rejection and a ceremony. This explains its popularity with the blacks outside of its beauties, with the accompaniment of music, which is competent at all times to command negro support.

Cake walking has improved, as do most things that are constantly practiced. It has lost its old significance in the south. Negroes now get married when they marry at all in the white folks' fashion. It has become, however, a pantomime dance. Properly performed, it is a beautiful one. The cake is not much of a prize, though the negro has a sweet tooth.

A Discovery by Chance.

Finiguerra, the master of early engraving, delighted in doing deeds of kindness. One day a washerwoman in washing a piece of clothing in which a needle had been carelessly left had the misfortune to run it into her hand. The needle broke, and more than half of it was left imbedded in the flesh. It gave her much pain, and as soon as she could she went to Finiguerra's studio, put down the bundle of damp clothes that she was carrying to their owner and asked the artist to help her. After much patient, careful manipulation with his fine tools he succeeded in extracting the broken needle.

The woman thanked him, and as she lifted her damp bundle to leave the studio Finiguerra noticed that it had rested upon one of his engravings and had received an excellent impression from it. The engraving, like all others of that time, was a metal plate complete in itself and was regarded as a single picture. The impression made upon the damp cloth suggested to the alert mind of Finiguerra the possibility of producing an indefinite number of pictures from a single original. By experimenting he perfected his discovery and eventually made it possible for all homes to have beautiful engravings, for previous to his discovery only the wealthy could afford them.

The readers of this paper will be pleased learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all it's stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing it's work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer $100 for any case it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

Odd Ideas of Providence.

The temperance lecturer, John B. Gough, had occasion in one of his addresses to refer to the indiscriminate and arbitrary yet consoling doctrine of Providence. He said: "Some people have strange ideas on this matter. Once when a ship was in danger a lady went to the captain in great distress. 'We must trust in Providence, madam,' said he. 'Goodness gracious, is it as bad as that?' she cried.

"A washerwoman had her little shanty burned down. She stood before the wreck and, lifting her eyes to heaven and shaking her fist, exclaimed, 'You see if I don't work on Sundays to pay for that!'

"In the firth of Forth a vessel struck on a rock, and a tug was drawing nigh to the rescue. A boy, much alarmed, was clinging to his mother. She said, 'Ye must pit yer trust in Providence, Jamie.' 'I will, mither, as soon as I get into that ither boat.'

"In New York a Dutchman with a companion went into Delmonico's to get lunch. They were charged $6. One of the men began to swear, as he thought the charges excessive. 'Don't you swear,' said the other. 'Providence has punished that man Delmonico very bad already.' 'How is that? How has he punished him?' 'Why, I've got my pockets full of his forks and spoons.'"—Kansas City Independent.

If a girl has a piano, it is dangerous to give her a bust of Mozart or a picture of Beethoven, for then the parlor is changed to "the music room."—Atchison Globe.
